CLIPPER TO FLY 30 ON ATLANTIC CROSSING TODAY

All Ready for First Passenger Trip.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Pan American Airways' trans-Atlantic preview flight—really the beginning of regular passenger and mail service between the United States and Europe—was ready tonight to start at 2 p. m. tomorrow, Chicago time, from Port Washington, N. Y.

The flight crew was picked. The big Atlantic Clipper, 82,500 pound flying boat in which the aerial journey will be made, was tested and pronounced fit for the 4,650 mile trip. And the newspaper representatives, who officially are special observers for the flight, were prepared for the departure.

In all there will be thirty persons, five of them women, aboard the flying boat as she lifts off the waters of Long Island sound tomorrow. Twelve of them will be members of the crew, headed by Capt. William D. Culbertson. His first officer will be Capt. William D. Winston, a master from Pan American's Pacific division who is in training for an Atlantic command.

Two in Radio Crew.

The junior flight officers will be James W. Walker, Lewis C. Lindsey, and W. J. Garrison. Engineering officers are G. T. MacEwan, chief; Shelby M. Kritser, first assistant, and J. J. Nagel, second assistant. W. R. Cesting is the chief radio officer, with F. A. Hermanson as his assistant. Joseph Raviol is one of the two stewards. The second steward had not been chosen tonight.

For six and a half hours today these crew members flew the Atlantic Clipper over a course between New York and Baltimore, the company's permanent maintenance and repair base. This was the ship's test flight. Such flights always are made the day before any Pan American Airways plane begins a crossing of either the Atlantic or Pacific.

Members of the crew were notified early this morning they would make the flight tomorrow. All of them reported at 8 a. m. to the operations office at Pan American's Baltimore base. There the $500,000 Atlantic Clipper, the world's largest aircraft, was turned over to them by the crew chief who has been grooming the ship, its four 1,500 horse power motors, its flying, engine, and navigating instruments, and its radio for the last week.

Every Device Tested.

The crew members filed aboard. Every fuel and oil tank, every electric switch, each valve was tested on the water as the first step in the preparation program. The radio crew members tested both the duplicate code transmitters and receivers with which the Clipper will maintain communication with stations on both sides of the Atlantic during the flight.

The radio men also tried out their directional antenna with which they can take bearings on ships they may pass at sea during the crossing. The antenna on the plane is merely an auxiliary. Most of the navigation for the Clipper is done from Pan American's shore stations, where huge direction finding towers are set up.

In flight it is merely necessary for the radio operator to hold down his sending key for thirty seconds. The shore stations—located at Port Washington, Baltimore, Bermuda, Lisbon, Portugal, and Horta, the Azores—all will take bearings. These bearings will be transmitted to the plane. Then, by placing them on a nautical chart, the navigator determines the position of the ship to within a few miles.

Emergency Drill Held.

The preliminary tests were made while the plane still was moored at the maintenance float at Baltimore. Then a fire drill and emergency landing drill were held. Each man has his own post and must perform certain duties assigned to him alone in these drills.

Next the mooring lines were dropped and the huge plane moved into the harbor and took to the air. Capt. Culbertson set his course, and he and his flight crew began rigorous tests to determine that every instrument on the craft from the compasses to the fuel flow indicator was working

Retailers Fight New City Liquor Law

COUNCIL GRANTS LATER CLOSING; MAYOR SIGNS

Fees Raised; 4 A. M. Night Clubs Voted.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Radical changes in ordinances governing sale of liquor in Chicago voted yesterday by the city council brought forth last night threats of legal action against the city. Representatives of department store associations and other types of retail stores—barred under the new ordinance from participating in the sale of liquor—announced they will ask the courts to nullify the council's action.

Liquor stores, night clubs, and taverns will receive the broadest privileges in their Chicago history as a result of the new amendments. In exchange, the city expects to realize approximately $2,000,000 additional annual revenue through increased fees and new licenses.

Taverns Get Later Hours.

Under the amendments, signed by Mayor Kelly last night, taverns are permitted to stay open until 2 a. m. on week days and 3 a. m. on Sundays, one hour longer than now, and after Oct. 31 liquor stores and taverns will have a virtual monopoly on the liquor trade in the city. Under another amendment, passed but not yet signed by the mayor, night clubs will receive special owl privileges for the first time. They are to be permitted to stay open until 4 a. m. on weekdays and 5 a. m. on Sundays.

It is the monopoly amendment that aroused the militant opposition of merchants who have been selling liquor as a sideline. The amendment limits the sale of liquor after the next four months to taverns and bona fide liquor stores. Department stores, drug stores, groceries, etc., declared that they will thus be deprived of business amounting to millions of dollars annually.

Legal Action Planned.

Legal action was being planned even as Mayor Kelly signed the amendments. Walter Knoop, secretary of the Cook County Retail council, announced that stores will not surrender the right to deal in liquor without a struggle. He said:

"We don't intend to give up without using every legal device to uphold our rights. If necessary, we will carry this thing to the Illinois Supreme court. By next week we will have decided upon our plan of attack."

Attorney Sidney M. Libit, counsel for the Associated Groceries and Industries council, asserted that the action of the city council was unfair and unconstitutional.

"We believe the taverns in the light of their record of violating liquor laws," he explained, "certainly do not deserve a monopoly in liquor distribution."

Attorney Harry M. Pritzker, counsel for Goldblatt Brothers Department stores, said he believed a legal battle will result from the passage of the amendments. He made it clear, however, that he was not speaking for his clients, since he has had no opportunity to confer with them.

Mayor Clears Way for Test.

The council action in limiting liquor sales was taken despite a warning by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes that the law probably would not stand a test in court. He referred to the case of the city of Chicago vs. Netcher in which a similar ordinance was invalidated by the Illinois Supreme court in 1899.

Mayor Kelly explained that he signed this measure to clear the way for a court test.

"The council took the necessary steps to get my signature immediately," he said. "Now it can be taken to the courts for a ruling. If the ruling is against us, we will be

Trio Hungry Despite Their Sack of Gold

A tousle-haired young woman, a tired but bronzed young man, and a blonde baby girl sat last night on the grass in Grant park. They had no money. They'd had no supper. No bed was in prospect. And on the ground beside them was a sack containing eighty pounds of ore which they firmly believed would assay between $600 and $700 in gold!

They were Mr. and Mrs. Tom McDermott and their daughter, Iris Ann, 4 years old, of Las Vegas, Nev. They left there a week ago. Two days ago, in Galva, Ill., their car went to pieces. They hitch-hiked the rest of the way to Chicago with their ore. They sought aid from the Y. M. C. A., the Travelers' Aid, and the police. Then McDermott tried to sell a block of quartz, which he valued at $50, for a meal and a bed. No success.

They Get Meal and Bed.

A reporter found them and arrangements were made to get them a meal and a room. Today McDermott will see the men he came to Chicago to see about his mine, Thomas J. Dee & Co., gold wholesalers and developers at 55 East Washington street.

About three months ago, McDermott said, he and his father, Ernest, found an abandoned shaft about eighteen miles from Las Vegas. It had last been operated in 1880. About 500 feet down in the old shaft they found a vein of gold quartz. They leased the old claim on a percentage basis and went to work.

Wife Runs Engine.

McDermott and his father do the blasting and mining. Mrs. McDermott runs the hoisting engine, which was made from a wrecked auto. They haul their water four miles. The timbers for their cabin were carted twelve miles to the mine head.

In ten weeks they have pushed the old shaft down about eighty feet and a half inch vein has widened to four inches, McDermott claims. He and his father have had samples of the quartz assayed. McDermott claims that the reports are good. Dee & Co. are expected to run a test of the ore today. If McDermott is right he won't have to sit on the grass at Grant park tonight.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, June 16.—Twenty franc gold pieces of the time of Louis XV., worth about 260 francs by weight, were auctioned here today for from 700 to 950 francs apiece. The sale realized 240,000 francs.

[The current value of the franc is 2.65 cents.]

The gold pieces consisted of 205 of the best specimens taken from a cache recently discovered by workmen demolishing an old building in Rue Mouffetard. A document inclosed with them showed them to have been hidden by Royal Secretary Claude Nivelle in 1756.

Numerous claimants to the fortune as heirs were among the coin collectors making bids today. The auction was held to pay court costs in a legal dispute between Nivelle's heirs and workmen who discovered the treasure, which contained 3,600 gold pieces.

Pick 500 Lbs. of Dandelions in Order to See King, Queen

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, June 16.—Fifteen girl guides will see King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain in St. John's tomorrow after all. Not to be denied this privilege and despite the lack of train fare, which is $1.25, they picked nearly 500 pounds of dandelions and sold them at 4 cents a pound. Happy, but tired, the girls will be in the ranks of the guides when they are inspected during the two hour stop of the royal tourists at St. John's. The king and queen will resume their return voyage to England after the ceremony.

Exhausted Fund Perils WPA Jobs of Blind Piano Tuners

A WPA project which provides work for blind piano tuners in Cook county may be discontinued after July 5. Funds provided for the project will be exhausted at that time unless replenished from Washington, a director of the project said yesterday. Between ten and fifteen blind men have been receiving $85 a month each for tuning, repairing, and conditioning pianos in federal, state, county, and city institutions and parks.

Toy Dart Shot by Brother, 6, Pierces Heart

Frank Julian.

Robert got out an airgun that shoots suction darts which stick to walls or other flat surfaces. He accidentally discharged the toy and the suction dart with which it was loaded struck Frank over the heart.

It was a solid jolt and a little painful, but Frank laughed it off. Then he went out. A couple of hours later, while riding on a street car, he collapsed. Police took him to the office of Dr. Gerald M. Stazio, 3655 Chicago avenue, who sent him to County hospital.

Physicians Are Puzzled.

Frank seemed to be suffering from a heart ailment, but his case nevertheless puzzled physicians. Yesterday, as his condition grew worse, doctors asked Austin police to investigate.

So last night Detective Elwood Egan went to the Julian home.

Finds Needle in Dart.

He examined the gun and the suction dart. Half imbedded in the suction end of the dart he found half of a needle. Robert had put the needle in the dart to make certain it would stick in his targets.

Physicians said last night the other half of the needle probably is in or near Frank's heart. An X-ray photograph will be taken today.

Nazis Decree Each Family Must Have Four Children

BERLIN, June 16.—There must be a minimum of four children in each German family, under a dictum of the National Socialist party, the official newspaper, National Socialist Korrespondenz, said today. The figure is based on statistical research, which shows that 1,278,583 children must be born each year to keep the population at its present level. Last year births fell 42,065 short of this figure.

Fail to Locate Lost Sub; 63 on It Doomed

SAIGON, French Indo-China, June 17 [Saturday].—(AP)—French naval authorities, after a prolonged search for the submarine Phenix, lost with sixty-three men aboard, announced today there was not a single trace of the underwater craft.

The submarine submerged Thursday morning in the China sea off the Bay of Cam-Ranh, Indo-China, and it was scheduled to appear here yesterday morning. The search with all available naval units and French airplanes was continued today.

However, virtually all hope of saving the men was abandoned by authorities. The sea where the search was carried out had a depth of about 100 meters [328 feet]. An immediate naval inquiry was planned, but officers first needed to locate the craft.

Fourth Disaster This Year.

PARIS, June 16.—(AP)—The 2,000 ton French submarine Phenix has been missing since making a routine dive Thursday morning off the coast of Indo-China with four officers and 59 men aboard, the navy minister announced tonight.

The dive was made in Cam-Ranh bay, where the mountains of eastern Indo-China drop hard down to the coast, making one of the deepest stretches of water in the China sea.

The great depth of the water, coupled with unavailability of proper rescue equipment, left little hope for rescue.

The accident was the fourth in the swiftest succession of major tragedies in submarine history. Only sixteen days ago, on June 1, the British submarine Thetis sank in Liverpool bay with a loss of 99 lives; on May 23 the American submarine Squalus sank off the New Hampshire coast with death of 26 and rescue of 33; and on Feb. 2 81 died in the sinking of the Japanese submarine I-63, 400 miles southwest of Tokio.

Naval authorities conjectured that the Phenix must have developed trouble in submerging and gone to the bottom.

Issue Official Notice.

France had just opened negotiations with the United States for four diving bells similar to the one used to rescue 33 from the Squalus. France does not now have any such equipment.

The first communique was issued by the navy ministry at 2 p. m. [Chicago time]. It said:

"There is serious anxiety concerning the fate of the first class submarine Phenix, at present attached to Indo-China.

"The far eastern naval forces as well as unattached ships of the navy in Indo-China immediately began searches which still continue. Seaplanes in the colony are also participating. Informed immediately, the navy ministry notified the families of members of the crew."

Nation Mourns Loss.

Official France tonight already had taken a step toward national mourning with cancelation of an official luncheon which President Lebrun was to give tomorrow at the Elysee palace for the sultan of Morocco.

Most of those aboard the sub came from the Toulon area, where news of the previous two tragedies in the last month already had worried those who had loved ones on submarine duty. The wife of the commander of the Phenix, Lieutenant Commander O. M. Bouchacourt, was one of those informed. She lives at Toulon. The other officers aboard the Phenix were Lieut. Baherze, 32; Ensign Veron, 25, and another ensign.

The Phenix left Toulon about four months ago to relieve another submarine in the far east, where France has raised the strength of her sea forces since the beginning of the Chinese-Japanese war. In Cam-Ranh bay itself France has created one of her greatest naval bases.

The Phenix, built in 1927, is 302.5 feet long and powered with 2,000 horse power electric motors for use under water. Her submerged speed is ten knots. She has ten torpedo tubes.

HOUSE SETS UP 3 MAN BOARD TO ABOLISH WASTE

Knocks Out Theater and Art Projects.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17 [Saturday].—[Special.]—Following one of the most dramatic sessions of more than a decade, the house drove to passage in the early hours of this morning a bill appropriating one billion 735 millions of dollars to meet the unemployment and relief needs of the nation. The vote was 373 for the bill and 21 against it.

Meeting at 11 a. m. yesterday, the members for nearly fourteen hours struggled with the relief measure. They wound up after midnight, hoarse and exhausted, with frayed nerves, Democrats quarreling with Democrats because the assistance of the Republican minority had helped one majority group triumph over another.

White House Bloc Beaten.

Futile also were the efforts of this White House bloc to lift a long list of restrictions and limitations upon spending of the fund which indicated a congressional rebuke to the WPA for extravagances and misuse of funds.

There was a mixture of horseplay and drama as the chamber completed its consideration of the measure at 12:45 a. m., defeated a Republican motion to recommit the bill, and began a record roll call vote which was completed at 1:15 a. m.

Guffaws greeted a late hour attempt by Congresswoman Mary T. Norton [D., N. J.] to save the federal theater project from abolition. Reading of a list of WPA plays with semi-salacious titles provoked gusts of laughter which led to the defeat of the Norton amendment, 192 to 56.

Democrats in Quarrel.

The serious moment came when a radical Democrat, Jack Nichols of Oklahoma, delivered a tirade against Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, [D., Va.], whose subcommittee drafted the relief measure and who handled it on the floor.

Nichols reproached Woodrum for accepting Republican assistance to defeat the New Deal attempts to alter the restrictive measure.

"We took Republican help in the presidential election of 1932," observed Woodrum in a quiet reply. "We might need it in 1940!"

Both sides of the chamber gave Woodrum a three minute ovation as he finished.

House Relents Slightly.

Despite a last minute barrage of criticism from President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, the house relented to the extent of modifying only three of the nineteen major revisions of the present WPA setup.

The lone important change in the bill voted by the house was in connection with the appropriation for the national youth administration. The house upped the $81,000,000 fund for the NYA which had been recommended by the appropriations committee to 100 million, which is 23 million less than the White House demands.

Obnoxious to President.

According to President Roosevelt's own utterances and the statements of Ickes and Col. Harrington, the following provisions in the bill definitly were obnoxious to them:

1. Creation of a three man board to run the WPA with minority party representation. This setup would curb Mr. Roosevelt's dominance of the single administrator appointed by him.
2. Elimination of the federal theater, arts, music, and writers' projects.
3. Elimination of all purely federal projects, except for expenditures from a $50,000,000 fund which was agreed to in a last minute concession. Even then, a $50,000 limitation upon building projects was insisted upon.
4. A prohibition upon the spending of more than $40,000 by the federal government on any building project. The maximum recommended by the committee originally had been $25,000, but the $15,000 increase was agreed to as a sop to the administration which definitly failed to satisfy.
5. The provision for sixty day vacations without pay for all those on relief rolls continuously for eighteen months, designed to put an end to WPA career men. Heads of families 45 years of age or over later were exempted from this provision by a vote of 138 to 132.

6. The earmarking of $125,000,000 to the public works administration for projects of the permanent type, performed under private contract, and requiring a 55 per cent contribution by states and communities. This was regarded as a $125,000,000 slash in the WPA appropriation by its officials.

More than a dozen other restrictions were imposed in the bill and approved by the house in uproarious fashion, the White House battalion never mustering more than 80 or 90 votes against majorities of more than 200. A coalition of Republicans and Democrats functioned smoothly to crush the radical Democrats who fought for increased spending and unrestricted authority for the administration.

A tentative and almost timid attempt was made by Democratic Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas to challenge the leadership of Representative Woodrum.

Reject Plan Sponsored by CIO.

Rayburn raised the question of repealing the three man board provision which undoubtedly placed first in irritating Mr. Roosevelt. There was such widespread protest that Rayburn quickly dropped the subject.

Numerous attempts were made to raise the 1,447 million total of the WPA fund which is $723,00,000 under the appropriation for the current fiscal year. They were uniformly defeated. The main battle came on an amendment offered by Representative Joseph E. Casey, [D., Mass.], who submitted an amendment sponsored by the C. I. O. of John L. Lewis. This would have appropriated $2,250,000,000 to keep 3,000,000 persons on the rolls whereas the committee recommended the maintenance of 2,700,000 persons on work relief.

With every member aware of the C. I. O. authorship of the Casey amendment the Massachusetts legislator reddened when Woodrum inquired of him:

"Who wrote this amendment which you are proposing?"

There was laughter as Casey yelled: "Never mind who wrote it! It's a true American bill!"

Unofficial Aid of Reds.

Casey called Woodrum and members of his committee "enemies of the WPA." He was followed by Representative Vito Marcantonio, American labor party member of New York, who is the unofficial representative of the communist party in the house. Marcantonio shouted that the committee's bill was "a stab at the heart of American liberty."

Before a silent and attentive house, Woodrum then urged defeat of the Casey amendment.

"The committee's bill will give more jobs per dollar to those who need jobs than any other relief bill ever passed by congress," he declared. "Everyone knows that the Casey amendment was written by the Workers Alliance [Communistic organization of WPA workers] and the C. I. O." A thunderous roar of "noes" greeted the Casey amendment on a voice vote. On a standing vote the count was 205 to 86.

Distribute Jobs by States.

A fight by Representative Charles H. Leavy [D., Wash.] to strike out of the bill the transfer of $125,000,000 of WPA funds to the public works administration was defeated, 194 to 84.

Most radical of the amendments offered by the free spending group was that proposed by Representative Kent E. Keller [D., Ill.]. He urged that the WPA appropriation be increased to 2 billions 574 millions, an increase of more than a billion dollars. This amendment was overwhelmingly defeated.

A new formula of job distribution by states was approved without much debate. Woodrum said it was a much fairer method of apportioning the 2,700,000 jobs provided for. The formula calls upon WPA officials to consider the population and unemployment in the states in considering the number of jobs to award each state.

A haphazard method of allotting jobs hitherto has been followed and the absence of any set formula has allowed the WPA to increase or decrease the job loads in certain areas where political considerations ruled.

Preference must be given job applicants on the basis of their actual need and the applicant's dependents, under another provision of the bill. The WPA previously has refused to consider need in allotting jobs, usually filling positions in the order in which applications were filed, or in the discretion of the local administrator.

An investigation of the relief rolls at least every six months to ascertain the eligibility of job holders is also demanded in the bill.

Administrative and supervisory officials are required to take an oath of allegiance to the constitution under another new provision. The penalties for such officials, found guilty of using their position or relief funds for political activities, were also stiffened, the one year imprisonment maximum being raised to two years.

Woodrum Yields on NYA.

The $100,000,000 compromise appropriation for the National Youth administration was engineered by Rayburn after it was apparent that many members, swayed by appeals not to be penurious in appropriating for the youth of the nation, had indicated they might vote for the full $123,000,000 fund asked by President Roosevelt. Rayburn's amendment carried by a vote of 207 to 65, after Woodrum said he accepted the compromise.

"I still say that it is not the province of the federal government to give a college education to all American youths," Woodrum told the house, "but I bow to the inevitable."

An amendment to knock out an $850,000 appropriation for the national emergency council, termed "an indefensible propaganda agency, by Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.], was defeated 111 to 83.

Nine Democrats and twelve Republicans were the only opponents of the bill. They were:

Democrats: Burch, Va.; Casey, Mass.; Celler, N. Y.; Drewry, Va.; Ferguson, Okla.; O'Day, N. Y.; Peterson, Ga.; Robertson, Va., and Smith, Va.

Republicans: Cole, N. Y.; Crawford, Mich.; Hoffman, Mich.; Luce, Mass.; McLean, N. J.; Reed, N. Y.; Rockefeller, N. Y.; Short, Mo.; Taber, N. Y.; Tinkham, Mass.; Wadsworth, N. Y., and Williams, Del.

PWA REQUESTED TO EXTEND TIME ON TRANSIT LAW

Mayor Kelly yesterday mailed to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes a request for extension of time in drafting a comprehensive traction ordinance for a unified transit company. Secretary Ickes is head of the Public Works administration, which set July 1 as the deadline for drafting an ordinance in making its $18,000,000 subway grant. Mayor Kelly's letter also asked an extension beyond July 1 for submitting to the PWA plans for future subway systems and for the widening of Congress street.

A proposed council order to earmark $605,000 for changes in the underground freight tunnel system because of subway construction was referred to the finance committee yesterday. The city's contract, made in 1932 with the Chicago Tunnel company, operator of the tunnel system, provided that the city would pay up to $700,000 for tunnel alterations necessary in subway construction.

FRENCH SEIZE 5 ACCUSED SPIES IN GUN BATTLE

TOULON, France, June 16.—(AP)—Four Frenchmen accused of espionage were captured here today after a gun fight with police and counterespionage agents. With the four men during the struggle was a uniformed French soldier who lured them into the police trap when they tried to persuade him to turn over a new French machine gun.

A young blonde French woman, who, police said, acted as intermediary between the espionage ring and the soldier, also was arrested. The four men were booked as Paul Castellani, Cesar Chabrier, Jules Menardo, and Jean Marro. The girl's name was given as Malou Manlan. The men were charged with espionage and attempting to kill police officers. The girl was held only on an espionage charge. No one was injured in the exchange of shots near the Toulon arsenal.

Roosevelt Flees 100° Heat; Takes Bullitt on Cruise

Annapolis, Md., June 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt embarked from the naval academy yard tonight for a week-end cruise on Chesapeake bay and the Potomac river. He will return to the White House Sunday evening. The President motored here from Washington, where the temperature was 100 in the shade. He was accompanied by William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, senate majority leader; Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.], and Mrs. Schwellenbach.

RETAIL STORES TO FIGHT LIQUOR MONOPOLY LAW

bound by it and the aldermen will have to decide upon something else."

Six Amendments Listed.

The six amendments in the order in which they were passed are:

1. Tavern license fees are raised from $300 to $400 for each six months or from $600 per year to $800. A special license period of four months, July 1 to Oct. 31, is established, for which the licenses shall cost $270.

2. The hours that taverns and liquor stores can remain open are extended from 1 a. m. to 2 a. m. on weekdays and from 2 a. m. to 3 a. m. on Sundays.

3. The sale of alcoholic liquor for drinking on premises is prohibited in combination stores such as groceries, department stores, and drug stores.

4. A special license is established for cabarets and restaurants permitting them to remain open until 4 a. m. on weekdays and 5 a. m. on Sundays. The license will cost $350 for each six months or $700 per year. The cost for the special four months' period beginning next month is $235. Holders of this license must also have a tavern license and a restaurant or amusement license.

5. All places where liquor is sold for consumption on the premises must meet the sanitary standards for taverns, such as toilet facilities and facilities for washing utensils.

6. The sale of liquor after Oct. 31 is limited to taverns and regular liquor stores. Few exceptions include hotels, restaurants, clubs, and bowling alleys.

Other Amendments Signed.

Besides the amendment limiting liquor sales to taverns and regular liquor stores, Mayor Kelly signed the amendments calling for increased liquor license fees and longer hours for taverns. These will not become operative until June 29, as they must be published for ten days beginning Monday. The other amendments will be on the table until the next meeting, June 27, after which their publication period starts if the council does not reconsider them.

Yesterday's council session, one of the most tumultuous in many years, lasted more than four hours. Approximately 2,000 onlookers were jammed into the galleries. A large overflow crowd stood in the corridors. The mid-day heat made the narrow chambers close and uncomfortable.

Ovation for Mayor Kelly.

Speakers were interrupted frequently by applause and stamping of feet or by catcalls and boos. The greatest ovation came when Mayor Kelly laid aside his gavel and spoke in favor of confining the liquor trade to special stores and taverns.

"The liquor business must be cleaned up," he asserted. "It should be separated from other businesses for the protection of all citizens."

Opposition to the measure thereupon collapsed, and it was adopted by a vote of 38 to 5. Originally it was planned to sidetrack this amendment because of Hodes' warning, but there was pressure on many of the council members.

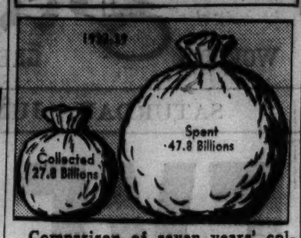
Active Lobby Indicated.

Tavern keepers and liquor store owners were glowering down on them from the galleries; numerous telephone calls to the aldermen indicated that an active lobby was being conducted from outside the city hall, and a group of aldermen known to be favorable to the proposal were busy whispering to their colleagues throughout the meeting. The decision to pass the amendment was reached at a conference between Mayor Kelly and Ald. Thomas P. Keane [31st], chairman of the license committee.

The debate on the longer tavern hours lasted for over an hour. This amendment was adopted by a vote of 30 to 18. Many aldermen insisted that the tavern keepers do not want the extra time. Property owners, they said, will object to the added disturbance in the early hours.

A proposal to limit the number of taverns in the city to one for each 500 population and make the liquor licenses transferable was turned back to the license committee. Ald. Keane explained that the ordinance would be meaningless until the legislature passes the enabling legislation.

F.D.R. for Tax Change



Comparison of seven years' collections and spending of the federal government.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today declared himself in favor of broadening the income tax base. He expressed doubt, however, that any action could come on increasing income taxes at this session of congress.

By increasing income taxes the New Deal would dig further into taxpayer pockets to pay for its spending program. To date in the present fiscal year the administration has spent 3 billion 400 million dollars more than it has collected. Receipts to date for the year which will end June 30 total 5 billion 200 million dollars and expenditures 8 billion 600 million dollars.

From July 1, 1933, to date, the administration has spent 20 billion dollars more than it has collected through its various schemes to bring about recovery. Collections from that date totaled 27 billion 844 million dollars and expenditures 47 billion 891 million dollars.

At his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt attempted to give the impression that he was not interested in broadening the base to secure additional revenue, but to extend the responsibilities of citizenship.

OFFICIAL OPINION IGNORED

In passing a tavern law amendment that would prohibit the sale of liquor in drug, department, and food stores after Oct. 31, the city council yesterday ignored an official opinion that the new provision is of doubtful legality.

This opinion was given Thursday by Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin H. Foss after Ald. Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d] had requested it for the guidance of the council license committee. It was read on the council floor yesterday before the vote of approval was given.

Advice Based on 1899 Case.

Foss based his advice principally on the case of the city of Chicago against Charles Netcher, whose Boston store in the loop tested a similar ordinance at the close of the nineteenth century.

Netcher was arrested in 1899 for violating an ordinance which forbade the sale of liquor in "any place of business where dry goods, clothing, jewelry, or hardware are kept or exposed for sale."

In the court of a justice of the peace Netcher was fined $25. On appeal to the Criminal court the decision was reversed, Judge A. H. Chetlain holding that the ordinance was void. The case was then taken by the city to the Illinois Supreme court.

The justices there upheld Judge Chetlain. They said that the prohibition of liquor sales in department stores [not for consumption on the premises] was arbitrary and unconstitutional in view of the fact that other business houses could sell liquor.

"It is apparent," the court's opinion stated, "that if there is any evil in permitting a sealed bottle of liquor to be sold from a store where dry goods, cloth, jewelry, or hardware are sold, the same evils would result from sale in any kind of store."

Disposes of Argument.

This disposed of the argument that it was a duty of the city to stop sales on the ground that dram drinking is evil and "pernicious to the welfare of the public." The department store prohibition, as drawn, was held to be without benefit to the public.

Recently the Supreme court, in a case from Danville, held that the city had the right to forbid drinking on the premises of package liquor stores. This would tend to uphold the right of the city to specify conditions, as in another amendment passed yesterday by the council under which liquor might be sold by the drink.

U. S. TO CONTINUE WATCH AND WAIT POLICY IN ORIENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—The United States will hold to the policy of watchful waiting in the far east and will await further developments before deciding whether to lodge a formal protest with Japan against the blockade of foreign settlements in China, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today.

Hull reported the state department is following every development with minute attention, but is leaving the handling of the situation to American diplomatic representatives on the scene and in Japan.

At his daily press conference the secretary made public reports from Consul General Karl McVitty at Amoy and Consul General John K. Caldwell at Tientsin. Each official reported that no serious danger or inconvenience has thus far come to American nationals in the blockaded areas.

EXCAVATION STARTED ON MODERN GARAGE FOR TRIBUNE'S TRUCKS

The first shovelful of earth in excavating the foundations of the new ultra modern garage for THE TRIBUNE'S fleet of trucks was turned yesterday afternoon by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

More than a hundred spectators formed a circle in the 500 foot vacant lot on North Water street east of Tribune Tower at 4 o'clock as Louis Rose, circulation manager, introduced the principal speaker. Many of the onlookers were drivers and other employés of the circulation department that will benefit in efficiency and safe working conditions when the new building is put into operation next October.

"The new garage," said Col. McCormick, "will give the delivery system a home of its own and it will be as fitting to it as other buildings are to the other departments."

Notable among the unusual features of the new structure is ventilation system for expelling carbon monoxide fumes that will be the only one of its kind in the world. Electric eye devices will automatically open and close the garage doors, brake testers will check brakes on every truck daily, house telephones will save time and needless walking, and big, circular wash basins will enable dozens of drivers to wash simultaneously.

Department heads of THE TRIBUNE were present, as were R. C. Wieboldt, the contractor in charge of building the garage, and Leo Weissenborn, the Tribune architect who designed it

RULERS REACH NEWFOUNDLAND FOR FINAL FETE

ST. JOHN'S Newfoundland, June 16.—[Canadian Press.]—The liner Empress of Britain, bearing King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain to Newfoundland, anchored in Conception bay on the east coast of this oldest of British colonies tonight. The royal party will go ashore in the morning for the final festivities of the North American tour.

Earlier in the day it had been announced from aboard ship that the king and queen had received a farewell message from President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Given to the monarchs last night in Halifax, the message said:

"I cannot allow you and the queen to sail for home without expressing once more the extreme pleasure which your all too brief visit to the United States gave us. The warmth of the welcome accorded you everywhere you visited in this country was the spontaneous outpouring of Americans who were deeply touched by the tact and graciousness and understanding hearts of our guests.

"I shall always like to think that you felt the sincerity of this manifestation of the friendship of the American people.

"Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in parting felicitations to your majesties and best wishes for a safe and pleasant voyage."

Foreign Firms Refuse to Pay Levy.

SHANGHAI, June 17.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Another clash between Japanese and foreign interests in China threatened today at Hankow. The clash was over the refusal of members of the foreign chamber of commerce to pay new taxes imposed by the recently organized Japanese controled Wuhan special municipality.

Domei, Japanese news agency, reported that the foreign firms at Hankow based their refusal upon the contention that they had no source of income since the Japanese closed the Yangtze river to navigation last January.

The news agency said Japanese authorities in the former Chinese provisional capital threatened drastic action against the defaulting firms.

Tientsin Row Deadlocked.

TIENTSIN, June 17. [Saturday.]—(AP)—The Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions entered the fourth day today with the Japanese urging Chinese to bring independent pressure on the British to bow to Japanese demands and the British pressing representations against obstacles to the flow of foodstuffs.

Food prices were skyrocketing; the shortage of milk for children was causing sharp resentment among foreigners; and two Chinese were reported killed by Japanese sentries while handing up a basket of vegetables into the British concession near the marine barracks.

British May Run Blockade.

Japanese reports said the British authorities had ordered two naval vessels to sail for Tientsin, one from Chinwangtao, 200 miles away, and the other from Weihaiwei, 300 miles away, with full loads of food for the blockaded area.

The reports asserted that the British consul general intended to have the food brought in as military supplies and then distribute it among the concession residents.

Eric Mayell, British newsreel cameraman, was released by the Japanese military, who had held him prisoner since Wednesday for taking pictures of the Japanese.

Continue to Search Residents.

Tension had lessened somewhat, but the Japanese continued to search persons entering or leaving the concessions in carrying out the blockade, which was imposed originally over British refusal to hand over four Chinese wanted by the Japanese following the slaying of a Tientsin customs official.

Since the original demand for the Chinese, Japanese informants have outlined additional conditions for possible settlement of the dispute, including punishment by the British of terrorists, strict control of anti-Japanese organizations, cessation of economic disturbances in North China, and delivery of 50,000,000 Chinese dollars [about $6,000,000] deposited in the concession by the Chinese nationalist government.

In Tokio authoritative sources said Japan's terms were unconditional surrender by the British on all issues involved. These were said to include reorganization of the concession government to give greater authority to the Japanese sponsored Tientsin government, financial coöperation by British banks to facilitate circulation of Japanese currency, and sweeping pledges of future coöperation with Japanese authorities.

Eugene Dooman, American chargé d'affaires in Tokio, discussed the controversy with Seijiro Yoshizawa, head of the American section of the foreign office, in what Japanese government circles said they believed might be a preliminary step toward mediation efforts by the United States.

About 300 Americans, besides 202 marines, remained in Tientsin. Four hundred Americans normally live in the city, but about 100 are summering elsewhere or went to Peking to escape the troubles of the British-Japanese controversy.

While the Americans are experiencing slight personal difficulties, as business men they are encountering the same troubles as other foreigners. American firms were hindered sharply in getting their Chinese staffs in and out of the concessions and there were long delays in the movement of merchandise—when it moved.

Newton, N. J., June 16.—[Special.]—Sussex county's citizens have a pet of which they are proud. The pet is a duck, "Fanny," who, with her brood of ducklings, is given the run of the town of Newton. Auto trafic is held up while the ducks cross the street.

ENGLAND WARNS IT WILL PROTECT RIGHTS IN CHINA

Charges Japanese with Ulterior Motives.

LONDON, June 16.—(AP)—The British government in an unusual statement expressed alarm today over the demands of local Japanese authorities at Tientsin and said that Britain was prepared to take immediate and active steps to protect its interests in China.

The government's views were outlined in a foreign office communique—a method used only on rare occasions.

The communique gave no indication what the projected steps might be, but it was believed that the government was considering the possibility of denouncing the British-Japanese trade agreement of 1911, which gives the Japanese most favored nation treatment. There was no official indication that Britain might resort to force.

Cabinet to Meet Monday.

The cabinet will hold an emergency meeting Monday to consider the reports of various government departments which have been studying suggestions for retaliatory action against the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions in Tientsin.

Today's communique described the manner of the Japanese spokesmen in Tientsin as threatening and said it was clear from their statements that the refusal of British authorities to hand over four alleged terrorists held in the British concession was no longer regarded as the reason for the imposition of measures against the concession.

What the Japanese really want, the foreign office said, is to force the British to coöperate with the Japanese in constructing a new order in the far east.

Jap Demands Listed.

The Japanese demands were listed as:

1. Abandonment of pro-Chiang Kai-shek policies, including protection of anti-Japanese and communist elements.
2. Discontinuance of support of Chinese currency.
3. An end of cornering of commodities in the concessions and connivance at the use of wireless by lawless elements.
4. A ban on the use of anti-Japanese school text books.

"British circles cannot but take a most serious view of the further demands which have been made and which raise the widest issues affecting the rights of all those powers which have treaty rights in China," the statement said.

Hopes to Localize Incident.

"They would mean the abandonment under threats of force of the policy which his majesty's government have followed in the past, which is the same as that of other great powers with an interest in the far east.

"It is still hoped that the Japanese authorities may not maintain their refusal to give further consideration to the proposals which have been made to localize the incident.

"But if, unhappily, the new demands foreshadowed from official Japanese sources in North China should be persisted in, then it must be said at once that an extremely serious situation will arise and that the British government will have to consider what immediate and active steps they can take for the protection of British interests in China."

China's Foreign Areas Foil Jap Scheme for New Order in Asia

Japan, striving to set up a "new order" in eastern Asia through conquest, is finding the foreign concessions and settlements in the already conquered areas of China among the principal obstacles in its path.

For almost a hundred years the occidental powers have held a special position in China and the present attempt to oust them, as was done in Japan 40 years ago, has created troublesome friction with the western nations, particularly Great Britain, France, and the United States.

Tientsin, principal port of North China, has become the core of the latest phase in the long conflict. There the Japanese, demanding British coöperation in their new order program, have blockaded the British and French concessions, with a combined area of about 1,200 acres and a population of 120,000, including some 5,000 occidentals.

Foreign concessions in Tientsin date from 1860. Once there were eight of them, but the German, Austrian, and Russian areas reverted to Chinese rule after the world war and the Belgian area disappeared in 1928. Italy and Japan still have concessions there.

Concessions in Five Cities.

There are foreign concessions in five Chinese cities—Shanghai, Tientsin, Hankow, Amoy, and Canton. In all but the last there has been trouble since Japan began the invasion of China July 7, 1937.

The French concession at Hankow was virtually blockaded for weeks last winter in a French-Japanese quarrel. The Japanese have been pressing demands for greater control over the international settlement and French concession at Shanghai for months.

Early in May the Japanese navy occupied the international settlement of Kulangsu at Amoy, South China. American, British, and French naval parties later were landed to match Japanese strength there.

British and other western officials believe that Japan's moves particularly at Amoy and Tientsin are tests of foreign strength and determination which may form a prelude to forcible action against the much greater foreign interests at Shanghai.

Areas Challenge Japs.

The foreign areas have an importance out of all proportion to their size. Against the great bulk of China's area and population they are infinitesimal, totaling only some 11,000 acres [about 17 square miles] with an occidental population of about 50,000.

But around these small islands Japan has had to divert her invasion and they have remained a challenge to her ambition for domination.

Occidental officials charge that Japan wants to bring the concessions under her control so as to eliminate foreign competition for the trade of China.

U. S. Has No Concessions.

The United States has no concessions in China.

However, United States consular officials and citizens take part in administration of the international settlements at Shanghai and Amoy. And most American residents of the larger cities of China live and carry on their businesses in the settlements or concessions.

American garrisons are stationed and help maintain order in the foreign areas of Shanghai, Tientsin, and Peking, alongside British, French, and Italian forces.

SUPT. JOHNSON PRAISES "GEMS OF ELOQUENCE"

Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson yesterday called the attention of teachers and pupils of English, history, and the social sciences to "Gems of American Eloquence," a series of excerpts from famous speeches being published currently in the graphic section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

In the regular superintendent's bulletin to school principals, Dr. Johnson referred to the series as a "noteworthy feature of an educational nature."

Commenting on the series, aside from the bulletin, he said, "Excerpts of American Eloquence can be used for study by pupils of a wide variety of courses. They are directly related to history. They are literature, and they are also beneficial to pupils of public speaking or drama."

RUSSIANS STAND FIRM ON TERMS OF BRITISH PACT

MOSCOW, June 16.—(AP)—Progress of the renewed efforts by Britain and France to induce soviet Russia to join their bloc of nations to counterbalance the Rome-Berlin axis remained in doubt tonight after a second conference at the Kremlin.

Sir Williams Seeds, British ambassador; Paul Emile Naggiar, French ambassador, and William Strang, British foreign office expert here especially for the talks, conferred with Vyacheslav Molotov, Russian premier and foreign minister, this afternoon, following up conversations yesterday in which they presented their latest pact proposals.

It was disclosed this morning in a communique that the official soviet view after yesterday's meeting was that the proposals seemed to be "not entirely satisfactory." Nothing was disclosed tonight as to whether today's talk changed this view.

Today's communique was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that, unless the British and French offered further concessions, the prospects for further negotiations were not bright.

U. S. FARM WOMEN VISIT LONDON AND TAKE IT BY STORM

British Outdo Themselves to Entertain Guests.

BY ANN WHITTINGHAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 16.—London has discovered a new American woman! She is the American farmer's wife. And how London has fallen for her!

The triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World is in progress, with 147 American farm women here to meet 800 of their sisters from fifty-seven countries of the world.

They came here modestly, without publicity, but their vitality and genuineness so struck London that within a few days twenty-seven receptions, apart from sightseeing tours, had been arranged for them.

Illinois Is Represented.

Coming from Illinois are: Mrs. Spencer Ewing of Bloomington, who has applied her Smith college education to the work of the Illinois Federation of Home Bureaus and who has been its recreational activities director for twelve years; Mrs. Leonord J. Killey, former president of the Home Bureau federation; Mrs. Ira Judd of Aurora, Mrs. Elmer Herman of Woodbine, Mrs. John Morris of Eden, Mrs. John Honnold of Kansas, Miss Anna Bines of Monmouth, Miss Margaret Lee Bines of Canton, Miss Clareta Walker of Carlinville, Miss Jessie Campbell of Pontiac, and Miss Ariel Sager of Paris.

And they are having a grand time!

London has turned out its best weather; what's more, it has opened its finest homes, and, of course, has shown its oldest landmarks. In between times, the countryside has welcomed the Americans to its old world villages with their ancient crafts and traditional festivities, and has shown the most modern farms. In fact, England has taken these American women to its heart and seems to feel that it has got in touch with something as authentic from America as the doughboy of the great war.

Study Farm Questions.

Mrs. Honnold of Kansas says:

"We are here to study real farm questions and to find out how the women of other lands are solving them. There are a few town types among the delegates, but most of us are straight off the farm, dirt farmers and proud of it.

"We are going to take back to our farms a lot of new ideas that we know will work because we have seen them working here. Judging by the women from all these countries, the only thing the country women want is peace, to work out our problems in."

Many delegates from America are going on to the farming districts of the continent to see conditions there. Most of them plan to go to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Belgium and Holland. It is a new thing to have American women pass up Paris and the big cities.

Earned Extra Cash for Trip.

Mrs. Herman of Woodbine is one of the many delegates wno earned every penny for the trip by extra work around the farm. She canned peas and canned chicken; she took in summer guests and did district nursing to get the money to come. It took her three years of saving. She is going to Interlaken and then on to Italy and then back to tour England, Scotland and to sail from Ireland early in August.

The conference itself is a colorful event. At the ceremonial opening, a mediæval trumpeter, complete in the brightly hued tunic and tights of the days of Good Queen Bess, announced each speaker with a fanfare.

The national costumes of the Scandinavians and the Balkan peoples and the Slavs and the Greeks make great splashes of color against the somber blacks and the tailored grays of the English and American women.

The members of the Illinois delegation were taken on a trip to Windsor castle and Eton college and on their return were entertained by Lady Astor at her beautiful estate at Cliveden on the Thames. They also spent a week-end as guests of an old world village in Essex and attended a folk dance festival unique to that county. They made a tour of Kent through the miles and miles of hop fields and on to Canterbury, along the old Roman road, which has seen 2,000 years of travel. Hostesses showed them around the cathedral, the tombs of Henry IV. and the Black Prince, and the shrine of Thomas a' Becket.

King Zog and Queen Seek to Make Home in England

LONDON, June 16.—(AP)—King Zog and Queen Geraldine of Albania were said in official circles today to have asked permission to make their home in England. These quarters said the former ruler and his Hungarian-American wife, exiles since the Italian Good Friday invasion of Albania, would be allowed to live in Britain on condition that they refrain from political activity. They are now in Turkey.

GUILLOTINE ENDS LIFE OF SLAYER OF U. S. DANCER

Crowds Watch Execution Near French Prison.

VERSAILLES, France, June 17 [Saturday].—(AP)—Eugene Weidmann died at dawn today on a French guillotine for the murder of six persons, including the young Brooklyn, N. Y., dancer, Jean Dekoven.

Shortly after midnight erection of the guillotine was begun before the door of St. Pierre prison and at 4:33 a. m. [10:33 p. m. Friday, Chicago time], the 31 year old former German convict paid with his life.

A crowd of 8,000 had gathered near the prison to witness the execution.

Asks Chaplain's Aid.

At midnight republican guards in full dress uniform formed a hollow square in Louis Bartou square, outside the prison, while "Uncle Leopold" Despourneaux, hereditary executioner of France, prepared for his job.

Aged "Uncle Leopold" succeeded the late Anatole Deibler and performed his first execution Feb. 4, two days after the former master of the guillotine died.

Weidmann asked the prison chaplain, Abbe Fontaine, to accompany him from his death cell to comfort him during drinking of the traditional ritual cup of rum and smoking the last cigaret. This followed the prison governor's formal announcement that "Eugene Weidmann, your time has come to die."

Accomplice Moved.

Weidmann's accomplice, Roger Million, was informed yesterday that President Lebrun had commuted his sentence to life imprisonment. He was removed from an adjoining cell where he used to tap code messages through the wall to Weidmann.

Weidmann led a "murder-for-profit" ring operating from a suburban St. Cloud villa.

Miss Dekoven, on a visit to Paris, was lured to Weidmann's villa July 23, 1937, strangled and buried under the porch for 5,000 francs and $500 in travelers checks. She once was a dancing student in Chicago.

Husband Jailed

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. HAROLD OLSEN.

Harold Olsen of Round Lake was sent to alimony row in the county jail for six months yesterday for being in arrears $700 to his divorced wife, Jean, for support of their two children, Joan, 6 years old, and Dolores, 5. Mrs. Olsen complained to Judge Robert C. O'Connell that her husband said he was unable to send her any money because he needed his funds to build an icehouse. She lives at 4501 Washington street.

DEATH ATTRIBUTED TO HEAT.

Edward Gerner, 65 years old, 111 Wacker drive, a retired musician and Spanish-American war veteran, died in front of 64 West Huron street yesterday of a heart attack that was attributed to the heat.

CLIPPER TO FLY 30 ON ATLANTIC CROSSING TODAY

All Is Ready to Start Passenger Service.

Fuel Poured Into Tanks.

When the plane was moored again the maintenance crews began pouring 3,200 gallons of 87 octane gasoline into the ship's huge wing and hull tank. The hull tanks are in the water wings, or hydrostabilizers, that balance the ship when it is at rest on the water.

The airplane has a total capacity of 4,200 gallons, but this much fuel cuts down the available pay load. Since pay load is the revenue producing part of the load, every air line company naturally is anxious to carry as much as safety will permit.

In the case of Pan-American Airways, weather forecasts determine the final fuel load. Allen Clark, Atlantic division meteorologist, was ready today when Capt. Culbertson and Capt. Winston completed their flying tests. He had a detailed weather map of the Atlantic as far as the Azores completely drawn.

Weather Map Studied.

All three men looked at the map and Clark drew for the two pilots a cross-section, or vertical picture, of the weather to supplement the surface map. Cloud levels, wind direction and velocity, temperatures and barometric pressures were discussed.

This was merely a preliminary step in a procedure that will be completed tomorrow after the Atlantic Clipper is flown up to Port Washington. The latest weather reports, which will arrive about 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, will be used to bring the weather map up to date.

Capt. Culbertson, Meteorologist Clark, and C. H. Schildhauer, operations manager for the Atlantic division, will then talk over the weather together. If one of them is doubtful about the conditions, the trip will be postponed. If all agree it can be flown, Capt. Culbertson will determine the route.

Several Routes Possible.

There are several routes possible—a direct great circle course, a moderately northern course, a northerly northern course, a moderately southern course, and a far southern course. All these courses will have as their destination Horta, the Azores, 2,397 miles from New York by direct line. The five alternate routes have been worked out so that the plane can choose the most favorable.

Tonight the weather appears favorable, with light tail winds over the entire route. If the reports tomorrow show there is no change in the weather, the direct great circle course probably will be chosen, and the seventeen hour schedule may be bettered.

After a one hour stop at Horta the flight will be continued to Lisbon, Portugal, another 1,050 miles. An all-night stop will be made at Lisbon and the flight to Marseilles, France, the terminal point, will be made early the following morning. The distance from Lisbon to Marseilles is 1,203 miles because the flight is made around Spain and into the Mediterranean over water all the way.

Leaving New York at 2 p. m. Chicago time tomorrow, the Atlantic Clipper is scheduled to arrive at Horta at 2 a. m. Sunday morning. This is 7 a. m. Horta time.

Tool Thief Gets 6 Months; 90 Days for Accomplice

Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday sentenced Frank Kochanski, 28 years old, 2421 North Marmora avenue, to six months in the county jail. John Sytniowski, 35, 2517 North Lotus avenue, got ninety days. The men pleaded guilty to larceny after the charges were reduced from burglary. They were arrested for the theft of tools worth $157 from the Standard Lime and Stone company, 2101 North Monitor avenue, where they were once temporarily employed as laborers.

NAZI LIQUOR BOUT BEFORE SLAYING OF CZECH BARED

Tell How Germans Fired Through Window.

PRAGUE, Bohemia, June 16.—(AP)—A special Nazi tribunal tonight worked toward swift conclusion of the trial of two German policemen, George Bulla and Paul Stehr, charged with killing Johann Mueller, a Czech policeman, at Nachod on June 9.

A verdict was expected tomorrow at the latest after only one day of hearings. No appeal from the tribunal's verdict is possible.

Three barmaids testified that the German policemen drank 47 marks' [$18.80] worth of beer, wine, and cognac in a Nachod bar the night of the killing and later went through the streets shooting into the air.

Officers Describe Killing.

Two Czech fellow officers of Mueller testified that he was shot through the head as he pressed against the wall of the Nachod police station in an attempt to avoid the Germans' gunfire through a window six feet away.

The witnesses said Bulla and Stehr shot through the guardroom window and then climbed in. The two Germans, however, asserted they fired in self-defense.

The Czech officers declared they heard seven shots fired before the Germans reached the station. German police finally arrived and disarmed Bulla and Stehr, the witnesses said. Then, they stated, none of the Czech weapons in the station was found to have been fired.

Troops Move Toward Poland.

ZILINA, Slovakia, June 16.—(AP)—More than 20,000 German troops have moved through this city in the past few days, heading for the Polish frontier. A German military mission, headed by three generals, is staying at a hotel here.

[Regular summer maneuvers are taking place throughout Germany, Berlin dispatches state, and troops may be seen on the highways moving in every direction. Zilina in northwestern Slovakia is twenty miles from the Polish frontier. Germany established a military protectorate over Slovakia on March 16 during the breakup of Czecho-Slovakia.]

The streets of Zilina are crowded with German troops. In contrast with southern Slovakia, which is quiet, this section is teeming with German military activity. At Trencin, on the road from Bratislava to Zilina, there are many German soldiers with motorized equipment.

The Slovak government and its Nazi protectors have drafted a program for construction of highways leading to the Polish frontier. War Minister Ferdinand Csatlos said the highways probably would be of military significance.

NAZIS WON'T TAKE BLAME FOR U.S. WARTIME BLASTS

BERLIN, June 16.—(AP)—A semi-official announcement said today that the German government does not recognize the validity of the American mixed claims commission's decision holding the reich responsible for the world war Black Tom and Kingsland munitions disasters.

"It is emphasized here," the statement said, "that the decision does not jibe with the prescribed procedure and furthermore that it was taken as a signal for a new anti-German campaign."

The statement pointed out that no German sat on the commission.

(An international commission at Washington, D. C., Thursday, upheld American claims that German saboteurs were responsible for the Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., explosions in 1916 and 1917. The ruling reversed a Hamburg decision of 1930 which absolved Germany of any connection with the disasters).

Ireland Appoints Hearne Commissioner to Canada

It is understood that Canada will appoint a similar official for Dublin. A high commissioner for Ireland has been maintained in London since the Free State was first set up.

WPA WORKERS PLAY WITH DYNAMITE AND THEY ARE LUCKY LADS

It was rather cool early yesterday and WPA Watchmen John Casey, Walter Voss, and Israel Samuels, working on a project at Wallace street and Englewood avenue, looked around for kindling to build a fire.

Casey soon found a box containing what he thought were ten sticks of wood. He hurried back to the WPA shack where Voss and Samuels had already started a fire and tossed the box to Voss. Voss took a stick out of the box and nonchalantly tossed it into the fire. It smoldered and smoked but made poor kindling.

"Here, take it back," said Voss in disgust. He fished the smoldering stick out, put it back in the box with the nine other sticks, and tossed the box to Casey. Casey threw the box outside.

WPA Foreman John Fisher found the box yesterday. He learned what had happened and called the bomb squad. Sergt. Marshall Pidgeon investigated. He made his report to Lieut. Andrew Aitken last night. Here is what he wrote:

"Mr. Casey, Mr. Voss, and Mr. Samuels might not know it, but they're mighty lucky men. The sticks in the box were dynamite, and the only reason they didn't explode was that they were damp from rain."

Nazis Put Ban on Singing in Prague's Dance Halls

COURT TO STUDY HOME LIFE OF SOCIAL WORKER

Anton Vlcek of 5456 Greenwood avenue is a Juvenile court probation officer. His estranged wife, Nellie, of 328 East Huron street, is a social service worker for the Chicago Relief administration.

Yesterday Judge Rudolph Desort directed the court social service department to investigate the home life of both in an effort to settle their fight over custody of a son, Anton Jr., 3 years old.

Mrs. Vlcek has a suit for divorce pending. She charged that three days after their separation last May 24 her husband took the child from her. Vlcek said his wife's apartment is not the proper environment for the child. She asserted she is well qualified to care for the child.

Judge Desort continued the hearing until June 30 and directed that Mrs. Vlcek could visit her son on weekends and on Tuesday evenings.

Heart Attack Fatal to Don C. Porter, Attorney

Don C. Porter, a lawyer for the Sinclair Refining company, died suddenly of a heart attack in his home at 7723 Sheridan road. He had just returned with his wife, Mildred, from a stroll. Mr. Porter was 48 years old. Dr. M. G. Flannery, 1791 Howard street, and inhalator squad 9 under Lieut. Walter Carlson worked for an hour in an effort to revive him. Mr. Porter is survived, in addition to his widow, by two daughters, Claire, a student at Northwestern university, and Alice, and a son, Stephen.

CALL DETECTIVE AS A WITNESS IN LOVE THEFT SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., June 16.—(AP)—Private Detective John Worley testified today he saw Singer Ruth Etting and her former accompanist, Myrl Alderman, in scenes of domestic felicity at two residences months before they were married.

Worley was a witness in the trial of Mrs. Alma Alderman's $150,000 "love theft" suit against the songstress.

He said he and the divorced former Mrs. Alderman, his employer, watched Miss Etting and Alderman enter a Beverly Hills house one night last August and then leave the next morning. A few weeks later the couple entered Alderman's North Hollywood home as he and Mrs. Alderman were hidden nearby.

"The lights went out about 1 a. m. and Mrs. Alderman and I left about half an hour later. I went back alone about 7 o'clock the next morning. I saw Miss Etting in pajamas open the door to let out a little spotted dog. About 11:40 a. m. I saw Alderman leave the house."

CZECHS PROTEST NAZI TREATMENT OF COUNTRYMEN

A protest meeting against alleged Nazi atrocities and persecution of the Czech people in Bohemia and Moravia was held last night at the Sokol Havlicek-Tyrs hall at 2617 South Lawndale avenue under the direction of the Czech American National alliance. The gathering, which was attended by more than 1,500 Czechs, was addressed by Bohus Benes, nephew of Dr. Edward Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia; Dr. Gerhard Schacher, German refugee and author, and Joseph Martinek, executive secretary of the Czecho-Slovak National Council of America. Carl Prohal, president of the Sokol union, presided at the meeting.

IN COMMON CAUSE

By CALEB

"NOTHING so quickly turns the purchasing male of the species into a fellow-fan and enthusiast—rather than a customer—as the buying of sport merchandise! And with the possible exception of golf . . . which, on second thought, I might not except, at that . . . no category of sports equipment works this miracle so completely as fishing tackle."

My informant was the head of the sporting goods section in our Store for Men. Sensing my interest, he became specific. "Take many of our regular year-after-year patrons . . . among them governors, publishers, politicians, captains of industry, writers, Hollywood headliners, and similar celebrities of all sorts. Outside our doors, many of them are reported to be aloof and hard to approach. But let them drop in here for fishing equipment, and watch the immediate transformation!

"Once he gets to arguing tackle, the $5,000-a-week screen idol is just an enthusiastic fisherman! Fishing is the humanizer of all social levels. Many a celebrity has found that here's one place where he can completely forget 'big affairs' and be himself.

"That's why outfitting fishermen is forever interesting. Personal distinctions are flung to the wind. Every comer is a member of the same piscatorial brotherhood—a brotherhood so big we must provide every variety of equipment to correspond. Yonder, for instance, is a fifty-pound rod-and-reel combination that carries a thousand yards of 54-thread line, tested to 162 pounds, and will land a 2,000-pound fish. Over here, by contrast, is a three-ounce rod for small pan fish, as well as other suitable tackle for every river, lake or deep-sea fishing requirement.

"Two radio stars ordered three outfits, just a few days ago, that I spent a whole evening rigging up. They like extremely light tackle and short, light rods; so I sent them one 7½-foot and two 7-foot rods, each carefully matched with the right line and reel for stiff, medium and light action: and all properly numbered, to avoid mixup in assembly when they arrive."

"But isn't fishing an expensive sport?" I queried. "I mean, to do it in style?" "Not at all," he assured me. "That's the beauty of being a fisherman—the thrills of it are priceless; yet the yen for them can be gratified, if necessary, on the most modest of budgets."

AIR MAIL SPECIAL TO FAR SOUTHERN CITIES EFFECTIVE

Beats Regular Letters to Miami by 25 Hours.

(This is the fifth and last article in a series on postal service as reflected in a study made by The Tribune.)

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Substantial time savings through use of air mail to distant points in the southeast and southwest are shown in the last phase of the postal survey conducted by THE TRIBUNE.

Air mail to Miami, Fla., was found to be almost 21 hours faster than regular mail. A letter sent to Chicago from Miami by air special delivery was delivered 70 hours ahead of one sent by rail. Savings of from 20 to 24 hours were noted in test mailings by air to and from Chicago and Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex.

Air Mail Not Always Ahead.

The survey previously has dealt with the service between Chicago and Washington, New York, and cities in the west and east. Besides the three cities already mentioned, the southern test included St. Louis, Mo.; Memphis, Tenn.; New Orleans, La.; Louisville, Ky., and Atlanta, Ga. Air mail, however, did not always hold its own against the regular 3 cent mail at some of these points.

The survey was concerned with the four principal divisions of the postal service: regular first class mail, special delivery, air mail, and special delivery air mail. One letter in each classification was sent to Tribune correspondents in the southern cities on a recent business day when flying conditions were reported favorable.

In each letter was a notation of the service utilized and the hour of mailing. As the mail was delivered each piece was time stamped. A day or two later the correspondents sent similar letter groups to Chicago, the same routine being followed.

Prompt Collections Important.

The exchange of mail between Chicago and St. Louis showed that prompt collections from receptacles by the postoffice can do much to speed up the service. A special delivery letter dropped into the chute at Tribune Tower lay there more than three hours. Fourteen hours and 30 minutes elapsed between mailing and delivery.

A special delivery letter dropped into the chute at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch building at 11:25 a. m. was postmarked at noon. It was delivered here 8 hours and 40 minutes later.

[Because St. Louis observes central standard time, an hour behind Chicago daylight time, an hour is added in computing the elapsed time of Chicago to St. Louis mail. An hour is subtracted from the time of St. Louis to Chicago letters. The same method was used on the other cities in the central time belt; in the case of Miami, which is in the eastern time zone, no differential was necessary.]

CHICAGO TO ST. LOUIS.

10:00 a. m.	air spl.	9:10 p. m.	12 h. 10 m.

11:25 a. m.	regular	7:30 a. m.	19 h. 5 m.

In the tests with Memphis [543 miles by air and 527 by rail] it was noted that the special delivery air mail letter made almost as good time as the one sent to St. Louis. It was noted also that the late Memphis mailing [6:15 p. m.] resulted in faster service for all classifications except the air special. The record:

6:15 p. m.	regular	1:00 p. m.	17 h. 45 m.

A failure in the special delivery service was reflected by the tests with Louisville [304 miles by rail and 270 by air]. The special delivery air mail and the straight air mail were delivered together the day after being posted in Chicago, though the Louisville postmark on the back of the special shows it arrived at 9 p. m. of the same day.

Rail Special Beats Plane.

The special which went by rail arrived at 10 p. m. and was delivered 40 minutes later, beating the air special by more than 22 hours. The straight mail letter was picked up at the postoffice at the same time. Normally it would have been delivered along with the air special and air mail letters. The Louisville to Chicago air mail was delivered at Tribune Tower 41 minutes ahead of the air special. This probably was due to the precautionary handling by which the postoffice safeguards specials. The record:

Air mail showed up poorly both to and from Atlanta [733 miles by rail and 648 by air]. The rail special delivery was 2 hours and 20 minutes ahead of it, and the regular mail was only 1 hour 30 minutes behind it on the southbound trip. Northbound regular mail was delivered 1 hour and 30 minutes ahead of air mail, and the rail special delivery was 14 hours and 34 minutes ahead of it. The record:

It was to distant Miami [1,499 miles by rail and 1,275 by air] that the special delivery air mail made one of its best showings. It was nearly 5 hours faster than regular air mail, 24 hours faster than specials by rail, and 25 hours and 30 minutes faster than regular mail.

On the trip northbound special delivery air mail beat the air mail by 1 hour, the rail specials by almost 34 hours, and the regular mail by 70 hours. The record:

Time savings through use of air mail and special delivery air mail also were shown by the tests between Chicago and Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex. Fort Worth is 1,024 miles by rail and 961 by air. Dallas is 994 by rail and 931 as the mail planes fly. It was in this phase of the survey that the only letters were lost. Though mailed from Chicago they never reached their destinations, nor were they returned to the address printed on the envelopes. The record:

In the Dallas test the special delivery air mail was 12 hours faster than the rail special and 40 faster than the regular 3 cent letter. An air mail letter was lost. The record:

CHICAGO TO DALLAS.

3:00 p. m.	regular	7:30 a. m.	39 h. 30 m.

Because of a failure in arrangements at New Orleans, the test with that city is incomplete. Only one of the four letters sent there was time-stamped. This was the air mail letter which was posted here at 10 a. m. and was delivered there at 7:10 a. m.—an elapsed time of 22 hours 10 minutes.

Straight Air Mail Lags.

Special delivery and regular letters mailed there in the early morning were delievered here the following afternoon. They could have been posted several hours later and still have been put aboard the Illinois Central's Panama Limited—a 20 hour train. The special delivery air mail service was far head of special delivery and regular mail, but the straight air mail's showing against the regular was not so impressive. The record:

NEW ORLEANS TO CHICAGO.

7:20 a. m.	air spl.	6:40 p. m.	10 h. 20 m.

7:20 a. m.	regular	1:00 p. m.	28 h. 40 m.

The conclusion to be drawn from the survey as a whole is that intelligent use of the postal service by business men will greatly expedite the transmission of their mail. It has been shown also that the use of air mail and special delivery to some cities is unnecessary, but is vital for quick delivery to others. Finally, the survey shows the service to the east and near west is excellent.

Mail Service Speeds Compared

The diagrams below show time saved by use of special mail services over the time required for regular delivery from and to several cities. A. S. D. stands for air mail special delivery; A. for air mail, and S. D. for special delivery.

TIGHTEN CURBS ON FIREWORKS IN CHICAGO AREA

City, Suburbs Seek Strict Law Enforcement.

Stricter control over fireworks in the Chicago area is being attempted this year, a survey of the city, suburbs, and unincorporated county districts showed yesterday. The biggest loophole, as in the past, will lie, it was indicated, in lax regulations and enforcement in Cook and Lake counties.

The state law prohibits the sale of fireworks except between June 27 and July 4. Cook county prohibits their sale and use within thirty feet of highway right of ways and 100 feet of filling stations. Lake county prohibits sale and use within 100 feet of taverns also.

County Permits Ignored.

Cook county also requires a permit issued by the county board to stands operating in unincorporated areas. But the county board staff admitted yesterday that none had been issued or even requested for the last two years, although there were countless stands in the county last year and the year before. More are anticipated this year. County highway police are being left pretty much to their own discretion, so far as instructions from the county board are concerned.

One county area always a thorn in the side of nearby municipalities which try to enforce their bans is that extending north and south from 95th street along Western avenue, part of which is in the village of Evergreen Park.

The village puts no restrictions on fireworks. This row of stands usually extends from a mile to a mile and a half in length, and the concessions are said to be largely under political control. These stands have not sprung up yet this year, but previously they have been built on the edge of the sidewalk, within twelve feet of the highway.

2 Booths Already Open.

Another county area that always is decorated with the stands is that along Milwaukee avenue between Chicago and Niles. Two booths were there yesterday, a bit earlier than usual.

Suburbs all around the city are trying to enforce their prohibitions. Few will permit sales. Some will allow use of fireworks, for they do not have sufficient police to prevent it. Those who will permit sale say they would stop it if the county would keep the mushroom stands out of business.

Towns on the north that will prohibit fireworks sale or use include Waukegan, Zion, North Chicago, Lake Bluff, Highwood, Highland Park, Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Glencoe, Glenview, Niles Center, Niles, Lincolnwood, and Des Plaines. Although Lake Forest has a prohibitory ordinance, it will, as in years before, allow firecrackers up to two inches long, which must be fired off the main streets.

3 West Suburbs Permit Sale.

Three west side suburbs will permit sale of fireworks by American Legion posts for charity. These are Maywood, Melrose Park, and Forest Park. Brookfield may do the same, but there has been no decision yet. Lyons will allow sale and use. Cicero, according to Chief Theodore Svoboda, will not allow fireworks this year. River Forest will not allow sale, but will allow use of firecrackers on July 4.

La Grange, Western Springs, and Riverside prohibit fireworks and enforce their prohibitions. The same is true of Bellwood and Oak Park, but Oak Park will have a public display as usual.

Chicago Heights and Blue Island again will permit sale but will restrict the number of licenses. Flossmoor, Homewood, and Harvey prohibit all fireworks and will enforce their ban this year as before.

Inside Chicago, the ordinances serve to prevent fireworks, except at public displays. Sale of certain types of fireworks is permitted but use is not, save when a policeman and a fireman both are present. Fines are provided for violation, and Police Commissioner Allman said last night that the ordinances will be enforced.

DEATH TAKES BOY, 6, TO OFFICE OF DOCTOR WHO AIDED AT BIRTH

Louis and George Zerden, twins 6 years old, were playing beside a slip of the river at 25th street and Damen avenue yesterday when Louis fell in.

Louis Zerden.

George ran into Damen avenue screaming. Passers-by followed him to the slip and tried to rescue Louis. He was unconscious when he was dragged ashore. A fire department rescue squad was unable to revive him.

As a last hope Police Lieutenant Thomas Sheridan carried the body to the nearby office of Dr. Joseph Ursich, 1901 Cermak road.

"I know the boy," said Dr. Ursich. "I assisted at the birth of the twins, but I can't do anything for him now. He's dead."

CONFIRM ALLEN AS SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER, 46 TO 1

The city council by a vote of 46 to 1 yesterday formally approved the appointment of John D. Allen, vice president of the Brinks Express company and a prominent church layman, as a member of the board of education. He will fill one of two vacancies existing since May 1.

Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th] voted against Allen's appointment. He said that Illinois law requires that a member of the board be a resident of the city for at least five years prior to his appointment and that there is a serious doubt as to Allen's residence qualifications.

"I am making no criticism of Mr. Allen's character," Douglas said, "but the poll list of the Edgewater Beach hotel, which he gives as his residence, does not have his name, nor does his name appear on the taxing roll in that district."

Informed later of Ald. Douglas' stand, Allen asserted that he considered Chicago his legal residence. He said he formally had lived at 1420 Lake Shore drive until last November, when he moved to the Edgewater Beach hotel. "Naturally I spend the summer on my Libertyville farm," he added.

3 MEN QUIZZED IN RAPE KILLING OF SCHOOL GIRL

Nashville, Tenn., June 16.—[Special.]—Three men were questioned tonight in connection with the rape-slaying of Marian Ellis, 12 years old, a school girl, who lived on a small farm at the edge of the city. Rewards totaling $600 for apprehension of the slayer have been posted.

The child's broken body was found last night in a culvert near her home. She had been strangled with a cord tied about her throat and gagged with her own underclothing.

Two of those questioned are Alban Vestal, 30 years old, of Knoxville, and Robert Wright Jr., 44. Both were said to have been seen in the vicinity of the Ellis home recently. The third man is George Wilson, 22, a Negro, who lives near the scene of the crime.

HOUSING LOTTERY UNSOUND, ASSERT REALTY DEALERS

Oppose Injecting Gambling Into Home Owning.

Legislation introduced Thursday in Springfield to finance a Chicago slum clearing housing project through sale of lottery tickets was viewed with a mixture of amusement and alarm yesterday by real estate men.

The bill, introduced by Representative Carmen Vacco [D., Chicago] was passed by the house. Under the measure the state would sponsor the sale of lottery tickets to the public.

Most of the Chicago realty operators branded the scheme unsound and expressed astonishment that the bill had received serious consideration. One labeled it a "haywire" idea. Others expressed belief that the bill is unconstitutional.

Gambling Element Opposed

Views of those opposed to injecting the element of gambling into the investment sphere of real estate were summed up by Percy Wilson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., in charge of real estate activities.

"Gambling is hardly the foundation upon which to predicate housing and stable community development," he said. "Saving and thrift are the essence of home ownership. The lottery scheme is entirely unsound."

"Nobody expected the bill to be given serious consideration because of the lottery feature," said Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council committee on housing. "I question the constitutionality of the entire scheme."

"Sounds Like Comedy," Says Loeber.

"I thought the idea was a joke because of the peculiar method of financing," said Paul C. Loeber, president of the Chicago Real Estate board. "Lotteries are illegal and this bill sounds like comedy. I wonder what the reaction of the people will be."

"Rehabilitation of slum areas demands more serious thought," said Fred M. Lorish, a real estate operator. "This idea is haywire."

Mark Levy, a past president of the realty board, expressed confidence that opposition from home owners would block adoption of the plan. "Let people gamble on the horses if they must, but keep gambling from real estate," he said. "I'm afraid this scheme would degenerate into a racket. Gov. Horner won't sign this bill, for it's clearly unconstitutional."

May Be Worth Trial, Says One.

"Perhaps my ideas are unorthodox," said Graham Aldis, "but I think this is as proper a form of gambling as going to the bookies. Maybe it's worth a trial."

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, head of the Methodist church of the Chicago area, said that thoughtful citizens would hesitate to indorse a lottery, even in the interests of a so-called good cause.

"It never is justifiable to do evil to get a result that may be classified as good or desirable," he said.

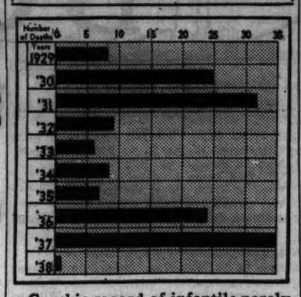
Parent-Teacher Group Hits Plan.

Seven hundred members of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, in conference yesterday in the Stevens hotel, condemned the proposal.

While no official action of protest could be taken by the group, which included only program chairmen and council presidents, a program theme for the coming year was adopted for submission to the various councils.

The suggested theme, according to Mrs. Holland Flager, state program chairman, will be "Building Attitudes Toward Higher Americanism."

Paralysis Warning



Graphic record of infantile paralysis deaths in Chicago from 1929 to 1938, inclusive. There have been none so far this year.

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Urging parents to protect children against fatigue and exposure to crowds, the state health department today warned that an increasing prevalence of infantile paralysis is all but certain during the disease's season, which lies "immediately ahead."

"Since 1929 the annual number of cases reported has varied from 107 to 799," a bulletin said. "This history suggests the likelihood of at least 100 cases and possibly 200 or 300 before November."

The department reported the prevalence of influenza, pneumonia, and whooping cough as running higher to date than last year, although other "common" diseases declined during the same period.

YOUTHS CONFESS THEFT OF $1,000; HAVE A GAY TIME

Two youths who spent more than $1,000 of stolen money on gay times were arrested by Oak Park police last night. They are William Kress, 19 years old, and Fred Peters, also 19, both rooming at 312 Washington boulevard, Maywood.

According to police, they confessed that on May 9 Kress stole $1,118 from the vault of the Individual Towel and Cabinet Service company, 3258 Lawrence avenue, where he was employed as a clerk.

Then he bought an automobile for $600 and took Peters with him on a round of entertainment at night clubs and shows. They had only $50 of the loot left when they were arrested.

40TH WARD WINS 3 YEAR FIGHT ON REFUSE DUMPING

The three year fight of residents of the 40th ward to keep the city from dumping refuse and garbage in a tract along the north branch of the river between Irving Park boulevard and Montrose avenue appeared ended yesterday. Milton D. Smith, assistant corporation counsel, announced that the city had stopped dumping refuse there last Monday. Attorney Harold R. Kjellander then withdrew a petition asking that Mayor Kelly, Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, and Ald. Joseph Ross [40th] be cited for contempt for violation of an injunction forbidding city dumping.

BUCKNER'S FEATS AMAZE COURT IN BOND FRAUD CASE

His Story of Getting Help from McNutt Told.

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Judge, jury, and audience listened with amazement today in federal court to the story of the exploits of William P. Buckner Jr., playboy and promoter extraordinary, who is on trial in a $1,000,000 mail fraud case involving the manipulation of defaulted Philippine railway bonds.

W. P. Buckner Jr. [Acme Photo.]

The happy go lucky defendant listened pridefully at the reading of a report in which he claimed he persuaded Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner to the Philippines, to give him access to confidential reports of the United States army.

[Wayne Coy, an aid of McNutt, denied in Washington that the commissioner coöperated in any way with Buckner in bond deals, saying he was present at an interview between McNutt and Buckner in Manila in 1937, and that McNutt asserted then that the Philippine government would not redeem the bonds at any price. McNutt is now en route to Washington from Manila.]

Letter Read in Court.

Buckner at the time was in the Philippines seeking to induce the Manila government to purchase the defaulted bonds he was promoting. In a report he sent to a bondholders' protective committee and read today in court he said McNutt let him see confidential army reports "relating to personalities of certain Philippine officials as well as a study of the general Philippine psychology."

The government charges that Buckner disseminated false information that he could persuade the Philippine government to redeem the bonds and that as a result of this the market price of the defaulted securities leaped from 13 to 31.

Another exploit of the young promoter was his reported arrangement of an "approach" to President Quezon of the Philippines, and Felipe Buencamino, chairman of the Nationalist party and acting speaker of the Philippine legislature, which might result in the redemption of the bonds.

Bribery in Bonds Told.

Buencamino is one of the four codefendants on trial with Buckner and accused of consenting—after being bribed with $200,000 worth of the bonds—to go along with the American promoter in his plan to reap a fortune on the defaulted securities.

Lee S. Walden, a member of the bondholders' protective committee, testified that Buckner cynically commented to him concerning Buencamino: "He has to be taken care of. You know these Filipinos are orientals; you have to bribe them a little."

Efforts were made by Buckner's attorney to show the Washington parties his client gave—and at which show girls and liquor abounded, according to previous testimony—were not in vain, as far as the bondholders' interests were concerned.

The lawyer read to the jury a resolution introduced in the senate by Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts and the late Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York urging the United States to give the Philippine railway financial aid which the Philippine government was unable to provide. Nothing apparently came of the resolution, however.

Brilliant Touch in Ben Hecht's Fantastic Tales

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Book of Miracles," by Ben Hecht. [Viking, $2.75.] Published yesterday.

Seven long, brilliantly fantastic tales, all of which have some superhuman manipulation in their plot twisting, make up this book, which, with his "Thousand and One Nights," will keep green the name of Ben Hecht as a writer. Much of Ben Hecht's brilliance as a creator of fiction and as an ironic commentator on life has been lost in the golden shadow of his cinema success. Here in these tales, which may seem sheer madness to the ultra-literal-minded, that brilliance emerges shining.

Ben Hecht.

These stories are not for them, nor for the simple of soul, although they may well please the sophisticated pure in heart. A God that talks, the journey of a movie star to heaven and back, the archangel Michael wandering about the earth, ghosts interrupting national chain radio programs with an amateur hour of their own, an ant that wrote on the President's shirt front, and two gloomy angels hovering over New York's tallest building because they are waiting for a soul imprisoned in a steel girder may not be acceptable to those readers who live by their senses, and many may be shocked by such familiarity with divinity.

In each of the tales—even the hilariously funny ones—there is a subtle plea for man's humanity, not inhumanity, to man. Some of the stories are vilifications of the special inhumanity of men against their Jewish brothers, "The Little Candle" and "Death of Eleazer" especially. Some are satires as unsubtle in meaning and as subtle in phrasing as have come from any American pen—the kind of humor which Mark Twain is said to have delighted in, a sort of horse play of satire so bedizened with brilliance that the guffaw is elegantly covered by a shield of pyrotechnic words. "The Heavenly Choir," which actually abolishes radio, and "The Missing Idol," which figuratively washes up the movies, are the gems of that genre.

These stories are sprawly. Their techniques are recognizable neither as pattern plots, satires, diatribes, nor buffoonery. They are as nonconformist as their subjects. But they have a vitality, a dash, a punch of their own, compounded of their faults and their virtues, that make them a heady brew.

An Ideal Hammock Novel

"William's Room," by Alice Grant Rosman. [Putnam, $2.] Published yesterday.

Regularly every June, Alice Grant Rosman of London offers to an ever growing group of her devotees a book which never fails to be the perfect hammock novel. Her characters are always simple, pleasant, amusing, courageous human beings, not too simple to speak with distinction and to think with an unusual quirk of the mind, and neither too bright nor too good for human nature's daily food. They are men and women, almost always of two generations, who might be anybody, but are magically themselves. There is always among the characters a minor one, either a cat or a dog, whose importance varies, but whose naturalness and charm never do.

This year Miss Rosman tells of a woman lately bereaved of her husband by death and of her two older children, one by marriage and the other by a journey to America. The mother takes a paying guest into her home in the hope that another woman in the house will salve her loneliness and also prevent her from clinging too possessively to her youngest daughter, returning from a finishing school.

The paying guest is no contemporary, but a shy, mysterious widow, halfway between the two generations which must adjust themselves to each other. The mystery is a gentle one. The adjustments, though promising trouble, finally are made comfortably. Love rears its head, but only to beam and never to ogle cruelly. And the reader enjoys a gentle and really uneventful chronicle because the author has a genius for making commonplace events human.

Alice Grant Rosman always has been the delight of booksellers whose customers rush in crying: "I want a book to send to somebody in the hospital. It's got to be cheerful and not too exciting, and yet I don't want an insult to an adult mind." Which reminds me of the book which one smart young book clerk sent in response to a demand for "a good exciting mystery for a man who has just retired from his job and has gone to the hospital with a nervous shock from having nothing to do." He sent Ngaio Marsh's "Overture to Death" [Furman, $2].

Real Life Story in Fiction

"Anne Minton's Life," by Myron Brinig. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

Myron Brinig, whose "The Sisters" was popular as a book and as a celluloid classic, and who later wrote of May Flavin, again chooses a woman as the central figure in his latest novel.

The story of Anne Minton has its counterpart in the real life story of John Warde, which appeared in all the newspapers last July. He shocked the world by standing on a window ledge of a New York hotel for a long day, calmly debating whether to jump, and finally jumping. With those utterly incredible but actual hours of tensity duplicated as background, Myron Brinig does a technical tour de force in this novel.

As Anne sits or stands on the ledge of the fifteenth floor of a Los Angeles hotel — eating sandwiches, drinking coffee, talking on the telephone, always careful to stay out of reach, deaf to the pleas of her sister, her brother-in-law, her mother, a policewoman, and a priest—not only her own destiny but also the destinies of onlookers, as desperate in their private ways as she in her public way, are resolved.

Anne's life story is pieced together in her memory, with its psychopathic maladjustments. She is a too sensitive girl, with beauty and only a decent poverty to clothe it; half mad over not so much love for as a sense of social inferiority to a young man, and her psychosis is aggravated by the attempts of her family to straighten out the kink in her mind by travel and treatment in a sanitarium.

Her plight is echoed in the lines of a young girl in the chorus of a musical comedy, whose ambition clashes with her love; in the life of the $25 a week young man who loves her to desperation, in the life of an actress to whom death seems literally the only way out of her difficulties, in the life of an aging man who has come to be known as a glamor boy, and in the life of a young woman whose husband's joblessness makes her dread motherhood. Anne's solution resolves all of the problems.

Mr. Brinig's book is more interesting as a technical feat than as a story. It lacks the lush detail of his previous novels.

A New Handbook Presents Edible Wild Plants of U. S.

The first complete handbook of America's wild menu has been compiled in "Edible Wild Plants," by Oliver Perry Medsger [Macmillan, $3.50]. Almost every edible plant in this country is described in detail.

Books Portray Varied Phases of Life in U. S.

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

The beauty and the tragedy, the exciting individuality and the stoic drabness, the colors and the sounds upon which is built America's greatness and its essential humanity are portrayed with gratifying freshness in these books.

New York Made Human

"Portrait of New York," by Felix Riesenberg and Alexander Alland. [Macmillan, $5.]

Artists Felix Riesenberg and Alexander Alland have put into their pen and camera portrait of New York exactly what they found, and the city emerges as a human thing, not a stilted and academic design.

Mr. Riesenberg's text is reminiscent of his novel, "East Side, West Side," yet it has a freshness that bespeaks an unflagging interest in the ever changing scene in New York. His essay covers food supplies and fashions, skyscrapers and scurvy, elevators and elections. It is factual in places, fanciful in others, yet always it is developing one of the many phases of the city. It is an impressive study and a beautiful piece of writing. In the same sincere tone are the pictures supplied by Mr. Alland.

Stories of Five Cities

"Five Cities," by George R. Leighton. [Harpers, $3.50.]

In the stories of five "typical" American cities, George R. Leighton has found an effective vehicle for this revealing and entertaining study of the country's growth. Birmingham, Ala.; Shenandoah, Pa.; Louisville, Ky.; Seattle, Wash., and Omaha, Neb., are his subjects.

In Birmingham he finds the metallic, impersonal story of great industry. In Shenandoah there is the somber, yet patiently human tale of the toilers. Louisville he sees as a decadent capital of an aristocratic and slightly overestimated era. Omaha, to him, is a brawny cowhand who lost his job and is seeking to become urbanized. Seattle, last outpost to the west, still looks to the exploitation of nature in hoping for the future, he says.

Picture of San Francisco

"San Francisco: West Coast Metropolis," by Edwin Rosskam. [Longmans, Green, $2.50.]

This picture book by a gifted photographer and writer is the second in a projected series of such studies to be called "The Face of America." This one concentrates on one of the most individual and hardiest cities of the country. Its pictures are excellent and representative. Its text is airy, well designed to tie the book together. Its introduction is by William Saroyan and can be skipped over lightly, with eyes closed.

As the Artists See It

"Eyes on America," edited by W. S. Hall. [Studio Publications, $3.50.]

The subtitle of this invaluable gallery of the best modern American art is the best description of the book's purpose and accomplishment—"The United States as seen by her leading artists." Eight of the pictures are in color, two hundred and twenty in black and white.

From Thomas Hart Benton to Grant Wood, and from the cold beauty of the Gaspé to the hot grandeur of Arizona, this collection is a gallant, affirmative argument in the debate, "Can Americans paint, and is there anything in America worth their efforts?".

Designer and Painter of Ships Tells Fine Tale of Sea in His First Novel

"The Seventh Plank," by William McDowell. [Putnam, $2.50.] Published a week ago yesterday.

Readers may find the early part of this first novel a bit dull, but they will be rewarded, if they keep on, with a fine tale of the sea. The last 100 pages would make an engrossing novelette by themselves.

William McDowell has been a ship designer and painter of ships for 20 years, and the heroic picture of the liner Queen Mary you see on travel folders is reproduced from one of his drawings. The slowly moving setting he provides in the first half of his novel is a small English coastal town where the big business is in the shipyard and the children are reared in a distinctly maritime atmosphere.

Brian Forbes follows his father's bent in designing. He contrives a ship stabilizer which, on its first try, goes disastrously wrong, and Forbes is dismissed in disgrace. He leaves England to roam the seas, carrying with him a scarred face from the war and the memory of a girl he once saw at a ship launching. This memory keeps him alive during his wanderings, and eventually it brings him back to England.

The last part of the story brings Forbes and the girl together in an episode which should excite sea fans and has the additional virtue of being fine romantic fiction. P. W.

An Admiral's Memoirs

"Sea Duty — the Memoirs of a Fighting Admiral," by Yates Stirling, rear admiral, United States Navy, retired. [Putnam, $3.]

There have been many memoirs of retired naval officers published in recent years but few if any as breezy, blunt, and well written as "Sea Duty." Admiral Yates Stirling takes his readers behind the scenes in Washington naval affairs and doesn't hesitate to criticize some of the mistakes of legislative landsmen who try to run the navy.

Yates Stirling.

The author's tempestuous naval career covered both the Spanish-American and the world wars, as well as stirring days on Yankee gunboats on Chinese rivers. He served on practically every type of naval craft and his story of navy life is a briskly told and inspiring narrative. His plucky fight against burocratic ignorance, indifference, and vindictiveness is lively reading. He believes that war in both Europe and in the Pacific eventually will come, and is an enthusiastic advocate of a powerful navy and naval bases. A. C.

New View of Louis XVI.

"The Life and Death of Louis XVI.," by Saul K. Padover. [Appleton-Century, $3.75.]

Louis XVI. generally has been praised for only one thing—his death. When he ascended the guillotine platform in the turbulent days of the French revolution he showed himself kingly for the first and last time in his reign.

This has been the popular conception of the young French monarch who married Marie Antoinette of Austria. He is said to have been a dull and a witless lout. In this, the first full length biography of him written in any language, a biography based on a study of French, British, and Austrian archives, he is shown in a surprising, sympathetic light.

Here Mr. Padover shows Louis, dauphin at 11, bridegroom at 16, king at 20, "the violet on the throne of the lily," as an eager, well meaning, and honest monarch whose sin lay only in having been born a Bourbon and having been neglected after birth.

Misguided, ill advised, torn by the blind political intrigues of Marie Antoinette, his head was severed, Mr. Padover points out, before his reign was well begun. Apparently Louis sensed his fate, for, a serious student of history, his favorite reading matter was the English civil war and the beheading of Charles I. Mr. Padover's biography is colorful, well documented, and an excellent study of a man. M. W.

Another Amusing Parody

"With Malice Toward All," by Irving D. Tressler. [Stackpole, $2.]

The man who wrote the parody, "How to Lose Friends and Alienate People," has a lot to say about assorted types of Americans in this new little book whose title parodies "With Malice Toward Some." It describes an automobile trip he took to Florida one winter recently. He pokes fun at the climate [which was chilly], at tourists, and at life as it's lived in a trailer.

Amusing pages lampoon the deep south from Charleston to Natchez and record the author's reactions to Williamsburg and to the home of Thomas Jefferson near Charlottesville. The chapters suffer from dull patches, for no writer can be funny all the time. Some passages intended to be humorous fall flat, but on the whole "With Malice Toward All" is smile-provoking. E. W.

Strategy of Thinking

"The Rhyme of Reason," by Roger W. Holmes. [Appleton-Century, $3.75.]

In 500 fascinating pages Roger W. Holmes, associate professor of philosophy at Mount Holyoke college has prepared what he calls an invitation to accurate and mature thinking. There is high grade intellectual fodder here for any one who is interested in the strategy of games, the solving of codes and ciphers, the construction of paradoxes and magic squares, and the development of logical argument. It is by no means a textbook; in fact, Mr. Holmes confesses to popularizing. Neither is the book superficial; it contains enough material for a half dozen books on logic. There are four major subdivisions of content—the structures of argument, of experimental procedure, of deductive systems, and of maturing thought. And for good measure twenty-five brain teasers are thrown in. Yes, the answers are included. S. M. K.

HATCH BILL HITS POLITICAL SNAG; PROMISES FADE

Would Curb Activities of Officials.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Two weeks ago Senator Carl Hatch [D., N. M.] had high hopes of favorable action by the house of representatives on his senate approved bill to outlaw pernicious political activity by government officials and employés.

Senator Hatch at that time came away from a White House conference convinced that President Roosevelt was wholeheartedly supporting his bill. He was further encouraged when Vice President Garner called him out of the senate and, in his presence, stated to reporters: "You can write this: The Hatch bill will be a law when congress adjourns." The Vice President had just returned from a White House conference.

Attitude Changes.

Now it appears, however, that Senator Hatch, a youthful idealist, is to be disillusioned. President Roosevelt had another conference yesterday and a different story emanated from the White House today.

The President told a press conference today that while all were agreed on the objectives of the bill, it had been badly drawn in the senate and should be redrafted in the house.

Representative Emanuel Celler [D., N. Y.], acting chairman of the house judiciary committee, and Representative Arthur D. Healey [D., Mass.], chairman of a judiciary subcommittee which has had the Hatch bill under consideration, reported that they and President Roosevelt felt that the measure is too broad.

"We must remove some of its absurdities and monstrosities," said Mr. Healey.

Hatch Denies Implications.

They told the President, said Messrs. Celler and Healey, that the Hatch bill would bar political activity, even speech making, in any reëlection campaign by any President or member of congress and would prevent members of the cabinet from making political speeches.

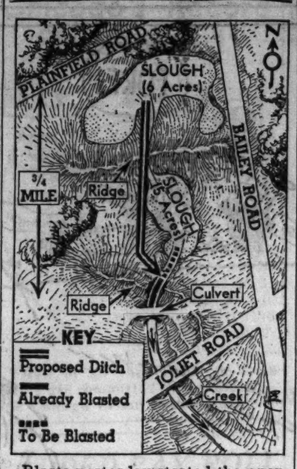
When apprised of this contention, Senator Hatch said it simply was not a fact. As it passed the senate, he declared, the bill would prohibit political activity by any administrative or supervisory employé of the government.

The bill also makes it unlawful for any one to coerce or intimidate government employés, including relief workers, the senator explained.

The senator's bill grew out of his failure last year to obtain adoption of an amendment to the relief bill to prohibit coercion of WPA workers. President Roosevelt's "Dear Alben" Barkley [D., Ky.] led the fight against the amendment.

Mr. Healey and Mr. Celler made it plain today that if the bill passes the house Senator Hatch will not recognize it.

Drain Mosquito Pond



Blasts yesterday started the opening of a ditch to drain a slough near Downers Grove. This job is an item in the Du Page county mosquito abatement program.

Representatives of the Du Page, Lake, and Cook county boards will meet Thursday to draw up a proposal for a WPA survey to determine what must be done to eliminate mosquitoes in the tri-county area. Announcement of the conference was made yesterday by Dr. Spencer S. Fuller, chairman of the tri-county mosquito abatement committee.

As Dr. Fuller made his announcement to the Du Page county board of supervisors, blasting of a drainage ditch was begun in Downers Grove township, on the eastern edge of the county, where a WPA project for mosquito elimination is being sponsored by the township. The blasting was done near Plainfield and Bailey roads.

Ford Charlton, in charge of the Downers Grove project, said a half mile long ditch to cut through two ridges and drain two sloughs, or swampy areas, will be blasted out by next week. The ditch will be three feet deep and eight feet wide.

BILL ON CHANGE IN STREET NAMES TO STIR PROTEST

Would Bar Restoration of Crawford Avenue.

Strong objections to passage of a bill intended to prevent changing the name of Pulaski road to its former designation of Crawford avenue will be made in Springfield next week.

Senator Peter P. Kielminski [D., Chicago], obtained passage of a bill in the senate Thursday which would nullify a law approved in 1937, making it mandatory for the Chicago city council to change a street name if owners of 60 per cent of the footage on the thoroughfare petitioned for the change.

Kielminski said he introduced the bill at the request of Polish societies who were back of the switch in name from Crawford to Pulaski road, in honor of Gen. Casimir Pulaski, who aided Washington in the American revolution. The city council voted the change in the face of objections from 70 per cent of the footage owners, Crawford business men declare. The formal change was made March 9, 1934.

Merchants to Protest.

Oscar S. Duensing, executive director of the Crawford Avenue association, will be in Springfield with a delegation of merchants to present the business men's side.

"We oppose the Kielminski bill because it would remove a legal protection against the promiscuous changing of street names," said Duensing.

Kielminski's bill received a vote of 37 to 3. It provides that the council, in its discretion, may change a name on petition of 60 per cent of the owners. The 1937 law was a mandatory direction to the council.

Those interested in renaming the street Crawford avenue filed signatures representing 72 per cent of the footage with the city council. Technical objections were made to a number of the signatures and the percentage thus was reduced to 58.

Additional Signatures Obtained.

Additional signatures then were sought and enough to return the percentage to approximately 67 were obtained and filed with the council. These new names were referred to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes on April 22 for an opinion as to whether they could be added to the 58 per cent on the original, revised petition. No ruling has been given.

One business man who supports the proposed change to Crawford avenue said yesterday he could not understand the legislative viewpoint in passing the Kielminski bill.

"First they pass the bill two years ago giving us a legal opportunity to change the name of our street if we fulfill a rather stringent provision," he said, "and now they vote to take that right from us."

HOUSE CHEERS, BOOS 3D TERM FOR ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—The house roared with mingled applause, laughter, and boos during its session on the relief appropriation bill tonight when Representative Raymond S. McKeough, a Chicago Democrat, flung in the name of President Roosevelt as a third term candidate before the members and listed Republican possibilities in opposition to him.

McKeough yelled, "I still think the people of America love President Roosevelt." He was interrupted by a burst of applause from the Democratic side which was noticeably not joined in by southern Democrats. The Republican members laughed and booed.

"You'll regret those booes," McKeough shouted at the Republicans. "You'll have a chance to show your intentions in convention. Will you choose that daring young New York prosecutor?"

"Yeah, Dewey!" whooped the minority members.

"I hope he's the candidate," retorted McKeough. "But you may have to turn to Senator Vandenberg of Michigan." Again there were cheers from the Republicans.

"Or you may have to turn back to that distinguished citizen of California, Herbert Hoover," continued McKeough, grinning.

"Hurray!" roared the Republicans.

JOAN MANNERS IN CONTEMPT IN PICKETING CASE

Joan Manners. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

"I intend to put her in jail until she understands what a restraining order means," the judge said.

However, he granted her attorney time to file a writ of prohibition—in effect, an appeal of the contempt order—before imposing a jail sentence.

RESCUE 3 GIRL SUN BATHERS ON RAFT IN LAKE

Three girls who were sunning themselves on a diving raft off Wilmette harbor were rescued yesterday by the coast guard after the raft had been blown almost a mile out into the lake. They are Alice Kresge, 17 years old, 1118 Mohawk avenue, Wilmette; Lois Fox, 15, of Happ road, Wilmette; and Marilyn Frederick, 15, 250 Sheridan road, Kenilworth. All are students at the New Trier Township High school.

Miss Fox started swimming to shore after the three had tried for twenty minutes to attract attention by waving their arms. She was sighted by the lookout of the Wilmette coast guard, and a crew under Albert Delamater picked her up and towed the raft to shore. The girls said they had loosened the raft from its mooring.

In another rescue the coast guard picked up Joseph Corbus, 17, and his brother, William, 19, after their sailboat canoe capsized off Grosse Pointe lighthouse in Evanston. The youths are the sons of Dr. Budd C. Corbus, 2746 Euclid avenue, Evanston.

Park Employe Fund Trustee Re-elected for 4 Year Term

W. I. Bell was reëlected trustee of the Park Employés' Annuity and Benefit fund yesterday at an election of employés of the Chicago park district. His term will be for four years. Mr. Bell, who is assistant general superintendent of the district, was opposed by Charles P. Mustard, recreational director. The fund has assets of more than $12,000,000 and a membership of approximately 5,000 park employés.

Writ Reunites 2 Sisters Separated by Divorce

Two sisters who were separated several years ago through the divorce of their parents had a happy reunion yesterday in Judge Harry M. Fisher's court. They are Angela De Vitta, 5 years old, and Argentina, 6. When their parents were divorced Angela was given to her mother and Argentina to her father, George, of 2936 Shields avenue. Both parents remarried and a week ago the children's mother died. DeVitta then filed a writ of habeas corpus to gain custody of Angela and Judge Fisher gave him custody of the girl.

GRIM DAYS AND MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

This is no time for an Englishman, wanting to round out his career, to become prime minister. Mr. Chamberlain may have the job. It is tough. It is tougher in 1939 than it was in 1914. To the contemporary view these are worse days than the Napoleonic. How they will appear to people who afterwards can look backwards at them is a question for nice speculation.

Mr. Chamberlain does not want to go to war. He is reluctant. But empires are created by war, by conquest and colonization, or by conquest and overlordship. They are maintained and kept intact by force. An empire which declines war tries to reject cause and still retain effect. It tries to deny and still remain what it is. The law of its life is found in military strength.

There is an attempt to make something of a new theory that the day of force is over. Events laugh at the attempt. Subject peoples are subject peoples because of guns. That is as true for the British on one side of the barricades at Tientsin as it is for the Japanese on the other. Both are in China for identical reasons and by identical methods. The one with the greater strength is pushing the other into the sea.

The Japanese, Germans, and Italians who tell their people they must fight are watching the great empire whose prime minister does not want to fight. They chip at it here and there and wait for its responses. They push it and elbow it to see if it is steady or unsteady on its feet. The Tientsin affair is more than a nudge with the elbow. It is a wallop to the jaw. If the British submit they will begin to pack up their belongings in a part of the world where they gave the law. If they show their guns they may explode all the mines.

Mr. Chamberlain sometimes must be almost resolved to disperse the metropolitan population of Britain throughout the countryside, tell it to dig in and cover, send the fleet into action, await the bombers, and accept the decision.

AMERICA'S BREAD.

This country isn't going to raise enough wheat this year to feed the American people. The forecast is based on the department of agriculture's official estimate of the crop on June 1.

From 1866, when the department of agriculture began collecting statistics, until the dawn of the New Deal the farmers of this country never failed, not even once, to grow more than enough wheat to feed our people. In good seasons and in bad, despite drouth, hail, rust, insects, and all the other enemies of the wheat, year in and year out our farmers always produced at least enough to supply our domestic need.

The first crop that Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Wallace, and the rest of the farm rescuers had anything to do with was the crop of 1933. That fell short of domestic requirements. So did the crops of 1934, 1935, and 1936. We grew our own bread in 1937 and 1938, but this year again we shall be dependent on foreign farmers.

The facts are so startling that they may be difficult to believe. Lest there be any doubt of their meaning, we repeat: Until the New Deal and its planned economy, there never was a wheat deficit in this country. But in five of the seven years since the New Deal undertook to regulate the production of wheat we have consumed more wheat than our farmers were permitted to raise.

The New Dealers are always saying that the free economic system under which we prospered as a nation for 150 years didn't work, couldn't be made to work, and had to be replaced with a planned or controled economy. They have now had their chance to show how much better their system is than the one it replaced. They have had their opportunity to prove that the nation can be better fed and clothed under their bossing than it was when farmers were free men.

The facts prove how false their claims have been. Their failure has been a pitiful one. In spite of all the subsidies and crop controls, farm income is still disappointingly low. The most fortunate farmers are those with whom Mr. Wallace has interfered least. Since his first hog-killing bout he has left the live stock men, for example, pretty much to their own devices, with the result that the farmers in the cattle, hog, and sheep business are in relatively good shape. Prices are not entirely satisfactory because of the depression, but there is no huge surplus of meat as there is of cotton to depress prices and bedevil the farmers, and no threat of a shortage as in wheat.

The New Dealers distrust the free or automatic economic system because they don't believe it can work efficiently with no one to boss it. If they were consistent they would distrust their own hearts for the same reason. No job-holder tells Mr. Wallace's heart to beat or his white blood corpuscles to fight invading germs. Nevertheless, his heart does beat and his corpuscles do their work far better than they would if somebody were giving them orders. In much the same way our farmers without instructions from Washington saw to it for a century and more that this nation had enough to eat. Mr. Wallace has failed five years in seven to do as well.

He has failed at a time when billions are being spent by his associates in the administration to strengthen the national defenses. Wheat is a far more important war material than airplanes and Mr. Wallace knows it. If war is threatened we ought to be harvesting at least an average crop this year instead of facing dependence upon foreign sources for our bread. Perhaps the planners can explain what went wrong.

THEY LEARN NOTHING.

The only thing that ever made the arguments of prohibitionists plausible to the nonfanatic majority of the population was the greed, venality, and gross stupidity of saloonkeepers and the politicians who played ball with them. Neither the saloonkeepers nor the politicians have learned a thing from their tribulations. They are as selfish and stupid as ever.

Both the city council and the state legislature are running hog wild on liquor regulation, or more properly, in the direction of making regulation impossible. Of these two programs, however, that in the legislature is the more vicious.

The saloonkeeper lobby is trying at Springfield to kill local option. It appears that unless the legislators hear from their constituents the lobby may succeed. The house now has at the passage stage three amendments to the local option law.

The first requires a majority of all registered voters to vote a precinct dry. Under permanent registration there is no effective purge of Chicago polls lists. They contain a high percentage of names of voters who no longer live in the precinct. In many precincts a wet and dry referendum, under the proposed amendment, would require for success support by three-quarters or more of all the actual voters in the precinct.

A second amendment would make local option area boundaries those of existing precincts instead of those that existed in 1932. This gives one more reason for influencing the election board to gerrymander precincts for the protection of objectionable saloons. Its partisan conduct in recent elections has shown that the election board is already too open to corrupt influence without adding a further incentive.

The third amendment permits the attack of local option petitions in court after the voters have signified their will in an election. This is a scheme to disfranchise voters by technicalities. Each of these amendments is extremely objectionable. The bill should be killed without delay.

Meanwhile our bumble footed city fathers, inspired by the yammering of lawbreaking saloonkeepers against enforcement of the closing ordinance, are doing their best to help the liquor business commit suicide. Their greed for tax spending caused them to ignore the fact that the primary purpose of saloon licensing is regulation, not revenue.

Of the six amendments that the council passed, the one extending the saloon closing hours to 2 a. m. through the week and to 3 a. m. on Saturdays is utterly bad. The noise and disorder in and about saloons in residential districts was an insufferable nuisance at 1 a. m. There are districts in the city in which later hours might possibly have been tolerated, but the blanket extension will prove intolerable and will stimulate the extension of local option territory if the legislature does not disfranchise the voters.

The restriction, applicable Nov. 1, on the types of establishments that can sell liquor is a move in the direction of monopoly. Monopoly will mean higher liquor prices, and higher liquor prices will mean an increase in bootlegging, already no slight problem.

THE TRIBUNE led the fight against national prohibition because the rule of the dry tyrants was intolerable. It is encouraging to see that even the state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, while he believes present conditions to be even worse, doesn't want to return to the horrors of prohibition. But those who fought prohibition didn't do so in order to turn the city or state over to the saloonkeepers.

Getting people drunk has never been an exalted occupation. The saloonkeeper is allowed to do business because he is slightly less objectionable than the rum runner, the bootlegger, and the gangster. Most of the gentry can best be tolerated when they are treated like pariahs. The cause of temperance will be served if the saloonkeepers are given a kicking around. They have learned nothing and they presume too much.

Editorial of the Day

NICE WORK—IF YOU CAN GET IT.

[Peoria-Journal Transcript.]

Treasury notes in the amount of $426,554,000 have just been issued to provide funds for retirement of a like amount of notes due now. The old notes bore an interest rate of one and three-eighths per cent. The new notes, which will be due in June of 1944, bear an interest rate of three-quarters of one per cent. This is a new interest low in long term treasury loan paper.

There are two ways of looking at this matter. First, it may be argued that the credit of the federal government must be excellent if it can borrow money on comparatively long term paper—five years—at a rate of three-quarters of one per cent. The previous low was the one and three-eighths per cent for five year notes and two per cent for eight year bonds.

In support of this first view of the matter is the fact that treasury notes and government bonds—tax free, of course—are selling on the open market for considerable premiums. In other words, they are apparently in great demand. On the face of the matter, therefore, it would appear the national credit is very, very sound and that people have tremendous faith in the United States.

There is another side to the picture, however. It is suggested by the fact that member banks of the federal reserve system had surpluses amounting to $4,300,000,000 on June 1. This compares with a surplus of $2,600,000,000 a year ago. Evidently there is a vast amount of money available for investment. Now, in a country where there is so much money available for investment it would appear that business ought to be booming. Clearly, if we are richer than ever before in bank surpluses, there is more money out of productive use in industry and business than ever before. This must mean that money is frightened, scared to death of investment in private enterprise because of restrictions and taxes levied against money so employed. Naturally, when this is the case, government paper—as a tax free refuge for funds—can be sold to earn interest which would be ridiculous if any other use could be found for them.

Thus is disclosed one of the problems the New Deal has not solved. It has increased the cost of government, spent money like water, and thus presumably tried to boost the national income. But the difference in interest rate between one and three per cent on surpluses now in member banks would be close to $83,000,000—quite an important piece of change and a worthy contribution to our national income, if anybody could get it.

Big money likes nice work—when it can get it. When it can't, it is content with government paper and unheard of interest rates. But that is not the way to prosperity or economic health.

PEPYS SAYS "YOOHOO, NANCY."

16th June—Did catch a glimpse of Play Actress Nancy Hamilton at dinner, and did think she had the bluest eyes I ever saw; and you will think so, too, if you go to the frolic that she wrote herself, called "One for the Money," and watch her singing "Yoohoo, Blues," in blackamoor makeup, which causes her eyes to seem like star sapphires.

Now this is the prettiest song-and-dance show that Chicago has seen for many summers, for its settings are fine art in decoration and everything in it is as bright as a Christmas tree. Its eight young women are comely and its eight young men are gay, and they dance and mime in high spirits. The scene which mocks at Orson Welles, who knew Shakespeare backward at the age of 4 and knew Shakespeare personally at 6, is satire of the smartest, and Mistress Hamilton's takeoff of Madame President writing her column, "My Day," is so laughable that I should think that lady would abandon her scribbling, which is keeping poor ink stained wretches such as myself out of profitable work.

Did remember that in recent summers the Chicago stage has been utterly empty, and did think that Mistress Hamilton should be praised for changing all that in so blithe a manner, and did resolve to tell her so before I went off to the country for a spell of rest, which will be soon.

TO FATHER: AUF WIEDERSEHN.

I little dreamed upon that bright spring day
When high I held my son within my arm
And you turned waving with a smile so warm
And called, "Auf wiedersehn, mein kind" so gay—
My heart ne'er warned me on this going away
That I should never more see your dear form;
I did not feel a shadow of alarm
Rejoicing in your hard earned holiday.
These lovely words they carved upon your stone:
"God's finger touched him and he slept"; and I
Whom you had left the foreign lands to roam
Wept, and remembered that we all must die.
Though many years may pass till next we meet
Your parting words hold hope and promise sweet.

Eugenia Gerlach Stein.

Portrait of an Ancestor.

The earl of Barrymore, from whom the Barrymore acting family takes its name, was Richard Barry, seventh bearer of the title. He was born in 1769 and died of a gunshot accident at the age of 24, in military service.

His nickname was "Hellgate." His sister Caroline was called "Billingsgate" because of her use of profanity; his brother Henry was called "Cripplegate" because he was clubfooted; and his brother Augustus, a clergyman, was called "Newgate" because he was frequently imprisoned for debt.

A London newspaper of the period wrote of "Hellgate" Barrymore:

"This young lord can drive four or six horses in hand from morn to eve. For contriving, destroying, purchasing, and disposing none can equal him. He is the coachman, the player, the spendthrift, and indeed everything but what his fortune entitles him to be. If none excel him, it is hoped that none will attempt to equal him. Beware, ye youth, how you are entrapped into ruin by bad example."

Salute to Paterfamilias.

Tomorrow hundreds of thousands of American fathers, old and young, will be roused out of a nap, or called in from the garden, or paged at the golf club by a telephone message. After he has said, "Yes, this is Mr. John Doe," the telephone wire will cut loose with the following song:

"You're a jolly good fellow; you're a jolly good fellow; you're a jolly good fel-el-low, the finest dad in the world."

And the Old Man will grin from ear to ear.

TO "THE LITTLE FATHER."

(See the Line, May 16, 1939, last paragraph.)

As father knelt upon the floor,
In days long since departed,
To mend some broken childish toy
And cheer the broken hearted;
You take upon your willing self
The trials and tribulations
Of making readable the scripts
Of all our scribulations!
O, father of our destinies
Within the printed column,
To you we owe a debt of thanks
Both humorous and solemn.

The Fatal Hand of Progress.

The Steamboat Springs, Colo., Pilot points with pride to the extermination of magpies in Routt county by the state biological survey, and the reduction of the squirrel population by 99 per cent. Routt county, Colo., is a fairly wild stretch of country, but its crochety agriculturists deny wild creatures the right to live there.

The picturesque Rocky mountain magpie is accused of killing other birds and annoying live stock. The squirrel [maybe they mean gopher] is indicted for nibbling at pasture land grass and growing grain.

FRONT PORCH CONFAB.

Maw sez she just can't understand
The fashion that's growin' all over the land
Of accusin' every public man
Of graftin' and cheatin' whenever he can;
But Paw sez: "No doubt
We sort of dope out
That he's likely doin' in his circumstances
What we would be doin' if we had his chances."

Why Cooks Go Crazy.

"If this doesn't cause a smile, you're hopeless," writes K. D. W., inclosing a clipping from the cooking column of the Barrington, Ill., Review, which reads:

"Correction: In the recipe for molasses cookies in last week's column, it should have read five cups of flour instead of three cups."

I think that Ardee [June 14] passed up the most mispronounced words in the English language when he omitted exquisite, eczema, paresis, acumen, Elizabethan, and detail. Philardee.

This column's discovery and discussion of "Captain Horatio Hornblower" has put that fine seafaring and sea fighting tale among the Chicago best sellers. CHARLES COLLINS.

HOW TO ESCAPE RHEUMATISM.

WITH many of us the term rheumatism embraces a multitude of complaints. Every ache or pain, every twinge or stab is laid on the doorstep of this malady. Grandpa's "rheumaticks" gave him something to talk about; if one of his legs became a bit bothersome he prophesied a change in the weather and all the village learned of it.

Although it is one of our oldest diseases we understand today but little more about its cure than we did a hundred years ago. The cause has not been identified accurately despite the fact that we have spotted many factors which influence its onset and progress. It has become so much of a national menace that it is receiving almost as much attention as cancer.

Some individuals possess a positive rheumatic tendency, which seems to run in families. A case developing in one member may be followed by another—a brother or sister becoming the victim. The relationship extends even to cousins. Studies conducted in a few of our large cities show that in one-third of the households attacked two or more are involved.

There are several cogent reasons why we should shun this disorder as we would the plague. While recovery from the initial seizure is the rule, the aftermath may be a damaged heart or a crippled frame. One-sixth of the total industrial invalidism of Great Britain is ascribed to this illness and authoritative estimates place England's rheumatism bill at 100 million dollars annually.

A curious characteristic of the infection is that it travels in cycles. In other words, there will be a marked increase in the number of sufferers every three to five years. A great majority of the patients will be found among those who are less well clothed than they should be, who perhaps are undernourished at times, and who fail to adhere to the rules of good hygiene. Poverty, as such, is not significant as it is in tuberculosis.

The prime climatic consideration is dampness. Next comes chilling, as it is known that the difficulty is far less prevalent in the tropics. But extreme cold seems to have as favorable an effect as heat—the ailment being rare in the arctic regions also. We can realize that those latitudes in which quick changes of temperature are likely to occur invite the distemper. Many of us have experienced a rapid fall of the mercury on a torrid day with the wind changing to north or northeast. With the body unprotected a sense of chill may ensue, accompanied by a sharp drop in reserve.

In presenting their complaints, patients invariably mention days or weeks of unwonted fatigue. Perhaps sleep had been interfered with and mental worries may have brought about a lowering of physical stamina. Whatever the origin, the persistence of a state of chronic tiredness is a danger sign that should not be disregarded. While it may signify failure on the part of some vital organ, it carries the warning that vitality is at too low an ebb for safety. This applies to children and adults alike. In the younger group, particularly, the foundations are laid for a type of heart weakness which all too often makes for incapacity in the fourth and fifth decades of life.

There is also a close connection with tonsillitis and throat and nose infections. The causative germ—whatever it may be—probably enters the body via the mouth or the nasal passages. Perhaps it will be proved to be one of the viruses—which presupposes an organism like the streptococcus as a trail blazer.

At the present time medical science has not discovered an antidote. While the pain may be allayed with salicylates and certain other drugs, the disease goes merrily on its way until the figurative fires have burned out. The afflicted person is then obliged to make a rather slow convalescence, possibly with some injury to the pumping organ or an increased stiffness of the joints.

Basically, then, the whole matter goes back to wholesome living; proper care of the mouth, throat, and nasal passages; and the maintenance of resistance at a high level.

PILLOWS AS PROPS.

A. C. writes: How should extra pillows—used to ease a victim of heart disease—be adjusted?

REPLY.

Many patients with heart failure breathe easier if propped up in bed. The old fashioned Morris chair is a useful bit of equipment and many can sleep in such a posture. The position should be semi-reclining; that which gives the most comfort and freedom from breathlessness.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, June 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband died four months before our baby, a boy, was born. On Feb. 20 of this year his father [my father-in-law] died leaving quite an estate fifteen years after my husband's death.

1. Is my boy entitled to his father's share in the estate? There was a will.
2. To date it has not been read.
3. Am I entitled to read or see the will as the child's guardian? Among other things there is a $75,000 incorporated business.
4. Is it right for this to go on when the will has not been read? His wife wanted the will changed and tried to get him to make a new one when he was ill [he had no mind at all for six weeks before his death].
5. Should there have been a copy of the will besides the one his wife had in her possession? M. A.

1. Yes, unless the grandfather provides otherwise by will.
2. You can serve notice on the person in possession of the will to file it in the office of the clerk of the Probate court. There is a statutory penalty for delay.
3. After it has been filed, you can examine it in the office of the clerk of the court.
4. Illinois has no special provision for a formal reading of a will, but in general the will should be promptly filed in the Probate court.
5. If there is a properly executed original, this is enough.

LET'S KEEP OUT OF EUROPE.

Chicago, June 14.—Apropos of your position on the policy of the United States, may I repeat the words of George Washington:

"The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible.

"Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns.

"Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalry, and caprice?"

LETTING THE PUBLIC WAIT.

Chicago, June 14.—Thanks for your articles on poor Chicago mail service. That service is run for the benefit of the service employés and not for the benefit of the public. The employé with a steady job and a good salary all through the depression must not be inconvenienced one damn bit. But the public, well, the public can wait. If the firm I work for ran business the way the local mail people run theirs I'll bet it would have gone broke long ago.

One experience: Relatives living downstate posted a letter on a Friday evening train properly expecting that we should get it the next morning. We actually received it Monday morning. But in the meantime they arrived by motor late Saturday afternoon, but we, not having received their letter, had gone out. In these days of improvements and with so many available men and so much money spent on WPA "stuff," it would seem our mail service should be corrected.

HOPE.

[THE TRIBUNE acknowledges receipt of numerous other letters commending Charles Leaveille's articles on poor mail service and giving numerous examples of its dilatory and careless ways.]

SAYS THE KIDS ARE GYPPED.

Chicago, June 14.—I have been a city salesman on the streets of Chicago for twenty-seven years and there is one thing which truly burns me up.

The way these junk dealers in yards gyp the kids who bring their paper and iron to them is a shame and a scandal. No prices are posted and more often than not the junk dealers do not weigh that which they purchase. I saw two poor kids today get 7 cents for sixty-four pounds of craft paper. I can cite a lot of other examples.

Where is the department of weights and measures in this town?

LEROY STAMP.

RICHARD STRAUSS 75 YEARS OLD.

Chicago, June 13.—I was astonished that you did not even mention the 75th birthday of Richard Strauss, one of the greatest contemporary composers, well known in the whole cultural world, which was on June 11. He would merit to be fêted in your musical column by an essay on his unique lifework. I wish him many happy returns and I hope this will remind you of writing about him in your musical column very soon.

M. G. B.

HE SEES "WHAT'S WRONG HERE."

Chicago, June 10.—In your columns Lucille D. Zinner asks, "What is wrong with flag makers in this country?" Her complaint is that she could not find other than "Made in Japan" American flags.

Be advised, my dear Lucille, that the reason for this is that not only American flag makers but artificial flower makers and manufacturers in many lines of novelties have been driven out of business in our country because of the stupid theory being pursued by our present national administration. For example, we are supposed to pay a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour in the United States and at the same time compete with a handful of rice or a few pennies per hour wage in such countries as Japan and China.

It is not in the cards, my friend. Get us a safe and sane national administration in Washington, one that believes that two and two make four, not ten, one that will give our country ample tarif protection; yes, even embargoes if necessary to protect our manufacturers, then you will find plenty of "Made in America" goods on the counters and in addition, millions of American workmen going back to work in American factories, instead of keeping foreign factories going to such an extent that they have a shortage of labor.

We certainly can well afford to sacrifice a few millions of export business in order to regain the billions of domestic consumption and put our millions of unemployed back to work.

MORRIS GOLDBERG.

SIZES UP SOCIAL "SERVICES."

Chicago, June 13.—Cutting through the underbrush of weasel words, the case of the social "servicer" is simple indeed. First of all she—nine of ten are females who decided not to teach—has come to have a vested interest in misery, poverty and degradation toward the amelioration or abolition of which she can have no interest whatever. She has, moreover, acquired that appetite for spending other people's money—and getting well paid for it. And she has too often the sadist's thrill of officially snooping around the dirty closets and ugly cupboards of the victims of man's cruelty.

The saintly, selfless Jane Addams and the noble Graham Taylor—of whom there never were nor are more than a handful—have verily by a devil's mischance spawned a brood they would be the first to disown. F. P.

"TOWING" COSTS IN EVANSTON.

Glencoe, Ill., June 14.—I supposed a police force was intended to aid a citizen in maintaining his rights. This notion was rudely dispelled the other day when the Evanston force "aided" in recovering my car, stolen the previous day. The thief had abandoned it in a parking space along Sheridan road just south of Northwestern campus. The police didn't find it. A fraternity brother saw it and was kind enough to notify us and also to call the police station to let them know of its discovery.

The police then took it on themselves to call their "special" garage and have the car towed into custody.

To recover the car from the police was infinitely a more difficult task than recovering it from the culprit who drove it off. For the surrender of the car the favored garage demanded $3 for towing charges and 50 cents for parking in the garage. The charges are outrageous! Three dollars for towing a car the gruelling distance of three blocks!

The owner did not ask to have the car towed anywhere; it was in perfect condition to be driven off by the owner. But, of course, the police had to have their cut. But I didn't pay this bill and don't intend to. R. H. C.

A HAPPY GIRL.

Champaign, Ill., June 13.—I'm only 17, I'm not particularly religious. I'm not a Pollyanna, and I don't quote poetry, but I think that any one who lives in the United States and crabs continually should be quickly and quietly shipped to Russia.

O, there's so much that's "super" here, and the finest things are free. Moonlight that makes a deep prayer-like happiness in you; sunshine and flowers that make you want to run and jump and laugh out loud; companions that make you thankful. O, can't you dead pans see how rose colored and bubbling life can be? And it's not because I'm young that I feel it! Happiness is a state of mind and I can say fervently "I'm glad to be alive!"

PRESERVING OUR SANITY.

Bloomington, Ill., June 15.—In general terms, congratulations for:

1. For not going "batty" as some did over the visit of the king and queen of England.
2. For mentioning that big debt they owe us while the king was here.
3. For retaining sane reasoning powers [not getting flattered] and for the preservation of Americanism.

KIDNAP BANDITS SEIZE $11,700; BEAT 2 VICTIMS

Operate in 2 Crews; Get Cash and Bonds.

Police were searching last night for two crews of kidnap bandits, one including a woman, who held up two men in outlying business districts, and robbed them of a total of $11,700 in bonds and cash. The outfits operated in almost identical fashion.

Their victims were Thomas McGrath, 60 years old, 1182 Hohfelder road, Glencoe, and Aribert E. Vaughn, also 60, of 4056 Keystone avenue. Both were severely beaten. Vaughn required hospital attention.

Bank Messenger Held Up.

McGrath, a bank messenger, was robbed in the forenoon. He had left the Merchants National bank, 3158 Madison street, with $10,000 in bonds for the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, when he was pounced upon by three gunmen at Kedzie avenue and Warren boulevard.

The trio dragged him into their car, threatened to kill him if he resisted, and then beat him. They took the bonds he was carrying, and then pushed him out of their car at Franklin boulevard and St. Louis avenue. According to officials of the Merchants bank, $7,000 of the bonds were not negotiable. The other $3,000 was in federal baby bonds. The numbers of these latter bonds were sent to all Chicago banks.

Robbed of $1,700 Pay Roll.

Vaughn, who is auditor for the Sievert Electric company, 1349 Bauwans street, was robbed of a $1,700 pay roll. He had drawn the money from a downtown bank. At Paulina and Division streets a car driven by a stout woman drove up to him. Two men jumped out. They grabbed Vaughn and pushed him in their car. Then the woman speeded the car away.

The men snatched the pouch containing the pay roll from Vaughn, and pummeled him. At Haines and Hooker streets, while the car was still in motion, the hoodlums pushed Vaughn out. He was taken to the Lutheran Deaconess hospital.

Polish Parliament Through; President Rules by Decree

WARSAW, Jun 16.—(AP)—The Polish parliament adjourned today, leaving President Ignace Moscicki authority to issue special legislative decrees until it reconvenes for its regular session in December. Parliamentary approval is not necessary for decisions affecting peace or war. Article 12 of the Polish constitution invests the president with the right to make such decisions.

PADDED PAY ROLL IN KANSAS CITY ORDERED TO END

Kansas City, Mo., June 16.—(AP)—Discovery that street cleaning department pay checks had been going to a person not on the pay roll brought an ultimatum today from City Manager Eugene C. Zachman, that heads of city offices must purge their records of pay roll pads by Monday, or get out.

Zachman learned several checks for street cleaning services had gone into the hands of E. Mont Reily, former governor of Porto Rico in the Harding administration. Reily at one time was an active Republican. He now conducts a loan business across the street from the city hall. Reily said the checks were sent to him in payment of loans.

Zachman ordered the city counselor to investigate the case and if evidence waranted, to present it to a county grand jury.

Ex-Guard Is Convicted in Prison Heat Death

Philadelphia, Pa., June 16.—(AP)—Francis J. Smith, a former Holmesburg prison guard, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter today in the death of one of the four convicts who perished last summer in superheated punishment cells. The jury deliberated four hours. The conviction was the second in four trials. Frank Craven, former deputy warden, also was convicted of involuntary manslaughter. He has asked a new trial. Former Superintendent William B. Mills and James Maguire, former guard captain, were exonerated.

Cowbirds Get a Test.

June 16, 1939.

THE TRIBUNE'S DuPage county farm was used for the takeoff of an unusual cross-country flight a few days ago, an event involving feathered flyers instead of powerful, noisy airplanes. Five cowbirds were brought to the farm and released by James Mooney, the Highland Park bird bander, who visits the farm from time to time to offer suggestions on the placement of bird banding traps there.

Mooney trapped and banded a number of male and female cowbirds about two months ago. He kept them on his place for several weeks, then decided to test their homing instinct. He brought five male birds to the farm and released them.

Return 12 Hours Later.

They checked in at Mooney's Highland Park banding station exactly twelve hours later. Mooney was in his yard watching for them when they arrived. The birds flew directly to the big wire traps holding other cowbirds, and went in at once. Mooney checked the numbers on the tiny aluminum bands on their legs. By comparing these with his records he knew at once that they were the same cowbirds he released on THE TRIBUNE'S farm.

In experiments with cowbirds conducted by the late William Lyon of Waukegan it was found that this species excels all other song birds in finding its way home. Some of the birds Lyon released hundreds of miles from Waukegan always showed up at his traps a few days later.

All the bird banding traps on the farm were given an overhauling this week and several of them placed in new spots to see if they won't lure some of the cowbirds, vesper sparrows, towhees, catbirds, and other feathered residents on the farm. The traps that had been in heavy vegetation were moved out into open spots. Some of them were baited with dried bread and grains. As soon as the wild grapes begin to get ripe one or two of the traps will be moved next to this food supply.

Fire Pinks All Ablaze.

This is the slow season for wild flowers on the farm. A few rue anemones are left in the farm woodlots. The wild roses are past their prime. There are some wild iris along the little stream, yellow flowers of the moth mullein are visible in a few fields, and the gray dogwood is staging its last showing of the season with its dull white flowers. But there is one wild flower which makes up by the brilliance of its petals what it lacks in numbers. It is the fire pink, a member of the pink family common in many gardens. Along a narrow path that winds through the middle woods there were a dozen of these brilliant wild flowers early this week. Their petals are about the same shade as the colorful cardinal flowers.

A male German shepherd which belongs to one of the families on the farm was given a lesson this week that it may not soon forget. This dog was playing in a field when it disturbed a nesting pheasant hen. The infuriated bird rushed the startled dog, flew at it, and used its wings and its bill so effectively that the animal beat a hasty retreat.

Seek Youth Accused of Chasing Victim.

Cicero police obtained a continuance of an inquest yesterday into the death of William Robb, 6 years old, who was killed by an automobile Thursday night.

The continuance was granted after Ronald Novy, 8, of 4725 West 21st street, Cicero, a playmate, testified that William was chased into the street by an older boy. Police said they would attempt to find the youth.

Car Driver Released.

The accident occurred in front of 2017 South Cicero avenue, Cicero. Stanley Zinker, 1412 Parnell street, Chicago, driver of the car, was released after the inquest. The inquest was continued to June 23.

Mrs. Vera Houlihan, 43 years old, 3115 Michigan avenue, died yesterday in Little Company of Mary hospital a few hours after an automobile driven by her son-in-law, Edward Haas, was struck by a hearse. The accident occurred at Southwest highway and Cicero avenue, Oak Lawn. Haas and her husband, Harold Houlihan, 46, were injured.

Mother, Hit by Car, Dies.

Mrs. Marion Quirk, 28 years old, widowed mother of a small son, died in Little Company of Mary hospital of a skull fracture suffered June 7 when she was struck by an automobile. The accident occurred in front of her home at 9960 Vincennes avenue. The driver was John McCormick, 49, of 1707 West 102d street. Mrs. Quirk's son is Harold, 4.

Frank Herdlicka, 48 years old, 6228 Cermak road, Berwyn, was seriously injured when his automobile was struck by a Douglas park elevated train at Harvey avenue in Berwyn. He was taken to Berwyn hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 373 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 293 were killed in Chicago, where 9,200 were injured in the same period.

If your mother told you not to swim in the lake don't despair. There will be at least 52 public pools open within the city and twenty-four private swimming pools open in and around Chicago this summer. In addition both the city and parks maintain wading pools for children.

The Park district will open forty-four outdoor and five indoor pools on July 1. The city bureau of recreation operates three indoor pools. Park beaches open on July 1, and city beaches a week earlier. The Cook county forest preserve has three pools, to be opened July 1. WPA has built pools in Glenview, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Forest Park, St. Charles, and Lockport, and is helping build one in Blue Island.

Country clubs with pools include: Beverly, Bryn Mawr, Lincolnshire, Medinah, Olympia Fields, Ravisloe, North Shore, Sunset Ridge, Northmoor, Lake Shore, Barrington Hills, Oak Park, Hinsdale, Onwentsia, Knollwood, Exmoor, Glen View, Indian Hill, Geneva, St. Charles, Chicago Golf, and Riverside Golf. The Chicago Town and Tennis and Dunham Woods Riding clubs have pools. No general opening date has been fixed for the private pools.

All north suburban beaches will open today. Many of the suburbs also have outdoor pools.

Strong winds from the southwest brought a heated mass of air to Chicago yesterday and gave the city the hottest day of the year thus far. At 4 p. m. the mercury rose to an official reading of 92 degrees. Forecaster C. A. Donnel said that the hot temperatures probably would remain today and tomorrow. No rain is expected. The wind was particularly strong, reaching gust velocity of 39 miles an hour at times. Several sailboats were carried out into the lake from harbors, but were retrieved by coast guards.

CHEMIST INJURED BY BLAST IN SOY BEAN RESEARCH

One person was injured yesterday in a minor explosion in the laboratory of the soybean products division of the Glidden company, 5165 Moffat street.

He is Roy C. Bodett Jr., 18 years old, a junior chemist, taken to St. Anne's hospital with burns on the head and arms. Police said he was saved from more serious injury through the prompt action of Dr. Percy L. Julian, colored, director of chemical research for the soybean products division. Dr. Julian and another chemist, hearing the explosion, rushed downstairs and dragged Bodett into the air.

The explosion, Dr. Julian said, occurred when a spark from electrical apparatus ignited ether fumes.

Last Thursday Brusso rode his motorcycle up on the sidewalk at Humboldt boulevard and North avenue, Park Policeman William Freese said Brusso told him he had had four beers and a glass of whisky. HIGH COURT IGNORING RIGHTS OF CITIZENS, LAW GRADUATES TOLD

Frank J. Hogan, president of the American Bar association, said last night in an address to the John Marshall Law school students and alumni that the Supreme court of the United States is not giving just attention to the constitutional rights of citizens.

Frank J. Hogan.

Hogan cited the refusal of the court to review the case of three children in Massachusetts who were sent to a reform school because their religion [Jehovah's Witnesses] forbade them to salute the flag. The refusal, he said, was a departure from established principles of religious freedom.

Another speaker at the meeting, held in the law school building, was Judge Otto Bock of the Colorado Supreme court, who was graduated from John Marshall thirty years ago.

VESSEL BRINGS BURNING CARGO TO CHICAGO PORT

The freighter Dalwarnic eased into the naval armory slip at the foot of Randolph street yesterday morning with a cargo of paper blazing below closed hatches. The flames were discovered at 2:30 a. m. when the ship was two hours out of Milwaukee. Capt. D. F. Cornett, after directing that steam be forced into the hold, decided to run for Chicago.

The ship arrived at 6 a. m. A phone call brought the fireboat Fred A. Busse and several engines.

Water was poured in for half an hour, after which firemen with masks entered the hold. Smoke ejectors cleared the air and hoses soon brought the flames under control.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Observation Post.

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—It was just a bit more than two years ago that Jean Harlow died, on June 7, 1937, but for some reason it seems much longer ago than that. The M.-G.-M. crowd was talking about her the other day on the set of "The Women," the reminiscences prompted by the hair-pulling match between Rosalind Russell and Paulette Goddard. "Remember that hair-grabbing duel between Jean Harlow and Marie Prevost in 'Riffraff'?" asked Otto Winkler, and others suggested other famous film fights of the femmes—such as Marie Dressler's memorable encounter with Marjorie Rambeau in "Min and Bill," Miss Dressler's conflict with Polly Moran in "The Callahans and the Murphys," Bette Davis' fight with Jane Bryant in "Marked Women," Claudette Colbert's tangle with Miriam Hopkins in "The Smiling Lieutenant," and Connie Bennett's fracas with Alice Faye in "Tailspin." One of the best from the standpoint of vigor, I think, was the face-slapping encounter of Ginger Rogers and Frances Mercer in "Vivacious Lady."

The Harlow girl left an imprint as vivid as her platinum hair on this colony, and Howard Hughes, later to become famous as a round-the-world flyer, started her off on the high road to fame. It was young Hughes who sponsored "Hell's Angels," and he picked Jean to replace Greta Nissen in the revised version opposite James Hall and Ben Lyons. From the time that she hit the screen, in her first entrance, the Harlow youngster was pointed for stardom. Tragedy darted in and out of her life, and her death capped it.

Before and after "Hell's Angeles" the movies have made liberal use of "Hell." There have been forty-one pictures with "Hell" in the titles, and only about five with "Heaven," which may or may not be a form of criticism. . . . "Heart" is another favorite of the title writers. No fewer than eighty-eight pictures have had titles with "heart" in 'em, even "Heart of Gold." . . . Black, Beyond, The Case of, Big, Little, Broadway are other pets. . . . Broadway runs neck and neck with hell in popularity, forty-one pictures having gone out of here so titled. . . . "Devil" has appeared in seventy titles. . . . Of the 17,000 motion picture titles that have been used, these top the rest in frequency.

Smash success scored by Eddie [Rochester] Anderson in Jack Benny's "Man About Town" serves as a reminder that few Negro performers ever have won great success before the cameras. . . . Stepin Fetchit led all the rest, as the lazy sepia skinned performer offered a characterization that found immediate favor. . . . Probably the fact that the movies depend in large measure on southern theaters has restrained the colored performer, though it always seemed to me that the real south enjoyed Negro singing and comedy more than any other section of the country. . . . Cab Calloway evidenced this when he went on a tour of the south and broke all band records. . . . Southerners, far from resenting him, applauded him enthusiastically. . . . Bill Robinson is an honorary police chief in several southern cities.

From the time that he wandered up over the Mason-Dixon line the colored performer has been one of the bulwarks of the theater, just as he has been one of the bulwarks of the American Olympic teams. I've never seen a Negro performer who was bad; each one of them has a definite style and a professional air. . . . I've never seen one of them who didn't know how to make a graceful exit from a stage, something which white performers learn only with the greatest of difficulty. It is an amazing race, distinguished by natural talents of speed, courage, comedy, and rhythm and, in proportion to total population, I suppose more of them make good than do members of any other racial classification. From the time they're born the odds are against them, but they make good regardless.

"Dear Mr. Sullivan: Please accept my most sincere thanks. It is a very special honor to be praised so warmly by Mr. Paul Muni, for whom I have a very great admiration and respect. I don't think any praise is more welcome than the praise of a fellow actor! Those questions of yours have been giving me nightmares since I cabled you. For instance, why on earth did I miss out James Cagney, Mickey Rooney, and umpteen others? Ah, well, I dare say I shall be forgiven. With kind regards, yours sincerely, "ROBERT DONAT.
" Denham, England."

Cleveland's Bob Hope, who arrived just two years ago in Hollywood, hopeful but fearful, shortly departs on his first vacation. He has the satisfaction, when leaving, of having scored the most notable success chalked up by any newcomer to the celluloid city, because he double-clicked in pictures and on the radio. His "vacation" calls for six weeks of vaudeville, because performers must strike while the iron is hot and Hope has to make his hay while his own particular sun is in the ascendancy. Minneapolis, Chicago, New York, and London are on his vaudeville route, and in England, he intends really to have fun; playing some of the famous British and Scotch golf courses.

Good Morning!

I COULD get away with this review in four words if I had to; for "An Australian 'Robin Hood'" would fairly well describe the picture.

It's a lively and exciting melodrama, staged in Australia and having for its hero a dashing ex-convict who escapes his bonds and, with a band of fellow prisoners whom he liberates, hies him to the aid of poor new settlers who are being persecuted and driven from their homes by powerful land owners.

It seems to me that, lately, all good actors, day by day in every way, are becoming better and better! Brian Aherne follows his magnificent performance in "Juarez" with quite as intelligent and compelling a piece of work in the so different rôle of Capt. Fury. . . . Victor McLaglen steps from "Gunga Din" and other ably handled characterizations into a deft impersonation of the mighty, light-fingered, and lovable rogue Blackie. . . . Paul Lukas—memorable in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy"—gives a restrained but compelling picture of a puritanical persecutee [that's a word!] and then I hand you John ["Stage coach"] Carradine, George Zucco, and a number of others as summat to write home about.

Can't say I found the maidens in the movie particularly impressive, but, after all, they haven't a great deal to do. Margaret Roach is the best of the bevy. An older woman's part is choicely rendered by Mary Gordon.

The action starts with the arrival of a convict ship at Melbourne. The unhappy cargo are assigned to work out the remainder of their sentences in the service of the aforementioned land owners, under frightful conditions of cruelty and neglect.

When the exploitation of the settlers is brought to the notice of Capt. Fury, who had been quite a figure back in England, he decides to do something about it.

AND DOES!

Follows melodrama rich, race, and racy. The usurpers are smart, but Fury is smarter and his men are loyal, tough, and canny. The rushing action culminates in a satisfying finale.

Direction by Hal Roach [yes, the comedy man, no less] is jovial and far seeing. Backgrounds, costumes, dialog are highly interesting and the photography is a joy.

Hope Baldwin to Be Bride of B. McCormick

BY JUDITH CASS.

TODAY at a tea at The Corner, their home in Bedford Hills, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Taylor Baldwin are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Hope, to Brooks McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick of Chicago and Naperville, and grandson of Mrs. Charles Deering of Miami and William G. McCormick of Coconut Grove, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick and all three of their sons, Deering, Brooks, and Roger, are in Bedford Hills for the announcement party.

Miss Baldwin already knows many of her young fiancé's relatives and friends here, for she visited the McCormicks last summer. She is a graduate of the Ethel Walker school in Simsbury, Conn., and made her debut in September, 1937. Brooks McCormick prepared for Yale at the Groton school. He just has finished his junior year in college. His younger brother, Roger, was a freshman at Yale this year, and the oldest son, Deering, was graduated from there last June. He has been working in a bank in New York this year.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick and Brooks and Roger will return to Chicago on Monday to remain at St. James farm, their country place, until after the Fourth of July. Then they will go east to Seal Harbor on the Maine coast for the rest of the summer.

Cuff Notes.

A State street department store has just received a shipment of parasols—aftermath of the royal British visit. . . . Frances Farmer at One for the Money with Ernest Byfield. There's a play you mustn't miss. . . . Roland Young and Reginald Gardiner in town on their way east from Hollywood. Gardiner said Bea Lillie has visited Fanny Brice in Hollywood, and he had gone to see her. "Why Reggie, hello," she said, starting across the room to greet him. Then, sitting down suddenly with a Lillie-an gesture, "Come and get it."

Have you heard about the two psychiatrists who met and one said to the other, "You're fine. How am I?" . . . Rin Tin Tin Jr. walking down Michigan avenue with his owner. . . . Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., wearing a black patch over his eye in New York, is reported to have said he now knew the reason for Floyd Gibbons' success. Brought to mind the time Charlie MacArthur, enraged at Gibbons for something or other, said he was going to put the MacArthur curse on him. "I hope your eye grows in again," he said.

Woody Herman, the Milwaukee boy who made good in the east, arriving in town with his band, opening tonight at the Trianon. But it's really Chicago where bands' reputations are made. . . . Doris Dudley of My Dear Children played a joke on Orson Welles with the coöperation of Camille of the Pump room. She sent a champagne bucket of shaved ice to his room on the train when he left for Pittsburgh Thursday night . . . with two Coca-Cola bottles in it. She also sent a brandy sniffer. Welles, who doesn't imbibe much hard liquor, drinks Coca-Cola out of a brandy sniffer. . . . The take-off on Welles in One for the Money is, by the way, much more entertaining than Welles himself was at the Palace.

More About Sleighbells.

A Chicago carillon firm handles tuned sleighbells. They may be tuned to any pitch in the chromatic scale, from middle C to the C which is 88th note on the piano. Never sold to bell sheep or cows, or for sleighing, these bells used to be in demand for novelty vaudeville acts in an earlier day. A group of girls on the stage would each wear a strap of sleighbells around an ankle, with which they tapped out tunes. In the Good Old Summertime was a favorite.

Several years ago a charming feminine voice telephoned the Chicago firm and ordered two complete octaves in bells, four bells to each note on the low notes, ranging as high as twelve bells to each note on the high notes. Total, 200 bells. At 50 cents each, $100.

"Name, please," said J. C. Neuses who was taking care of the order.

"Aimee Semple McPherson," answered the voice. She planned to use them at Angelus temple for a revival meeting, she explained.

By Way of Report.

Spiritualists and mediums of Chicago were invited to a performance of The Thirteenth Chair, the mystery play in which Margaret Wycherly plays the part of a medium, at the Civic theater the other night. A letter addressed to one of them, "The Infinite Magi," at 190 North State street came back to Publicity Man Leonard Bridges with the notation in red ink from the postmaster, "Not Found."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

One of the most baffling things about women is their carelessness in reading and following direction on beauty preparations. Ask any intelligent clerk how confused women are and what unintelligent things they do, even though the directions on any given preparation are in letters half an inch high!

We remember, for example, the woman who came in to see us to show us what ill effects she had suffered after using a stimulating ointment some clerk had talked her into buying. Her eyes were red and swollen and had been for a week. The directions on the jar made it very plain that this preparation was not to be used near the eyes. She hadn't read the directions and some perverse impulse made her smear it all around them—something she doesn't ordinarily do even with cream. Don't ask us why!

Now that the warm weather is really upon us we know that we'll be hearing tales of the peculiar action of some deodorants and anti-perspirants. We've already heard one. It all comes of not following directions. The tale we heard concerns an anti-perspirant that is used after the area is bathed, but with plain water, NOT soap.

If she'd only troubled to read directions the woman would have been warned that irritation might result after using soap. It doesn't in all cases but it does in some—and the manufacturer warns the users. But the users pay no heed.

In these enlightened days products are good; as good as science and stiff regulations can make them. But with beauty aids, as with cooking aids, cleaning aids or what have you, directions for use are important.

Youth's Golden Days Cannot Be Recaptured

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"In the first place," Mrs. E. confides, "I was a very shy girl when I was in my 'teens. I had to wear glasses and was supersensitive then about always being called 'four eyes' and hearing the crack about girls with glasses with which you are probably familiar. The consequence is that I did not go around with boys and girls of my age or join their clubs when I should have done so. So, when I did decide I would be an old maid if I didn't step out a little more, I met two and up and married the second one without ever having loved him.

"To make a long story short, I was 21 when I married him. He is five years older. Not quite two years later we were parted and I never, never will live with that man again. We have been separated for five years now. But that is not my problem. You see, now, I look very young and I must act young, too, for it is only the young boys and girls who seek my company and I theirs, and that is what I am afraid of. Is it stupid for a young woman of 27 to go around with girls of 18 and up and boys of 21? They think that I am their age as I never tell them anything. I feel that I have missed the good clean fun of youth that I should have had before marriage."

You have a problem, Mrs. E., and our sympathy. We think that there is nothing more tragic than to allow a physical handicap, when it really is unimportant, to ruin one's young life as you did over your eyesight. We can understand, with your defeated sense of being, how you would jump at any chance. But that doesn't excuse you, you know, because no matter what you did that was harmful to yourself, you did the man you married an even greater injustice.

The tragedy of life, Mrs. E., is that you never can recapture those golden years of life as you are trying to do. You are a misfit in the 'teen and early twenty companionships. You see that, of course, or you wouldn't ask. We think you would be happier did you seek out companionships among your own contemporaries and, if you have friendship to bring to them, they'll reciprocate in kind.

A convenient and practical little gadget for a dog owner is a specially made towel for drying a puppy's wet or muddy feet. This towel is a long affair, quite narrow, and has pockets for your hands.

By using it you can get the dog dry without soiling your hands. The towel is a beige color, with the hand pockets in a gay plaid.

Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Grunewald, in a café in Vienna, hear the radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian, has been staying in Franz's home studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. Josef von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leave his wife, Gisela, and son Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a woman surgeon, sends for Franz and asks him to send the American girl home.

INSTALMENT VI.

BLACKMAILING LOVE.

Franz felt desperately uncomfortable. He had known of Leopoldine's passion for him for a long time, but she had confined herself to looks and hints and he never dreamed she would embarrass both of them by putting it into words. Now she was undoubtedly going to do it. He put his fingers up to his neck and tugged at his collar.

She reached up and took his hand away. "Don't fidget. Look me in the face. What has that milk and water blonde American got that I cannot give you ten times over?"

Franz got up. "I must go," he said. "I'm sorry Pola, but I can't discuss this with you. I would never have come if you hadn't deceived me into believing you wanted help."

She got up with him and clung to his arm. "But I do need help. I'm desperate. While you had no one else I could live and bear it. But this is too much. This alien girl who will tire of you and cast you aside and go home. I've loved you for years. Because of you I've never looked at another man. And I could have had plenty, I tell you——"

He could not help feeling sorry for her. Loving Marian, he knew how it must feel to love and not be loved. Or he thought he knew how she felt.

"Yes I know Pola. You're very lovely—and clever too. A man would be proud of you. But love's a queer thing. Like lightning. There's no apparent reason for it striking where it strikes. I love Marian Taylor. I've told her so. She's promised to be my wife. We'll have to let it go at that."

Leopoldine looked down at the white fur rug at her feet, still clinging tenaciously to his arm. She did not want him to see her face while she crumpled under this severe blow and recomposed herself. He waited quietly and at last she looked up at him, her face very sallow and curiously old.

"I'll never let it go at that, Franz Grunewald. I want you and I always get what I want. You belong to me."

Franz licked his dry lips. "Please, Pola, don't make it so hard for both of us. Let me go now and I will forget you ever said this to me."

She laughed hoarsely. "Chivalry! Well, I don't want you to forget. I've no false modesty about loving a man. I don't care who knows it. Listen, has it ever occurred to you that you may need my help?"

Franz looked his surprise. "No, it has not."

"Didn't you see Karl when you came in?"

"Dressed to kill as a storm trooper? Yes, I certainly did."

She smiled broadly and tapped him on the chest. "Then go home and think about that, and don't be too stupid to use your wits. They've a long list you know—and there's going to be trouble."

What sympathy Franz had for her dissolved and left him. An angry flush deepened the sunburn in his face. He released his arm from her grasp with an abrupt sideways movement. "You must be crazy if you think a man can be blackmailed into love."

She stood staring at him and for a moment he thought she was about to strike him. Then she shrugged her shoulders and reached for another cigaret, displaying her unique angular grace as she did it.

"Don't be theatrical, Franz. At least we can be friends. Let's forget this for the time being. Sit down."

She rang a bell and curled herself up again on the zebra striped divan. A maid entered before Franz had time to go away.

"Coffee and cakes, please Lisa." Leopoldine smiled at him disarmingly. "It's a cold morning and I can't do without my coffee. Come along now, sit down."

He was suspicious of the change in her mood, but if as she suggested, she intended to be friendly and forget it, the best thing perhaps was to encourage her. He sat down and presently the maid returned and drew up the coffee table and set the silver laden tray before them.

Leopoldine poured the coffee. "Had any trouble in your neighborhood?" she asked.

"Lots of noise and excitement. I couldn't exactly call it trouble."

She called him to the window when he had drunk his coffee. "See all the windows here that are boarded up. That shows you."

"What does it show me?"

Franz had an overwhelming sensation of nausea. "Then you don't like them?"

"I hate them."

"Pola! What on earth have they ever done to you?"

"O, they overran the hospital. There are far too many of them——"

"I see. Then it isn't only Karl——?"

"No, it's me, too." She turned to him with green fire in her eyes. "Didn't you realize it before?" she said. "This is heaven for me. I'm all for it. I'm for Hitler."

"But Pola, you of all people! You a brilliant, powerful professional woman. Don't you realize that Hitler's ideology includes the imprisonment of women in their homes."

But she did not care if women were imprisoned in their homes so long as she was free and independent. "Not exceptional women, Franz. And where else should the ordinary women be? That's the proper place for them. And your little American Marian—she's one of them. That's why it hurts me to see you waste yourself."

It was no use arguing with her about Marian. Franz said "so you think I would not be wasting myself if I married you?"

"Definitely no. You are clever, too, and on parallel lines. Think what we could accomplish if we worked together. Think of the Curies——"

"That was more than an association of labor—it was one of the world's great love stories."

He had made a tactical mistake. They were back where they started from. Leopoldine put her stained hands on the lapels of his coat and murmured huskily. "That is so. And no woman will ever be able to love you as I love you."

Franz put her hands gently but firmly away. "What is done is done, Pola. I respect your great ability but I am engaged to another woman. Did you not promise me we should be friends and forget this?"

"Very well," she said briefly, "forget me if you can—and I will forget you if you can forget me. That's a bargain."

Franz was startled. He laughed with embarrassment, but he did not return the salute. She said gravely, "Auf wiedersehen."

She came down with him to the front door. "You'll have to be careful," she said warningly. "If those are your feelings, don't show them too openly."

"So I must be a hypocrite now?" he inquired bitterly.

"Certainly, if you want to survive. And I mean that literally. You can't survive without work. If you're not part of the state you'd better be dead."

The resplendent Karl was examining Franz's motorcycle with extraordinary interest. "I need one," he said simply, "would you recommend it?"

"Surely. And I can take you to a man who'll give you a substantial discount."

"O, I'm not going to buy one. I don't have to. When I see one in new condition I shall merely go and lift it."

"Happy days," said Franz cynically.

He was rewarded by the jerky salute, but he heard Karl call after him as he wheeled the motorcycle out of the gate—"happy days."

You Aren't Given Glamor; It Is Made Within Yourself

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Glamor is too often considered the exclusive property of the very young and the very lovely. The quality which we label "glamor" can just as easily belong to a woman of 60 or to one whose claims to physical beauty are only average.

This interesting theory is expressed by Amy Ellerman, noted American concert star, a woman of recognized professional achievements and great personal charm.

"Glamor is one of those words which people use frequently and without much thought. It is the popular-by-word for that quality in some women which actually defies description. Several years ago we called it "It" and there have been innumerable other words that have enjoyed the same vogue," Miss Ellerman says. "What they all mean, however, is one and the same thing—that quality which sets one woman apart from her sisters whether she be young or old or pretty or homely. It is the quality which makes those factors seem unimportant and—most important of all—it is a quality which is not born—but made—in you."

Miss Ellerman defines glamor in terms of "living" rather than "being." "Glamor," she says, "is not a matter of a certain type of hair-do, clothes, or perfume.

"These things are all outward manifestations of a woman's will to be glamorous, but the essential quality is within her."

Glamor, in Miss Ellerman's definition, is a capacity for interest in life—a never-flagging interest in people, ideas, and happenings. It is always the women who are interested in many things whom other people find interesting. The beauty with the vacant stare, the bored attitude, and the conversation limited to commonplaces is no more deserving of the title of "glamor girl" than a shop window mannequin. Glamor is a living quality—constantly changing as life itself—and for that very reason a quality which every woman who so desires can develop in herself. Any woman can develop that quality in herself by "coming alive" spiritually and mentally. It is not what life has given you that makes glamorous; it is what you give life.

"I feel sorry for all the people who don't like cheese," remarked a friend of mine recently, gloating over an assortment of crackers and cheese on a tray.

The people who don't like cheese are fewer in number these days than they were ten years ago. Or else the people who do like cheese are eating more of it. At any rate, the per capita consumption of cheese has increased 25 per cent since the period between 1924 and 1929.

Although per capita milk consumption in this country is only half as large as nutritionists say it should be, it is almost double that of France, Germany, and Great Britain. Milk consumption in Italy falls even below that of these countries.

Fruit nectars and juices have become such a popular item in the American diet that new items are constantly coming to market. Alongside their shelves of tomato juice, prune juice, orange, grapefruit, grape and pineapple juice, peach, apricot, pear, and cherry nectars, groceries soon may have to build new space for rhubarb and berry juices, papaya nectar, even mango juice, for the tropical mango is growing popular. The fresh fruit seems to be appearing in more grocery windows these days than ever before. If you've not made the acquaintance of the beautiful, aromatic mango, now's the time.

To home-can tomatoes or tomato juice and conserve vitamin C as well as the commercial canners do it requires considerable care, but it can be done. Recent experiments have proved that properly processed home-canned tomatoes contained as much of the vitamin as commercial brands.

But commercial tomatoes and tomato juice are so inexpensive that home canning is recommended only for those persons who have access to large supplies of good quality fresh tomatoes.

Open kettle canning destroys vitamin C in tomatoes and tomato juice, and loss of the vitamin also occurs when there are air spaces in the tops of jars.

VITAMIN C NOTES: Lima beans in the shell compare favorably with orange juice in vitamin C content. But they lose the vitamin rapidly when shelled. Shelled just before cooking they're most valuable. . . . Potatoes keep their vitamin C best when baked, next best, steamed. Boiled, mashed, and fried follow in order of decreasing vitamin value. . . . Orange juice, tomato juice, fresh green cabbage and green pepper salad, a big dish of strawberries, these are good summer sources of this food element which is so essential for good nutrition and resistance to infections.

GOOD AND BEAUTIFUL FRUIT COCKTAIL: Pour canned or fresh, slightly sweetened cherry juice over balls cut from cantaloupe or honeydew, watermelon and avocado.

NEW KIND OF SPATULA: Move the lever and this utensil spreads out to triple its size. Useful for lifting cake layers, whole or half pies, omelets. A real kitchen help.

New Fashion in Pajamas

PAJAMAS FOR MISSES.

This is a new style of pajama which the younger set has made popular for the summer. It's a comfortable and loosely fitted style with a coatlike top that may be worn either over or under the waistband of the trousers. The collar is Peter Pan in style, but may be opened rever fashion, too. A pocket is optional. Buttons are used down the front. Thus simply styled, the pajamas make up well in polka dotted, checked or otherwise patterned lingerie silk and cotton. Dainty pastels might be further feminized with lace trimming on the collar and beading run through sleeve bands and pocket.

Style No. 3126 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 4⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the short sleeved top and trousers and 3 yards of ruffling and 2 yards of beading.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Shy Youngster Needs the Help of His Parents

GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In this last article on shyness I want to talk to parents about their teen age children. Now, to say that all boys and girls go through the same emotional stages of a turbulent sort during adolescence is ridiculous. Many go through it quite smoothly.

But for the many who go through adolescence quite smoothly there are many others who have moderate ups and downs; and some who have very high "ups" and very low "downs." Among the "downs" which they find it hard to endure is, frequently, shyness.

The early start in establishing self-confidence and gradually acquiring accepted forms, and all the other advice we've given this week does much in preventing the shyness of adolescence.

Sex education, begun early, and gradually acquired over a period of years, and accepted naturally with all other kinds of new knowledge is the right of every child.

If adolescence has arrived and you see that your young people need help to draw them out to forget themselves—usually a cure for shyness—try some of these measures:

[a] See that they get out and around in the world, so that their minds [and conversation] are filled with things outside themselves.

[b] Encourage their doing things with others: Art, craft, or dancing classes, team play, sports such as skating, swimming, tennis.

[c] Arrange for very small groups, including your boy or girl, to do things together: Picnics, trips and treats, hikes; and have small supper parties at home, letting the young people get the meal and clear it away all by themselves.

[d] Find out what talent or ability your child has. Let him or her work at that. To be able to do one thing well increases self-confidence, and also earns the interest and respect of others.

[e] Have faith that he will outgrow his shyness. He is almost certain to do so.

A New Trick in Matching

The new pull-on short gloves in checked gingham have brought new ideas in the matching of accessories. They match the gingham ruffles on the petticoat as well as the hat or turban.

Tested Thread Adds to Life of Stylish Hosiery

BY RHEA SEEGER.

After days of rumors and weeks of waiting, the newest hosiery idea has arrived. Superelasticity is the big feature. The secret process involves treating the silk threads in a rubber solution that coats each thread, thus assuring longer wear. And we mean longer wear, having played guinea pig with a pair of these wonders.

It's an amazing performance. Weeks of daily wear, daily dunking, and less than average care left no signs of wear. Manufacturers declare that the point of strain in hosiery is where the looped thread touches the other thread. It is claimed that the rubber filming process reduces this strain to a minimum.

In addition to longer wear, this hosiery fits sleekly over ankles. While snags and runs are still hazards, even a skeptical hosiery buyer will rise and cheer for this new invention.

Three stunning summer shades are obtainable. The hosiery is priced around a dollar. The texture is flattering, and doubting shoppers can test the superelasticity over the hand.

Fashion photograph . . . gingham ruffles on a petticoat match the newest summer gloves . . . the gloves are pull-on shorts made of crisp checked cotton with contrasting pipings and fourchettes. Smoothly fitted and designed, they contrast all smart dark sheers for summer days ahead. They have modest price marks.

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes.

June 17, 1939.

This is the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. The influence of 8 for those whose birthdate is an 8 [either 8, 17, or 26] is powerful, but there are two sides to the power—success and defeat. Mary, Queen of Scots, and King Albert of Belgium are two of the eight people who felt the dual nature of the number. So to those born on this day don't forget there are two results to a battle—victory and defeat.

For all in general this is a good day to complete and push to a finish the work of the week

Knitted Evening Cape Goes Out 'Dress Parade'

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

For summer formal wear there is nothing more luxurious or elegant than a knitted angora evening cape. This is short and requires little time to knit, since it is made on fairly thick needles. The trimming around the edge may be of the same or contrasting colors. Knitted of candlewick cotton, it serves as an ideal beach cape to prevent sunburn.

For instructions in knitting the evening cape, No. X-284, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The Stage

At the Blackstone theater yesterday the federal theater project presented the first of a series of weekly Friday children's matinées of "The Emperor's New Clothes," an original play by Charlotte Chorpenning.

Tastefully written and cleverly directed, the fantasy seemed to hold the children's interest, with its familiar tale of the Chinese emperor who was tricked into believing that he was wearing a resplendent new costume through the streets when in point of fact he was dressed only in his undershirt.

The action is "stylized" by being turned into formalized patterns of movement. In her plan of the action Eloise Moore, dance director of the project, has kept the movement simple and broad enough to appeal to the children's experience, and has treated the subject matter with gay imagination and good humor.

The music by David Sheinfeld, full of Chinese suggestions, accompanies the story attractively. William J. Pollard is the director in charge of the production. C. S.

If average players think that they have heated arguments over bids or plays—they ought to hear the experts! Take a deal such as the one below, for example. It occurred in a recent master pair tournament and the atmosphere between North and South was decidedly strained from that point on.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 club	1 diamond	Pass	2 hearts
Pass	2 no trump	Pass	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

Since a heart slam was absolutely cold, it is needless to say that neither partner was satisfied with the above bidding. South felt, and stated in no uncertain terms, that he had been let down abysmally by North's failure to bid over four hearts. North was even more vociferous in excoriating South's last bid, claiming that, though South had represented an excellent hand, that he still had understated the fact.

I must say that I agree and sympathize with North's position. South's four heart bid, although strong, placed an unreasonable burden on North's imagination. What is more to the point, it placed an unnecessary burden. Let us consider the implication of all the bids:

North, vulnerable, had overcalled a nonvulnerable opening bid and immediately should have been credited with fairly substantial strength for that overcall. This is particularly true and applicable in a match-point game, in which nonvulnerable opponents are on the alert to "crack" a vulnerable overcaller, even at the one level.

South's two heart jump take-out undoubtedly was correct, since it insured the bidding being kept open for at least one round. This was all South required—he could "take charge" on the next round. When, however, North responded to this temporary force with two no trump, South certainly should not have risked a bid that might close the auction. In other words, his four heart bid, although another jump, was much too difficult to read, and there was a distinct chance that North, not realizing that South had first round control of hearts and diamonds, and second round control of the other two suits, would be satisfied with a game.

Thus, since by this time South could be assured that the bidding would not die short of game [surely North would not drop three hearts after he had shown at least a partial fit with his two no trump], he should have adopted some "stalling" measure that would give the opportunity to exchange further information. As a matter of fact, any one of three different bids would have been a great deal more suitable at this point than the four heart call actually made: [A] South could have bid three hearts to find out whether North would raise to four or rebid the no trump. If a raise came South could assume that his heart suit was solid and then could go investigating for aces with a conventional four no trump bid; [B] South could have bid three diamonds. Perhaps North could bid three hearts and then the bidding could proceed as described; [C] South could have bid three clubs as a cue bid, announcing first round club control and implying a very big hand. Obviously, the "first round club control" part would be a misstatement, but, in view of South's general strength, a very white lie. As a matter of fact, if South had bid either three hearts or three diamonds, North properly would have given a heart raise and South then would have been absolutely safe in employing the 4-5 no trump convention.

Palm Beach—the summer suit for big or little brother

$14.50 and $9.95

Tom felt pretty proud of the hit he was making with Betty in his new Palm Beach white suit (sizes 17-22, $14.50), but now, it seems, his happiness has a price and little brother, who also feels pretty fine himself in his new suit (sizes 12-16, $9.95) is about to be paid his regular evening dime.

CAN WOODERSON BREAK RECORD? HE'LL TRY TODAY

Meets Cunningham in Mile Run.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Princeton, N. J., June 16.—At twilight tomorrow on Princeton university's quarter mile running track, guarded by the tiered slopes of Palmer stadium, where he established a world record for one mile five years ago today, Glenn Cunningham will race Sydney Wooderson of England, only man ever to better his mark.

On June 16, 1934, young Glenn Cunningham, risen to fame three months before, when he had run the fastest mile indoors in history, beat off the challenge of Bill Bonthron, racing four times around Princeton's track in 4 minutes 6.7 seconds. That record, the first established by an American since the days of Norman Taber more than two decades before, not only erased Jack Lovelock's one year mark but it was Cunningham's reply to America's defeat on this same course.

Best Miler of Last 5 Years.

Lovelock, Oxford university student from New Zealand and later an Olympic 1,500 meter champion, had beaten Bonthron by seven yards in that gruelling mile in 1933. Now Cunningham outdistanced Bonthron and established a world record.

For five years the Kansan has been recognized as America's greatest middle distance runner. Lovelock and Bonthron have retired. Other Americans, Don Lash, Archie San Romani, and Chuck Fenske, have had their occasional successes, but eight times in his long career Cunningham has bettered 4 minutes 10 seconds for one mile, a series of astounding performances when viewed in comparison with Paavo Nurmi's 1923 record of 4:10.4, the race in which the flying Finn surpassed Taber's greatest effort.

Cunningham's career was capped 15 months ago when he smashed his own indoor mile record by nearly four seconds, running on the wide, steeply banked track at Dartmouth college. That night, in a handicap race, Glenn ran one mile—6⅔ laps—in 4 minutes 4 and 4-10th seconds, an all time record indoors or out.

Princeton Track Is Famous.

Dartmouth's boards are as internationally famous as is this Princeton track. Twice the mile mark has been beaten in the series of Princeton invitation meets. Here, three years ago, Don Lash of Indiana set a world record for two miles.

This is one reason why Wooderson has come to Princeton. Cunningham, whom the 24 year old solicitor never had met until today, is the other. Wooderson is confident he can defeat Cunningham and his other American opponents, Fenske, San Romani, and Blaine Rideout.

Except for handicap of his journey from London permitting only five days' preparation, Wooderson well may be correct. He has held the world outdoor mile record of 4:06.4 since last August. On May 29, in England's intercounties meet, he ran the mile over an indifferent track in 4:07.4. He holds world records for the half mile, 800 meters, and three-quarters of a mile.

Wooderson Is Favorite.

Wooderson has advantage of youth. But he will compete under strange conditions and against experienced men who know every move in a race that requires perfect judgment.

Both Wooderson and Al Hill, his trainer, are noncommittal on the plans for the race. Wooderson, whose 126 pounds and lack of height make him the antithesis of one's idea of a great runner, may be content to trail Cunningham. In this case he would rely on his exceptional finishing speed, a factor in Bonthron's 1,500 meter victory over Cunningham in 1934.

Wooderson May Set Pace.

If Wooderson is to set a new world record, however, he probably must make the pace, attempting to run the first quarter in at least 61 seconds, slower a second or so for the second and third laps, and then finishing the final quarter as near the minute mark as possible. All depends somewhat on the weather, although so well drained is this Princeton track that a rainstorm would not affect the event. In fact, it probably would be favorable even as rain aided Lash three years ago. Humidity would be the greatest handicap.

So. California Places 15 in Finals.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 16.—(AP)—Elmer Hackney, husky weight star representing Kansas State, took the play away from the well-balanced Southern California team, defending champion, in the eighteenth annual National Collegiate athletic association track meet today as he broke the N. In the Wake of the News

NOBODY can attribute the mediocre showing of the 1939 Cubs to the owner's reluctance to shell out money for talent. . . . Few magnates in baseball history have spent more lavishly than Philip K. There will be a change in the system of electing coaches for the All-Star football game this summer which is designed to distribute the talent on a national basis. . . . The amazing development of fan interest, especially in the middle west, complicated the chances of a coach from another section winning one of the five places on the staff. . . . This year the mid-west representation will be limited to two, the Big Ten coach who gets the greatest number of votes and the coach outside the Big Ten who is accorded heaviest support. . . . The southern coach who gets more votes than any other candidate in that section automatically will qualify for the strategy board. . . . The same policy applies to the east and far west. . . . The coach receiving the greatest total will be head coach. . . . Bo McMillin of Indiana was the winner last year. . . . His predecessors in order were Charles Dorais of Detroit, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, Frank Thomas of Alabama, and Noble Kizer of Purdue.

Father.

Yours is a name that I mention
In a most reverent way,
Something impels me to honor

All thru my life I have tried,
Even amid tribulation,
In hope and love to abide.

You've taught that worldly ambitions
May rise and fall like the sea,
But of far greater importance

Where buds of beauty are seen,
There is a quality freshness
Smiling and blooming between.

In your garden of life I find
Eternal flowers so sweet,
In admiration I linger,
Your name I fondly repeat.

SENATORS ROUT FRASIER IN FIRST; WHIP SOX, 5 TO 2

Marcum Does Neat Relief Job, but It's Too Late.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—Vic Frasier, who made his last start for the White Sox six years ago, tried it again today but apparently hadn't rested sufficiently between appearances. Only a few minutes elapsed between the silent Texan's comeback debut and departure but a few minutes was enough for a series of lamentable happenings. Vic didn't survive even the first inning and what the Senators did to him was enough to eventually whip the White Sox in the series final, 5 to 2, and hold them to an even break in the four games.

Maybe it was the excessive heat or the ladies' day screeches that disturbed the fellow who is accustomed to the quiet of the wide open spaces. At any rate he faced nine batters, only two of whom he handled successfully. The seven others conspired to collect an assortment of four hits and three passes. Four runs scored and three others were on the bags when Johnny Marcum stepped into the arena to restore order. The four run cluster proved more than the Sox could whittle down in their eight subsequent innings of hitting effort off Harry Kelley.

Marcum Does All Right.

Marcum's work in his first American league appearance since he was acquired from the Browns for John Whitehead furnished salve for the soreness lingering from Frasier's speedy collapse. After ending the first inning disturbance the newcomer into the Sox ranks blazed his way through six innings on an allowance of two hits, hoping his mates would do enough hitting to pull up even. But they didn't and the one run Marcum surrendered in the eighth was of no importance.

The Sox outhit their foes, but most of the blows went to waste. In the fourth they piled three hits on top of an error in the Senators' defense, but could score only one against Kelley, who is so old that the record of his birth has been lost. They landed on the old timer for another bunch of three hits in the eighth and again scored only once. But it wasn't Kelley's skill in this instance as much as an unwaranted bit of running by Joe Kuhel.

Vic Doesn't Linger Long.

Frasier's brief but hectic first inning opened with a single by Case, who scored on Travis' triple to right. The next two fellows were retired but one of the outs gave Travis a chance to scamper home. Then

Hold Chicagoland's Biggest Outdoor Dog Show Today

BY BOB BECKER.

Big and little dogs, long haired and short haired dogs, rare breeds and popular breeds—all will be in Dyche stadium, Evanston, today for the first outdoor bench show sponsored by the Skokie Valley Kennel club. The entry totals 713 dogs of fifty-three breeds, making it the largest outdoor bench show ever held in Chicagoland. Starting at 9:30 this morning, the judging will continue on through the evening, when the best dog in the show is picked.

One of the most amusing and educational features of the show is the series of obedience classes sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. All records for entries in obedience classes will be broken at today's show when fifty-five trained dogs go into the ring to compete for points and trophies. This is the largest obedience class entry ever known in any American dog show. THE TRIBUNE is awarding five plaques and a special trophy to the winners of these obedience classes. Judging of the trained dogs will start at 10 o'clock [the novice classes] and continue throughout the day.

Twelve Breeds in A Class.

The novice A class in obedience will be especially interesting to the average dog owner because of the number of breeds represented and the fact the owners of the dogs competing must handle them in the ring. [All professional handlers are barred [from this class.] Twelve breeds of dogs are represented in the novice A class, including not only working breeds but also several terriers [Airedale and Welsh] and the little Schipperke, a breed rarely seen in obedience tests.

All of the novice B class dogs will be marked by Judge Paul Finsterwalder on their ability to heel on leash, heel free [without leash], come when called, sit for a period of one minute away from the handler, and lie down for a period of three minutes away from the handler. A perfect score is 100.

Trained Dogs to Perform.

Three special trained dog acts are on the program. One of the acts is scheduled for 4 p. m., while the other two will be held during the variety group judging starting at 8 p. m.

At 4 o'clock Willie Necker, Wheeling, W. Va., will give an exhibition with his troupe of trained Dobermann-Pinschers. The troupe is one Necker has exhibited on the stage, in many dogs shows, and at fairs. The Dobermanns will retrieve, scale high walls, hurdle, and do other tricks. One of them has been trained to play the rôle of a clown.

The second trained dog act will feature 10 year old George Gessner, who has trained a Dobermann to perform many tricks. Rin Tin Tin Jr., the motion picture dog which has appeared in many Hollywood productions, and its owner, Lee Duncan, have been invited by the German Shepherd Dog Training club to appear in one of the rings. Mr. Duncan will give an exhibition of simple obedience training with Rin Tin Tin Jr. and also show some of the special tricks that the dog has had to learn for motion picture work. This exhibition will take place during the evening.

Rally Ends as Bryant Strikes Out.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The New York Giants continued to find the Cubs easy pickings yesterday as they swept the three game series by winning, 6 to 4. It was the Giants' eighth straight success and their fifth straight over the aimless champions.

The Cubs, who plunked from a first division habitat to a notch 1½ games in the second division during the Giant visit, now have sixth place as their nearest goal. They are a half game ahead of the Pirates and 2½ games away from the seventh place Boston Bees. Of less vital importance, perhaps, is the fact the Cubs are 9½ games behind the league leading Cincinnati Reds.

Until the eighth the only run the Cubs had yesterday was produced by Pitcher Claude Passeau. The only Cub run in the first game of the series was driven in by Pitcher Bill Lee. The only run other than three batted in Thursday by Hank Leiber was batted in by Pitcher Larry French. These batting loads carried by the pitchers, in case you haven't a list of batting averages handy, furnish one of the answers to the question many folks are asking: "What's wrong with the Cubs?"

That Bonura Man Again.

Things have got so bad that Manager Gabby Hartnett sent up a lame pitcher, Clay Bryant, to bat for Stan Hack in the eighth with three runs in and the tying runs on base. Clay who has been sort of out of touch with the ball club and all-around pitcher responsibility, struck out to end the lone Cub threat of the day.

Zeke Bonura was the main man in the three run batch the Giants produced in the first inning. Moore opened with a double to left and stopped at third on Ripple's single to right. Passeau fanned Danning and Ott popped to Bartell. Then Bonura tripled along the right field line, scoring Moore and Ripple. Bonura ran across the plate a moment later when Demaree bounced a single past Bartell.

Load Bases After Homer.

Bartell led off the Cub half of the third with a fly to Moore, then Passeau knocked his homer high into the bleachers in left center. Hack and Herman walked and, after Galan was called out on strikes, Leiber walked, loading the bases. Schumacher then threw out Reynolds.

The Cubs didn't want any part of Bonura's bat in the fifth. Danning opened the inning with a double and held on while Ott popped to Bartell. Bonura was given an intentional pass, but Demaree doubled to right center, scoring Danning and Bonura. Chiozza and Kampouris struck out. Passeau made it four strikeouts in a row when he speared Schumacher and Moore in the sixth. Herman threw out Ripple to end the whiff string.

Two Bases on Sacrifice.

Danning opened the seventh with a single to left and went from first to third on Ott's sacrifice. The play was made possible when third was left uncovered, a lapse which did not

STAKE HORSES RENEW FEUD IN 2 $2,500 RACES

Dellor Among 8 Entered in Marquette at Crete.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Dellor, Manie O'Hara, Her Reigh, and Silverette, winners of previous stake events during the Lincoln Fields meeting, will try again in the two $2,500 handicaps which head today's program. The six furlong Calumet drew fifteen overnight entries and the mile and an eighth Marquette attracted eight.

Her Reigh and Some Count, which finished one-two in last Saturday's La Salle handicap, will get a chance to renew their duel. If the track remains dry, however, these two mudders will not be taken as seriously as they were in the quagmire through which last week's feature was run. Both are entered in the Marquette.

Dellor to Get Heavy Play.

Dellor, winner of the Peabody Memorial handicap on Memorial day, is expected to get heavy backing in the distance event. Manie O'Hara, the gray filly which led the way home in two stake events, the Kankakee and the Steger, is entered in both of today's handicaps and will have a following regardless of which race she undertakes.

Silverette, the 9 year old mare which won the Crete handicap on opening day, is scheduled to go in the Calumet. Other good sprinters in the field include The Fighter, Finance, Mucho Gusto, King's Blue, and Tiger. The field for the distance event will be completed by Burning Star, Bala Ormont, Chance Ray, and Dolly Val.

Warren Yarberry, who had ridden the winners of the last four races on Thursday, ran his string to five straight by bringing in Karl Mayer's 4 year old colt, Million Bucks, in the first event on yesterday's card.

He Recaptures Lead.

Hanke promptly rode back into a tie with Yarberry by whipping in the 6 to 5 favorite, Chicharra, in the third race.

Yarberry regained the lead in the fifth race when his mount, Alup, was moved into the No. 1 position after Isolene, which had finished first, was disqualified. Jockey Herb Litzenberger was set down for the remainder of the meeting for allowing Isolene to swerve in the stretch so as to cut off Frozen Mask completely and impede Alup.

Nose and nose, Isolene and Alup came down the stretch, so close together that the jockeys' boots were scraping. Yarberry tried to use his whip on Alup, but scarcely had room to swing it.

Yarberry Brings in No. 3.

Yarberry didn't stop there. He rode his third winner of the day in the following race, the La Salle Hotel handicap, a five furlong event for 2 year olds of the $2,500 claiming grade. His mount was the Woolford Farm's Ogallah. After setting the pace around the turn, Ogallah drew away from Broomian and Little Ruler as the stretch run progressed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—The White Sox escaped to Philadelphia as speedily as possible after today's game. They are booked for four games with the A's in three days, the extra affair being on Sunday's program. Bill Dietrich will operate against his former mates tomorrow, George Caster will start for the A's.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, is living in a bomb-proof dugout these days. It's the only place he is assured of safety from the lethal missiles being hurled at him by press and public about his feeble ball team.

Commissioner K. M. Landis' recent edict baring all except plain lacing between the thumb and forefinger of gloves has been rescinded and the boys now are busy restoring all their pet devices. The exception is for first basemen, who were the worst offenders. Their butterfly net contraptions are still taboo. They must get along on the plain, untaped lacing.

Pirates Break Losing Streak; Beat Bees, 4-2

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 16.—(AP)—Steady pitching by Bob Klinger and timely hitting by Lee Handley ended a six game losing streak for Pittsburgh today by giving the Pirates a 4 to 2 victory over Boston. Handley's triple in the first inning with two on, provided the margin of victory. He drove in a third run in the sixth and also stole second twice, running his total to eleven.

Klinger was hit by a liner in the ninth and forced to retire, Mace Brown succeeding him.

Fifty auto race drivers from all parts of the country tonight will drive in time trials for the board track midget race meet on the quarter mile banked board oval in Soldier's field at 8 o'clock.

The meet opens tomorrow night, with 162 laps of racing divided among ten events. The same program will be presented on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights, with a fifty lap class A feature topping each card. The 100 lap championship final will be held on Sunday night, June 25. The races are sponsored by the Chicago Bowl corporation for the benefit of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, Chicago unit. Col. Roscoe Turner will referee the meet.

MOTHER FLIES TO BEDSIDE OF MISS COLEMAN

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Georgia Coleman, Olympic diving star who began a comeback two years ago after having infantile paralysis, was described as a "very, very sick girl" tonight. Friends said visitors had been barred from her hospital room and that her mother was flying here from Los Angeles. Miss Coleman was stricken with a liver and kidney ailment while teaching swimming at the Skyline Athletic club.

At the start of the home seventh Passeau retired for Pinch Batter Bob Garbark. Garbark made good Manager Hartnett's judgment by making his first hit of the year, a single to right. Hack's pop fly plunked in short center, but Moore recovered the ball and threw to Kampouris in time to force Garbark at second. Herman bounced into a double play.

Here's the detail of the Cubs' belated uprising in the eighth: Galan opened with a double to left center. Gleeson, who had replaced Leiber in center, tapped to Bonura, but Reynolds singled to left, scoring Galan. Mesner batted for Lillard and when Schumacher pitched two wide ones to Steve Coffman was called in. He threw two more wide ones to walk Mesner. The runners moved up on G. Russell's tap to Ott, then Bartell singled to right, scoring Reynolds and Mesner. Garbark singled to left, Bartell reaching third. With the tying run on first Manager Terry sent in Cliff Melton and Manager Hartnett sent up Clay Bryant to bat for Hack. Bryant struck out.

The ever colorful Dodgers, especially rosy as a result of a month of successful endeavor, this afternoon will open a four game series in Wrigley field. There is to be a single game today, the first Wrigley field double-header of the season tomorrow and a single game Monday. Earl Whitehill, the Cubs' Saturday pitcher, is scheduled to pitch today.

Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean will pitch the double-header tomorrow. With good weather this billing is expected to lure Wrigley field's largest crowd of the year.

Courtright to Meet Kocsis for Golf Title

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 16.—[Special.]—Sam Kocsis of Detroit and Bill Courtright of Ann Arbor will meet at 36 holes for the western junior golf championship tomorrow on the University of Michigan course.

Kocsis, youngest member of a well known golfing family that includes two prominent professionals in the Detroit district and Chuck Kocsis, former intercollegiate champion and Walker cup player, entered the finals with a brilliant victory over Chase Fannon of Northwestern university in this afternoon's semi-finals.

Triumphs on Extra Hole.

Courtright, 17 year old son of the University of Michigan golf coach, maintained the pace that brought him from complete obscurity through the quarter-final and semi-final rounds today.

After eliminating Drew Egeleston, Detroit and Michigan junior champion, this morning, Kocsis came back this afternoon to triumph over Fannon, the Western conference individual champion and tournament medalist, on the 19th hole.

In the morning round Kocsis kept close to par throughout to eliminate Egleston, 3 and 1. Fannon had to go 19 holes to whip Jim McCarthy of Lockport, Ill., in the quarter-finals.

Wins on Short Game.

Courtright disposed of Stanley Sisler of South Bend, Ind., 4 and 3 this afternoon after eliminating Bill Kelley of Northwestern university, 3 and 1, this morning. Outdriven consistently by Sisler, Courtright's short game came to the rescue as the 6 foot 4 inch Hoosier, who entered the match play as the last qualifier, could not find his putting touch. Sisler had entered the semi-finals with a 3 and 2 triumph over Dale Morey of Edgewood Country club, Chicago.

Estalella walked, Bloodworth singled, and Prichard walked, filling the bases. Giuliani singled on the first pitch, scoring Estalella and Bloodworth. A pass to Kelley reloaded the bags and also was the signal for Frasier's finish. Marcum halted the mêlée by inducing Case to fly to Walker.

The Sox made elaborate arrangements for a flock of runs in the fourth but suddenly collapsed with a net result of one. The drive started with Lewis' fumble of Walker's grounder. Radcliff expired on a popup but Appling singled to right on a hit and run, Walker taking third. He scored when Kreevich beat out a hit to Lewis. McNair crammed the bases by bouncing a hit over Kelley's head. Then Rensa hit into a double play.

After Kelley had turned out two hitless innings the Sox gave him a little to worry about in the seventh. Kreevich opened the inning with a single into center but was forced by McNair. Rosenthal was nominated to bat for Rensa but produced nothing more potent than a fly to Wright. Marcum singled, but Bejma forced him.

Kuhel Doubled at Plate.

The eighth, in which the Sox were guilty of unwaranted daring, opened with Kuhel's double to right. He moved to third on a looping single to short left by Walker. Radcliff flied short to Wright and, although one run was of no value, Kuhel got the idea he could score after the catch. He was doubled at the plate. Kelley gave Walker a cheap ride to third on two wild pitches, after which Appling scored him with a single to right.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRISTOL, England, June 16.—Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, once Germany's leading tennis player, has been denied a visa to visit America next fall by United States embassy officials, he revealed today. The former German star had planned to compete in the American tennis tournament at Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 7 to 16.

Von Cramm, who at present is competing in the West of England tennis tournament, was released last Oct. 16 from a German prison, where he had served seven months of a one year sentence on conviction of immorality.

American Giants Oppose Stars in Opener Today

Miss Barrett in Golf Final with Miss Dettweiler

Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis, winner last year and finalist for the third straight time, ran away from Mrs. Sam Israel of New Orleans in their semi-final match, 8 and 7. In the other semi-final, Helen Dettweiler of Washington, D. C., playing her first tournament as a professional, beat 15 year old Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., 3 and 1.

Miss Dettweiler was out in 42 to lead 4 up at the turn, but little Jeanne rallied to win three successive holes. Jeanne ran into trouble, however, on the 13th and took a seven to go two down again. The next three holes were halved, but the Washington pro was close to the 17th hole in three and Jeanne, lying four, conceded the putt, hole and match.

Miss Barrett, playing her best golf of the tournament, was out in 39, two over women's par, to take a 7 up lead over Mrs. Israel, who was having considerable difficulty with her game after playing excellently in the earlier rounds.

Harrison and Shute Win 2 Matches; Lead

Toledo, O., June 16.—(AP)—Denny Shute, who lost the national open in the playoff at Philadelphia last week, and Ernie [Dutch] Harrison of Chicago won two matches today to take the lead in the fifth annual Inverness $5,200 four ball tournament.

The Shute-Harrison combination, 10 under par for the day's 36 holes, turned in a 3 up victory over Ed Dudley and Ky Laffoon in the morning, and then came back for a 1 up victory over Horton Smith and Harry Cooper.

Shute and Harrison, plus 6; Smith and Cooper, plus 5; Henry Picard and John Revolta, plus 4; Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, and Sam Snead and Vic Ghezzi, even; Byron Nelson and Harold McSpayden, minus 2; Jimmy Thomson and Tommy Armour, minus 6, and Dudley and Laffoon, minus 7.

Under the Inverness scoring system a team gets a plus for each hole won and a minus for each hole lost, with scores being carried over for the duration of the event.

MORNING ROUND—Picard-Revolta [63] 4 up on Nelson-McSpayden [67]; Snead-Ghezzi [67] even with Hagen-Sarazen [67]; Smith-Cooper [68] 4 up on Thomson-Armour [72]; Shute-Harrison [63] 3 up on Dudley-Laffoon [67].

AFTERNOON ROUND—Hagen-Sarazen [66] 2 up on Picard-Revolta [68]; Snead-Ghezzi [65] even with Thomson-Armour [65]; Shute-Harrison [69] 1 up on Smith-Cooper [70]; Nelson-McSpayden [66] 2 up on Dudley-Laffoon [69].

ILLINOIS SECOND IN REPAYMENTS ON HOLC LOANS

Home Owners Pay Back 20.7% of Borrowings.

BY AL CHASE.

Illinois ranks as the second state in total dollar volume of repayments of Home Owners' Loan corporation loans. Out of $280,000,000 loans made to 70,000 borrowers in this state approximately $58,000,000 of principal has been paid to June 1. The dollar volume of repayments by HOLC home owners is 20.7 per cent, which is slightly above the national average. These facts were told yesterday by F. B. Bourland, state manager for the HOLC, in a statement made public on the sixth anniversary of the agency.

F. B. Bourland.

Illinois sales of HOLC properties acquired through foreclosure or voluntary deed have increased steadily until in April this state led all others with 333 sales. On June 1 it led all states in dollar volume of properties resold and placed in strong hands, Bourland said.

Collections Show Improvement.

During the last year collection records for Illinois also have improved steadily, he reported. In January, 1936, about 83 per cent of the monthly billings were collected. By January, 1938, the ratio had climbed to 90 per cent and by January, 1939, approximately 99 per cent of the billings had been paid, Bourland said.

In actual number of HOLC loans paid in full as of June 1 Illinois ranks fifth among all states, with a total of approximately 2,500 retired, involving more than eight million dollars.

For Illinois, according to figures to June 1, about 56,000 of the original 70,000 borrowers are in a satisfactory condition, Bourland said. That is, the accounts are either current, less than three months in arrears, or meeting all current payments and retiring accumulated arrearages.

Take Over 135,927 Homes.

The HOLC throughout the country has been forced to acquire 135,927 homes through foreclosure or voluntary deed—20 per cent of them in the last category. In Illinois it was necessary to acquire 6,200 homes through foreclosure or voluntary deed. This is a fraction over 9 per cent as compared with the national average of about 13½ per cent.

For the United States as a whole there were originally three billion dollars of HOLC loans. More than 683,000 of the original one million borrowers were in good standing on May 1, it was said.

SILVER SENATORS DEBATE PLAN TO BOOST CURRENCY

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—Members of the senate silver bloc considered today a proposal by Senator Thomas [D., Okla.] to issue $2,000,000,000 of new currency, to be backed by that amount of gold. Thomas had proposed that $1,500,000,000 of gold be taken from the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund that that $500,000,000 of "free gold" in the treasury be used to back the currency.

Thomas told the meeting his proposal, offered as an amendment to pending legislation extending the President's monetary powers, would "give a major measure of relief."

"It will do this," Thomas said, "by cheapening the dollar, raising the price level, raising the national income. I admit it will hurt the bondholder, hurt the big banks, and hurt the members of congress, who receive a fixed salary."

Present at today's meeting besides Thomas were Senators Frazier [R., N. D.], McCarran [D., Nev.], Pittman [D., Nev.], Adams [D., Colo.], Wheeler [D., Mont.], Hatch [D., N. M.], Chavez [D., N. M.], Thomas [D., Utah], and Johnson [D., Colo.].

LAKE SHIPMENT OF MOLASSES DUE TO ARRIVE TODAY

The motorship Michigan is due to arrive in Chicago this morning with a cargo of molasses, sugar, and sirup, valued at approximately $100,000, for the American Molasses company. This company, which has its headquarters in New York, recently opened a Chicago plant at 330-50 East North Water street. Its Chicago operations will be started with the arrival of the cargo.

The motorship is carrying a cargo totaling between 1,600 and 1,800 tons, which were taken on board at the company's New York plant. The molasses, which will be the principal part of the cargo, was imported from various islands in the West Indies.

Richard S. Taussig, vice president of the company in charge of western operations, said this is the first shipment of this type of molasses that has been brought to Chicago by water.

School Warants, Sanitary District Bonds to Be Paid

Tax anticipation warants totaling $2,722,000 with interest aggregating $71,147, were called for payment yesterday by the board of education. The warants included: 1938 educational funds, E-3331 to E-3791; 1938 building fund B-3029 to B-3427, and 1938 playground P-196 to P-218. The sanitary district trustees voted to retire $3,000,000 of outstanding bonds on July 1. The bonds to be retired are $1,263,000 bearing 4¼ per cent interest and $1,737,000 bearing 4 per cent interest.

NAZIS BORROW ON FUTURE AT TERRIFIC RATE

Issue Tax Prepayment Certificates.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, June 16.—The terrific rate at which Germany is pouring money into her military economy was illustrated anew today. It was revealed that since the new financial plan became effective on May 1 the government has issued approximately 1 billion marks of new tax prepayment certificates with which it is obtaining money over and above current tax receipts.

This means that the government is borrowing on the future at the rate of between 8 to 10 billion marks annually despite the fact that tax collections will be increased another 4 billion during the current fiscal year.

According to Dr. Fritz Reinhardt, state secretary in the finance ministry, government tax revenues rose from 6.6 billion marks in 1932 to 17.7 billion in 1938, and are expected to reach 22 billion this year.

This means that the total tax burden, including state and local, imposed on Germans, which amounted to 10.3 billion marks in 1932 and rose to 22.2 billion last year, will approach 27 billion this year. Besides, many more millions were collected in unemployment insurance premiums and numerous other levies.

The new aspect of this government borrowing is that tax prepayment certificates are legal tender for both public and private payments up to 40 per cent of sums due for materials and services, except wages and salaries. This means that there is that much more money in circulation in Germany over and above regular currency.

1938 COUNTY TAX PAYMENTS AHEAD OF THOSE FOR 1937

Tax collections on 1938 county tax bills are running 3.4 per cent higher than collections for the same period last year, reports from County Treasurer John Toman showed yesterday, when clerks completed their tabulation of mail payments through June 15. Total payments by mail and in person, exclusive of those to country town treasurers, amounted to $90,454,458 through June 15, compared with $87,509,479 through June 15, 1938. Collections through June 15, including those by country town treasurers, totaled $100,736,520.

ACTUARIES SEEK UNIFORM RATES, PROBERS HEAR

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—The federal monopoly committee heard today that actuaries of more than twenty of the nation's largest insurance companies held frequent meetings for the purpose of arriving at uniform rates for annuity contracts.

Arthur Hunter, chief actuary for the New York Life Insurance company, testified that he usually presided at the meetings, in the New York Life offices, and served as a "clearing house" for exchanging information on annuity contract experience.

Hunter told the committee that, although an entirely uniform premium rate program did not result from the meetings, their purpose was primarily to bring about "greater and greater uniformity."

The witness said he had destroyed his own notes of the meetings "in the regular course of business" each year, along with other records he regarded as of "no importance."

C., June 16.—[Special.]—The bureau of internal revenue has granted a tax refund of $914,057 to the International Match corporation covering overassessments of income tax and interest for 1929 and 1930. In addition the bureau abated $1,037,218 representing its claim for unpaid taxes and interest for 1931. As the result of these adjustments the bureau said the trustee in bankruptcy for International Match has agreed to dismissal of suits for recovery of income taxes and interest in excess of the overassessments.

TAX REVISION BILL APPROVED BY HOUSE GROUP

Adoption on Floor Sought Monday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—The 1939 tax bill today was approved by the house ways and means committee and is scheduled to reach the floor on Monday, with passage the same day possible. The bill provides technical revisions in the tax law and kills the New Deal's pet tax on undistributed profits.

Sen. Harrison, who fought pet New Deal tax.

Born three years ago in the heat of an administration drive for redistribution of wealth, the tax levy resulted only in pulling the Roosevelt depression deeper by taking the profit incentive out of business, in the opinion of fiscal experts and business men.

Cut to 2½ Pct. Last Year.

Beginning as a 7 to 27 per cent tax on undistributed earnings of corporations earning more than $25,000 annually, the tax last year was sliced to 2½ per cent. But its doom was sealed early in this session by the demands of Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], senate finance committee chairman, and treasury officials that it be relegated to the New Deal junk heap.

The bill approved by the ways and means committee today also provides for other technical changes. As now drawn, it does not reduce the total taxes levied on corporations. It rearranges the tax provisions so as to encourage business and spare it from unnecessary red tape in tax computations. The total amount of corporate revenues is still expected to aproximate 1 billion 300 million dollars annually.

Seek Passage Monday.

Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the ways and means committee, said that he planned to call up the bill for house consideration on Monday, and have it passed in one day, if possible. Since there was no opposition to the measure within the committee it is expected to get speedy approval in the house. There is also no apparent opposition in the senate. It meets the provisions set up by Harrison, southern conservative who is regarded as the tax spokesman in the upper chamber.

In leaving the committee room today John W. Hanes, undersecretary of the treasury and spark plug for tax revision within the treasury, expressed satisfaction with the tax measure, saying "The committee has done a grand job."

Other Important Changes.

The two important amendments to the original draft were made by the full committee at the last minute. They were:

1. Permit individuals and partnerships to carry over net losses for two years. The original bill had extended this privilege only to corporations.

2. Include notes, debentures, and certificates of indebtedness, along with bonds, among obligations which corporations will be permitted to retire at less than face value without taxation. Corporations taking advantage of this provision must show that they are in an unsound financial condition.

The tax bill would extend for two years the "emergency" 3 cent postal rate on first class mail and the "nuisance" taxes on luxury items, theater admissions, gasoline, etc. They yield approximately 100 million and 500 million dollars, respectively, per year.

Sets Rate of 18 Per Cent.

The bill, in killing the undistributed profits levy by permitting it to expire Dec. 31, 1939, would replace it with a flat rate of 18 per cent on net earnings of corporations amounting to more than $25,000 a year. The present rate, including the undistributed profits levy, runs between 16½ and 19 per cent. Corporations with earnings of less than $25,000 would continue to pay existing rates.

The bill would also repeal the present limitation of $2,000 on capital losses that can be charged against ordinary income, and would allow corporations to increase capital stock valuations in each of the next two years, thus paring excess profits taxes.

The ways and means committee voted a permanent tax of 10 per cent on retail sales of sporting firearms, shells, and cartridges. The tax has been existing as a temporary law for two years with annual revenues of about 3½ million dollars returned to the states for wild life conservation. The tax bill does not provide any changes in the present personal income tax rates.

NEW BUILDING SETS PEAK FOR MAY SINCE 1930

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Contracts for new construction and engineering work undertaken during May amounted to $308,487,000 for thirty-seven eastern states, highest for any May since 1930, F. W. Dodge corporation reported today

Privately owned construction totaled $173,730,000, which was 25 per cent ahead of last year and 2 per cent above the previous month. For the first five months of this year this class of construction was 36 per cent ahead of 1938.

Eccles Maps Plans for New U. S. Spending

Boston, June 16.—(AP)—Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, outlined tonight a new program for federal spending, boosting consumer purchasing power and helping certain industries. He said the nation must not "drift" along hoping for miracles to improve business. He spoke before the Harvard Business school alumni.

Eccles said the industries which offered the most hope for private reemployment of labor were housing construction, railroads, and utilities, and that the government ought to encourage them to make larger capital expenditures. Housing construction, particularly, may benefit from a potential new crop of home owners if financing rates can be brought down, he declared.

Believes Rate Could Be Cut.

Referring to the present 5 per cent maximum interest rate on home mortgages insured by the federal housing administration, he said:

"I think it would be possible to lower interest rates from the present level another one-half or possibly one per cent, and thus tap another strata of potential home owners."

"The utilities ought by now to feel fairly well assured that they need not be deterred from needed expansion of plant.

"I agree," he said, "that it is unwise public policy for the government to go into the utility field in competition with private capital." He contended, however, that recent public power developments arose from and were "justified" by financial abuses.

Although he gave no specific plan for helping the railroads, he is understood to favor the plan mentioned in Washington by the President today for setting up a corporation to buy railroad equipment and lease it to railroads unable to buy it outright.

Would Reduce Taxes.

To help consumers, Eccles suggested reduced taxes, such as the excises on automobiles and other manufactures, which are paid almost directly by consumers.

Apparently endorsing the pending administration measure to prevent increases in the old age pay roll tax and to start paying pensions in 1940 instead of 1942, he said:

"Perhaps the most important single step that can be taken now to increase the purchasing power of consumers and thus to diminish the need for investment outlets is to revamp our present old age insurance program. . . . This system needs to be so revised as to provide a reasonable pension to old people immediately, regardless of whether they have contributed to the fund. This would not only meet a great social need and popular demand, but would also be a sound economic measure at this stage in our economic life."

Eccles, known in the nation's capitol as the chief advocate of the theory of stimulating business by increasing governmental expenditures, defended his idea again.

GASOLINE PRICE IS ADVANCED BY 19 OIL CONCERNS

New York, June 16.—(AP)—The price of gasoline has been advanced ½ cent a gallon by nineteen major oil companies in various sections of the United States, matching an increase instituted last week by Sinclair Refining company, a checkup showed today. The increase, it was said, applies to all grades of tank wagon deliveries.

Gasoline distributing authorities said the Pacific coast and New England states were virtually the only ones unaffected by the increase. Three major companies which did not join in the advance were Standard Oil of New Jersey, Sun Oil, and Atlantic Refining.

Although Socony-Vacuum Oil and subsidiaries were reported to have made the ½ cent advance in fifteen states, a company spokesman said no change had been made in the northeastern section of the country.

Among the companies reported to have joined the advance were Texas, Gulf Oil, Shell Union Oil, Pure Oil, Cities Service, Standard Oil of Indiana, National Refining, and Tidewater Oil.

Two of Oldest Brokerage Houses to Merge July 1

CUT IN SIZE OF PAPER MONEY TEN YEARS AGO SAVES U. S. 18 MILLION

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—Ten years after the size of paper money was reduced one-third, treasury officials estimated today that $18,000,000 has been saved by the curtailment.

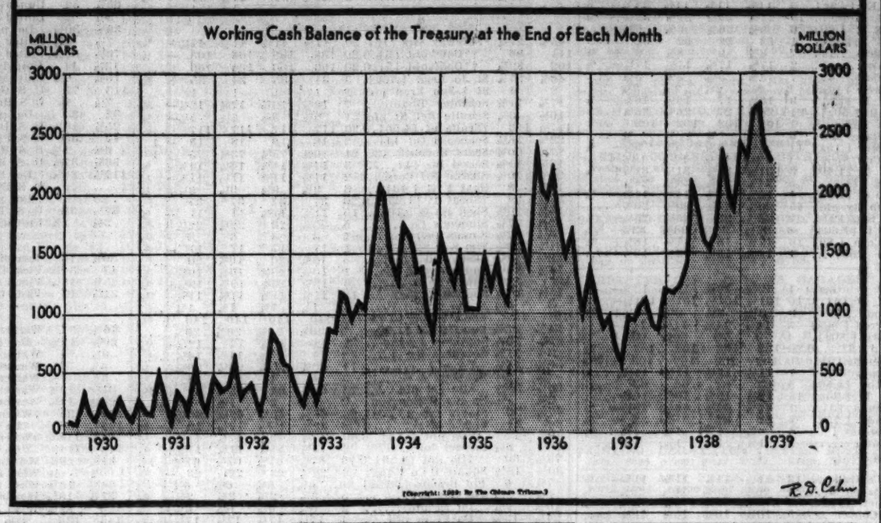
In the decade, 9,338,917,777 bills have been printed in denominations ranging from $1 to $100,000. The $100,000 ones are kept in a museum, and nothing higher than $10,000 actually circulates.

The smaller bills, officials said, cost just under a penny each regardless of denomination. A saving of paper, ink, labor, and storage space amounts to nearly $2 per thousand bills.

There are about 960,000,000 bills worth $6,357,000,000 in circulation outside the treasury and federal reserve banks.

However, some one has a lot of those old oversized bills in hiding. A total of 10,775,173 of them never has been accounted for, and even allowing for losses in fires, drain pipes, etc., there are bound to be some whole ones about.

The Treasury Keeps Its Cash Balance Above Two Billion Dollars



Doctor Called to Doctor U. S. Trade Doctor

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—The doctor came today to diagnose the ills of the commerce department. What with the Washington heat and the jitters of disorganization, the department that is expected to tell business men how to improve business has been in a bad way for weeks, so a sort of industrial psycho-analyst finally was called in.

Dr. Willard Thorp, "busines doctor."

He is Hardwick Stires of the New York firm of Scudder, Stevens, and Clark, business analysts. He will have an unnamed consultant soon. They will count a pulse here and take a temperature there and test an I. Q. yonder to see if they can find some one to head the still rudderless bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, which is very ill, indeed.

Lack of Management Felt.

One of the troubles with the department has been a lack of management. Harry L. Hopkins, the secretary, has been ill a lot of late. He is now coming back from Iowa where he bought a farm. Edward J. Noble, under-secretary of commerce, said today that he was extremely busy learning his job. The $133,500 staff of experts that Mr. Hopkins wanted and congress gave him, is still in embryo.

Such management as there has been has come from Dr. Willard L. Thorp, whom the senate once failed to confirm as the head of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. He was promptly given a title of "economic adviser" to the secretary, a post that needs no senatorial approval. He has been rushing about conducting negotiations with business, supervising key activities, drafting new plans for industrial recovery and giving orders on the reorganization of bureaus.

Orders Are Not Executed.

There have been quite a number of reorganization orders in the department, but nearly all of them remain unexecuted.

But the unkindest cut of all came today when it was discovered that Hopkins' $133,000 staff of beauties, when, as, and if issued, will likely be short of paper. This condition has been growing acute in the department for some time. There isn't enough money available at the moment even to do a $2 mimeographing job and how can you do business even by telephone without something to doodle on?

SECURITY FRAUD CONVICT FREED BY ROOSEVELT

Boston, Mass., June 16.—[Special.]—William L. Jarvis, convicted in the $1,200,000 frauds in Atlas Tack company and Polymet Manufacturing company stocks, was pardoned by President Roosevelt on May 28, it was disclosed today. He served fifteen months of a five year sentence in a federal penitentiary.

According to friends and his former counsel, Jarvis is ill at his summer home at Scituate. Illness was understood to have been the reason on which Jarvis based his petition for a presidential pardon.

Along with four other men, Jarvis was convicted in the federal court at Boston in 1936 in connection with the fraudulent use of the mails in the sale of stock.

Roosevelt Urges Mexico Speed Oil Land Dickering

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt at his press conference today confirmed reports that at his conference yesterday with Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican ambassador, he had asked the Mexican government to speed up its negotiations with American companies over Mexican expropriation of oil properties. He gave no details, however. The negotiations, which have been entering upon the possibility of some form of government and company joint operation, recently bogged down.

MAY AIR CONDITIONING SALES SET NEW PEAK ON 77 INSTALLATIONS

Sales of central plant air conditioning systems in Chicago in May set a new all time high record, the Commonwealth Edison company reported yesterday. Contracts were made for 77 air conditioning installations with a combined capacity of 829 horse power. A total of 63 systems, 549 horse power, was sold in May, 1938. The previous high mark was set in May, 1937, when 73 contracts, with a total capacity of 1,319 horse power, were closed.

A gain of 68 per cent in electric room cooler sales also was made last month. A total of 111 of these units was purchased, compared with 66 in May, 1938.

Restaurants led all other classifications last month, with 31 installations. General offices followed with ten. Drug stores were third, with nine systems.

U. S. STEEL FOUND GUILTY IN PATENT INFRINGEMENTS

Philadelphia, Pa., June 16.—[Special.]—United States Steel corporation and its leading operating subsidiary, Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, were found guilty of patent infringement in a decision made today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The suit was filed in 1934 by the Cold Metal Process company of Youngstown, O.

The patents adjudged infringed were issued to Abram F. Steckel, Youngstown inventor, and by him were turned over to the plaintiff company.

The court held that Cold Metal Steel Process was entitled to damages and profits from the defendant steel companies. A special master to determine these damages will be appointed by the federal court of New Jersey, where the litigation originated.

The Steckel process of cold rolling flat steel products was first put in operation in 1923 and revolutionized cold steel rolling. Most of the steel producing companies of the country use the process under licenses. Steel materials can be cut much thinner and in longer lengths by this process and the costs of production and sales prices have been cut almost in half, it was said.

HAMILTON-BROWN SHOE FILES BILL FOR LIQUIDATION

St. Louis, Mo., June 16.—[Special.]—Directors of Hamilton-Brown Shoe company today sought federal court approval for liquidation of the firm, once the largest shoe manufacturer in the United States.

The directors reported to the court that the stockholders had shown little interest in plans proposed for the reorganization of the company and that therefore there remained no alternative but to liquidate what remains of the business.

A similar report was made to the court last week by James K. Vardman Jr. and John W. Lake, trustees for the company.

The company has six factories, employing 2,850 workers during normal operation.

Federal Judge George H. Moore set next Wednesday as the date for hearing arguments on why the company should not be declared a bankrupt.

Merchandise Mart Sets Dates for Furniture Shows

Merchandise Mart officials announced yesterday the next wholesale home furnishings and furniture market will be held at the mart beginning Oct. 30, with the winter market scheduled for Jan. 8, 1940. Similar action, which in effect abolishes the two-market-year and reverts to the former program of four markets annually, was taken last week by the American Furniture Mart.

Cleveland Graphite Buys Airport to Expand Plant

An expansion program which is expected to cost more than $2,500,000 was announced yesterday by Ben F. Hopkins, president of the Cleveland Graphite Bronze company. He said directors had authorized the purchase of the former Great Lakes airport at Cleveland for an undisclosed figure. Modernization and new building construction are planned. The company manufactures bearings and metal parts for automobiles and airplanes.

Stores' Sales Gain Most in Middle West

Department store sales in the 7th federal reserve district, which includes Chicago, scored the widest gain in the nation in the week ended June 10 over the like 1938 week. Sales in the district jumped 20 per cent, the federal reserve board reported yesterday.

National sales were up 10 per cent, with only the Dallas district recording a decline. For the four weeks ended June 10 national sales were 8 per cent ahead of last year and 7th reserve district sales were 11 per cent larger.

Detroit Makes Best Gain.

The best gain among major cities in the 7th district was made by Detroit, where the increase amounted to 29.4 per cent. In Chicago the increase was 16.1 per cent. Milwaukee gained 11.6 per cent and Indianapolis 15.9 per cent. All other cities combined recorded an increase of 47.4 per cent.

National sales in the week ended June 3 were 9 per cent ahead of the like 1938 week and in the preceding week they were 11 per cent ahead. Sales in the city of Chicago alone have recorded five consecutive weekly increases over comparable 1938 periods.

Gain in New York District.

The gain in the New York district in the week ended June 3 was 5 per cent. Next to the Chicago reserve district that of Atlanta, where sales were up 18 per cent, had the best record. The decline in the Dallas district amounted to 1 per cent. The Richmond district reported no change.

NATIONAL TEA CO. WINS REFUND ON MINNESOTA TAX

The National Tea company yesterday won a refund of $88,000 in gross sales taxes paid under a Minnesota chain store law when the state's Supreme court held the legislation unconstitutional. The law was enacted in 1933 and repealed in 1937. The high court confirmed a decision of a lower court made two years ago.

Frederick H. Massmann, company president, expressed his satisfaction when informed of the ruling and said Wisconsin is the only state in the company's territory which retains such legislation. The company is not paying the chain store tax in that state, however, in the belief the law is unconstitutional, Massmann said.

Graduated taxes on chain store gross sales volume imposed by the invalidated Minnesota act ranged from one-twentieth of 1 per cent on the first $100,000 to 1 per cent on $1,000,000. The Minnesota Supreme court held the levy violated the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution which guarantees to all persons "the equal protection of the laws."

New York Bank Clearings and Deposits Are Larger

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—New York bank clearings increased to $3,296,079,856 in the week ended today, from $3,277,267,922 last week, the New York Clearing House association announced. Average net demand deposits increased $44,760,000 and average time deposits rose $5,464,000.

PLAN OF C. & E. I. WINS APPROVAL OF U. S. COURT

Nearer Completion than Other Roads.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday approved the plan for the reorganization of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad.

This action put the plan for the C. & E. I. farther along than any railroad reorganization proposed under section 77 of the bankruptcy act. The C. & E. I. sought relief from the courts April 18, 1933, when reduced revenues made it impossible for it to meet its interest charges.

The next step will be the taking of a vote of security holders on the program. If two-thirds of the security holders approve the plan, it becomes effective. If they do not, the court may hold a hearing of security holders after which it may declare the plan effective.

Completion This Year.

Former Judge Charles M. Thomson, trustee for the C. & E. I., said that all steps in the reorganization should be completed before the end of the year. When this is accomplished the control of the road will pass out of the hands of the court and into the hands of the management.

Judge Barnes also approved claims of lawyers and others for $120,065 in fees and $70,421 in expenses, but said that he would not pass on claims for future fees until the services had been rendered. Payment of these amounts in fees and expenses previously had been approved by the interstate commerce commission.

Judge Barnes also overruled certain technical objections raised by the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York.

Court's View of Plan.

"The plan, while perhaps not the best plan that could be devised, is certainly a good plan which closely approaches the best plan that could be devised," Judge Barnes said. "There comes a time in all reorganization proceedings when it is much more desirable to get the property out of the court under a good plan than it is to delay the matter in court in order to attempt to formulate a perfect plan. That time has long since passed in this case. The property of this debtor has been under reorganization for over six years, a fact that cannot be a matter of pride to any one connected with the case."

"The judge said that the fact that "no one other than three common stockholders objected to the plan is persuasive evidence that the plan is fair and equitable, that it affords due recognition to each class of creditors, and that it does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders."

Income Covers Fixed Charges.

He pointed out that a yearly average of $764,562 has been available to cover fixed interest charges for the six year period 1931 through 1936, and the amount needed to meet these charges under the plan of reorganization is $657,000.

In 1936 the road had $1,913,444 available for fixed charges; in 1937, $1,577,890, and in 1938, $884,085. The court pointed out that revenues in the first three months of this year exceeded those a year earlier.

The debt of the railroad would be reduced from $85,000,000 to $61,000,000 and the common stock, which has a par value of $23,845,300, would be wiped out.

Comments on Mahaffie Plan.

Judge Barnes commented on a minority objection to the plan, made by Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie of the I. C. C. when the commission approved it. Mahaffie had suggested that, instead of issuing $15,354,500 of income bonds, an equal amount of preferred stock be issued. The judge said the idea appealed to him until it was pointed out that the preferred stock would add $104,000 annually to the road's tax charges.

The C. & E. I. links Chicago with St. Louis and Evansville, Ind. Through Evansville it gives Chicago connection with southern and southeastern roads.

Judge Thomson, the trustee, has been named by Judge Barnes as trustee for the North Western railroad, subject to confirmation by the I. C. C.

Cotton Loans $205,186,251 on About 4½ Million Bales

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—The Commodity Credit corporation announced today cotton loans disbursed through yesterday totaled $205,186,251 on 4,478,893 bales. Corn loans for the same period totaled $129,645,595 on 227,696,546 bushels.

Week's Auto Output Up to 78,305 Units

With Chrysler corporation plants back on a five day basis, automobile production this week will approximate 78,305 units compared with 65,265 units last week, Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., estimated yesterday. The Chrysler plants were operated for some time on a limited basis because of a strike at the body plants of the Briggs Manufacturing company.

Ward's said that the increase this week was against the seasonal trend which is usually downward at this time of year. Production in the corresponding 1938 week was 44,790 units. Retail sales reports to factories indicate that the season decline has been less than normal.

Report Substantial Sales.

Several companies reported yesterday that June sales have been substantial. Deliveries of fifteen makes, which usually comprise more than 90 per cent of the industry's total, for the first ten days of June were estimated at 82,253 units. The total in the corresponding period of May was 87,735 units and in the corresponding June, 1938, period it was 53,125 units. The gain over last year was approximately 57 per cent.

Sales of Ford cars and trucks in the first ten days of June were reported at 18,917, an increase of 59 per cent over 1938. The Pontiac division of General Motors reported sales of 4,498 units in the first ten days of June compared with 2,712 in 1938, a gain of 66 per cent.

Used Car Figures.

The Chicago Automobile Trade association said yesterday that as of June 1, 227 Cook county dealers had a thirty-five days' supply of used automobiles on hand. S. B. Shapiro, general manager of the association, said that the inventory of 1938 cars increased from 9.3 per cent of the total on May 1 to 9.8 per cent on June 1. Inventories of 1937 cars dropped from 29.3 per cent to 27.6 per cent. Inventories of 1936-'37-'38 models were 58.5 per cent of the total against 59.3 per cent on May 1, Shapiro said.

The report said that the 227 dealers sold 8,828 used cars in May and that their inventories totaled 9,988 units on June 1.

OFFICE BUILDING OCCUPANCY HAS SLIGHT INCREASE

Office building occupancy throughout the country had increased slightly on May 1 as compared with Oct. 1, 1938, according to a study of rental conditions made public last night by the committee on renting of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers. According to the survey the gain is 0.18 per cent.

The average occupancy of office space was 82.23 per cent on May 1 in this country and Canada as compared with 82.05 per cent last October and with 81.91 per cent on May 1, 1938. There are 2,378 buildings included in the survey with a combined rentable area of 207,314,596 square feet.

Gen. Motors Stockholders Increase During Quarter

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—The total number of General Motors corporation common and preferred stockholders in the second quarter of 1939 was 388,758, compared with 388,650 in the first quarter and 403,282 in the second quarter of 1938, the company announced today. There were 367,365 common and 21,393 preferred holders.

SCHEDULE SOFT COAL PRICES TO PREVAIL IN EAST

Minimums Are Set by Federal Bureau.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission proposed today minimum prices ranging from $1.15 to $3.35 a ton for sale of coal at the mines in the Appalachian area—the nation's biggest coal field.

The prices for 72 per cent of the nation's soft coal tonnage, or an average annual production of 311,488,000 tons, are subject to final hearing by commission representatives—thirty days after formal publication of the proposed rates.

Commission representatives estimated that the complete schedule would not be published until about June 20, which would put the hearing date well beyond the time Secretary Ickes will take over functions of the coal commission—functions which he has described as a "headache."

Will Fix Other Prices.

The commission said prices for other middle western and southern coal fields probably would be fixed next week. Prices for the Rocky Mountain area were announced a month ago.

The lowest price for the Appalachian field—$1.15—the commission said, was for the poorest grade of slack coal. The high price—$3.35—was for the largest and best lump coal in the eight state area, which includes Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, Tennessee, and Michigan.

Between those two ranges were literally thousands of prices for different types of coal and for mines in the different areas included in the field, all figured to give the mine operators a return of at least the cost of production for their area, fixed at $2.128 a ton.

Some Prices Increased.

Generally, commission statisticians said, the prices proposed an increase of about 20 cents a ton over prevailing market prices for high volatile coal from southwestern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, northern West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, and Ohio. In the smokeless fields of southeastern West Virginia some grades of slack would be increased a similar amount, but others remained unchanged.

For lump coals, they added, a reduction was shown in most grades. In the eastern areas they said a "substantial reduction" would be made from prices for steam coal announced two years ago by the commission, and differentials between western and eastern steam coal consumers would be "wiped out."

Retail Financing of Auto Sales Increases in April

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—The dollar volume of retail automobile financing during April for 456 organizations totaled $121,918,975, an increase of 0.8 per cent over March and of 29.9 per cent as compared with April, 1938, the department of commerce announced today. Wholesale financing for April amounted to $155,736,170, a decrease of 1.8 per cent compared with March but an increase of 62.4 per cent compared with April, 1938.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—Selling broke out again in the last hour of trading on the stock market today, to cut short a mild rally and force the list to close irregularly lower.

After opening easier a modicum of improvement developed to reverse the four day downtrend. But the rally failed to carry through, which led traders to lighten their holdings. Trading continued at a leisurely pace, only 399,940 shares changing hands.

Apprehension over far eastern and central European developments again was the chief unsettling factor. Slightly better domestic business news was mainly responsible for the firmer tone before the late selling.

A goodly number of representative industrial issues managed to keep above water. Such issues as United States Steel, Republic, Chrysler, Greyhound, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Texas corporation, Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Electric closed with minor fractional gains.

Merchandising issues gave a fairly good account of themselves. Coppers closed mixed in a narrow range. Rails held close to Thursday's final quotations.

Arrangements were made today for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock exchange for $62,000, or $6,000 less than the last previous transaction. The range in the price of memberships this year included a high of $70,000 on March 8 and a low of $51,000 on April 11.

New York Bonds.

New York, June 16.—(AP)—The bond market moved lower again today. Buying apathy seemed largely to account for the price drift as total dealings amounted to only $4,915,000 face value compared with $5,610,575 Thursday.

Dampers on buying interest included renewal of tension over affairs in Europe and the far east and a general desire on the part of traders to await results of the Washington move for tax revision.

Moderate pressure brought losses of 1 to around 3 points in Italy 7s, German 5½s and 7s, Poland 7s, Brisbane 5s, Buenos Aires 4½s-4¾s, and Copenhagen 4½s.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks continued under pressure in light trading yesterday. Few of the more active issues lost more than fractional amounts, however. Commonwealth Edison closed unchanged at 28¾. Marshall Field and Northwest Bancorporation closed slightly higher. Of the eighty-eight issues traded, twenty-three closed higher, thirty-five lower, and thirty unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks closed mixed yesterday. First National and Continental Illinois shares made small gains. Others closed unchanged or slightly lower. Trading was inactive.

PLAN FESTIVAL EVERY YEAR TO BOOST CHICAGO

One of the ten major aims of the "Greater Chicago" program when it is in full operation will be the establishment of an annual event in Chicago that will compare in national favor with the New Orleans Mardi Gras or the Pasadena rose carnival, Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said yesterday.

Mayer said such an event besides making thousands of friends for Chicago would bring millions of dollars of business to the city.

Urges Distinctive Carnival.

"Chicago, like all other big cities, has a fairly complete round of ordinary sporting and recreational events," Mayer said. "But we must have something in addition that will be distinctly our own and sufficiently unique to bring visitors here."

Cheyenne	Frontier Days	50	$ 1,800
Cleveland	Air races	200	1,400
Louisville	Derby	50	1,500
New Orleans	Mardi Gras	100	2,500
Pasadena	Rose carnival	1,000	10,000
Portland	Rose festival	40	300
St. Louis	Summer opera	200	2,000

Cites Former Spectacles.

"It was proved in Chicago that the Dempsey-Tunney fight, the Army-Navy football game, the Eucharistic congress and other great spectacles here at various times in the past had far reaching values for the entire community," Mayer said. The time has arrived when we must develop one great annual event of similar importance to be built into a year-round calendar of other special events."

Mayer said the usual ideal weather in August offers an excellent time for such a purpose. He said it is proposed to take the best brains of the city's sports, musical, and artistic life to build the event.

"Make Chicago the 'summer capital' of the nation and it will mean real dividends in new friends and new trade," he added. "The entire city will profit."

ALLIS-CHALMERS.

Investors' Guide: What is the business of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company?—G. M. O.

Answer: The principal business of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company is making tractors and farm equipment. Secondary output consists of electrical, mining, and industrial machinery. Major operations are conducted in the main plant at West Allis, Wis., near Milwaukee.

Distribution of the company's products is obtained through far flung sales offices in this country, South America, and Europe. About 15 per cent of total sales is to foreign countries.

Operations in 1938 were only one-third as profitable as in 1937, when net income was the highest in the company's history.

Otto H. Falk, chairman of the board of directors, explained in the annual report last March that the decrease in earnings last year resulted from the following:

[4.] Interest charges on debentures paid for the full year 1938, whereas the charges in 1937 did not become effective until the last four months.

	Sales Billed.	Net Income.	Earned Per Share.
1937	87,353,616	7,841,167	4.42
1936	58,981,363	4,014,113	2.27

1930	41,475,949	3,604,609	2.87

*Loss.

Net sales in the first 1939 quarter totaled $17,561,414 and net income was $710,277, or 40 cents a share. This was a decline from sales of $20,310,099 and net income of $1,403,649 or 79 cents a share in the same 1938 quarter.

Total assets at the end of 1938 were $104,578,603 compared with $110,636,083 at the end of 1937. Current assets on Dec. 31 were $57,394,765 against current liabilities of $9,700,905.

The company has outstanding 1,776,092 shares of no par common stock and $25,321,500 of 15 year convertible sinking fund 4 per cent debentures due in 1952.

After omitting dividends on its stock from 1933 through 1935, the company paid $1.50 a share in 1936. $3.50 in 1937, and $1.50 in 1938. This year one dividend of 25 cents has been paid and another is payable July 3.

The debentures are rated as of good investment grade. The stock is considered to be speculative.

Hot Weather Predicted for Week-end; Swimming Pools Open July 1—Family with Sack of Gold Stranded

Summer's heat holds no terrors for these socially prominent young women of Chicago, who not only have access to country clubs and Lake Michigan for swimming and sports, but also are garbed stylishly for varying occasions, thanks to a new interest in sport costume designing. They are (1) Miss Jane Hoover in a silk play suit; (2) Miss Jane Leach in quilted black bathing suit with candlewick cape; (3) Miss Ruth Johnson in a one piece bathing suit; (4) Mrs. Weldon Coate in quilted play suit with cape and hood lined with terry cloth; (5) Miss Nancy Cockrell in swimming suit with gored skirt, and (6) Miss Betty Fuermann in play suit of shell crepe.
